Cool sword names for skyrim

» Wed Mar 13, 2013 4:26 pm So I finally got to my enchanting decent level and finally found chaos fascination and was ready to charm my sword until I realized that I couldn't think up the unique name for it. So I hopped them here on the forums in hopes that you fine people would help me. The sword is Stalhrim's one hand, my character is a nord man named Bothvar War-Bear. I was thinking about something to do with bears, like Bjorn but it seems to run to the mill. Everyone has epic names of sword that would suit the great Nord warrior and the last of his clan? I would like it to have a really good name dovahzul-can someone give me good suggestions? (edited by Fandom user)0Zindro Moro (triumph of glory) or the less impressive Kinzon Zahkrii (sharp sword) wiki page language is here. (changed AzuraKnight) All three of them are great choices! I was hoping for something related to the soul or essence, because the weapon is powerful enough for my story to rend in both secular and magical life, but these are brilliant choices! A thousand thanks! (edited by Fandom user)0If you look at the page I related to the above word soul is Sil Zahkrii (soul sword) or Sil Tuz (soul blade) if you conjure it with a fiery Soul Trap Sil Raw (soul hell) etc (edited by AzuraKnight) Thanks so much! But keeping the suggestions coming-every bit helps! (edited by Fandom user) Thanks! Just that you know I've read that wiki page-I'm just struggling to come up with good names and thought many hano do an easy job. (edited by Fandom user) Feyn Do Dovah- Bane of Dragon Tuz Do Vugal- Blade of Ebony Deyra Riil Chalk- Daedra Monster Slayer. This one has four words: Druniik not faal Vulom- Bringer of the Darkness (edited by Kobkob1)0Try Naegling as well. If you want sword names without having to search for TES Dovahi (or other Tamrielic for inspiration, try old Norwegian names for swords. (edited by Ifnsmn)0Dragon Language - English 1. Cold spell.
