Although the family members of former chief minister and telugu Desam party president N T Rama Rao are enjoying a bitter battle over the installation of his statue in the annex of the House of Parliament, his residence in Banjara Hills, where he had breathed his last, is being quietly razed. The demolition of the imposing building built on a plot of 700 square meters on Highway No. 13 began a couple of days ago and has almost been completed. According to sources, NTR children are planning to give it for the development of a commercial complex, as it is located in the main town. NTR's widow, Nandamuri Lakshmi Parvathi, shouted Wednesday for the systematic destruction of the of the legendary actor by his own family members. The house was built at a cost of Rs 15 lakh after NTR lost power in 1989. He spent his last days in this house and I have very good memories of his house because I was with him until his last breath on January 18, 1996. After his death, I kept all his personal belongings his clothes, bed and shoes in his bedroom where he died of a massive heart attack. It should have been preserved as his memorial, Lakshmi Parvathi told Mail Today.Nt Rama Rao's widow Nandamuri Lakshmi ParvathiWhen he founded the TDP in 1982 and became the chief minister in January 1983, NTR stayed in his extensive residence in Abids in the heart of the city, which he had built when he was the lead player in the Telugu industry. After losing power to Congress in 1989, NTR made the change from its residence in Abids to the Banjara Hills residence, which was registered in the name of its youngest daughter Uma Maheshwari who is staying abroad. The Abids residence was later sold by his children to an industrialist. It was in this house that NTR began its second entry into life. When family members neglected his health and had to be hospitalized, I had cared for him and subsequently married me. We spent our married life in this Residence in Banjara Hills, which I can never forget, Lakshmi Parvathi said. After NTR's death, Lakshmi Parvathi continued to remain in the Banjara Hills house for nearly 15 years, as Uma Maheswari allowed him for humanitarian reasons. He later gave power to his brother Ramakrishna.When he notified his stepmother to vacate the house, moved to high court and after lengthy hearings, the court ruled in his favor in May last year and asked him to vacate the house within three months. In December 2011, she was forced by force of the house. NTR's children don't respect me, even though he had married me legally. No contemplation, they sent me. But at least they should take into account their father, who had done work for the poor and defended the respect for himself of the Telugu people. They should have turned the house into a monument, as it had the spirit of NTR. His soul will not rest in peace with this demolition, said Lakshmi Parvathi. NTR's son, Ramakrishna, was not available for comment. Comment.
