Dorset workers work under dire conditions for hunger wages. When her mother and stepfather are destroyed in a fire, an illegitimate peasant girl, Siana Lewis, is left impoverished, to support with a young brother and younger sister. Job security with local rector Siana, with her wit and beauty, will attract the attention of three men. Daniel Ayres - a young man with high hopes and very little else - has his first love of cruelly betraying him. Francis Matheson, the local doctor, admired Siana's determination and thirst for knowledge. The couple make a comfortable friendship. Then there's the local gentleman, Edward Forbes. Edward, a voluptuous and sneaky man, is used to doing what he wants. She desires the beautiful peasant girl at first sight - and nothing will stop to get her. Him.
