Smooth basic terminology, long hair and Wirehair, all 3 coat types come in 2 sizes, standard and stylized. Genetic terminology: Dogs will usually carry 2 copies of their coat being WW, SS or LL. W - if Dachshund carries the wire coat gene then they will always be the dominant gene. (If only one carries the then it will be wire, however if it carries one 2 coats then it will produce a smoothing recessor or dashhound. S- Smooth coat is also dominant and will dominate longhair. For example if the dog has an S and L genes it will pass on the S to the puppies with also the chance of long-haired puppies being recessed. L-longhaired coat is a scinuated gene of both W and S. For example if the puppy is longhaired then it vectors 2 copies of the longhaired gene making it LL. What coat colors can Dachshunds come up with? The general basic coats that can come in Dachshund are - black and tan/black and cream - chocolate, tan/chocolate and cream (please see the chart below for examples) What styles can come in Dachshunds? Dachshunds can come in styles such as Dapple, Brindle, Sable or Bebald. We'll focus on Gable, Brindle and Pibald. (Please see the chart below for examples) please check your strain standards for your country's patterns. This information has been obtained by ANKC: all colors are allowed but white is not allowed, except for a small patch on the chest which is But undesirable. The dapple pattern is expressed as lighter color spaces contrasting with a darker base. Neither light nor dark color should prevail. Double dapple (where different amounts of white occur throughout the body plus dapple style) is unacceptable. Pied, three colors and diluted colors Isabella and blue are highly undesirable. Nose and black nails in all colors except chocolate/tan and chocolate dapple where they are brown.What sizes can Dachshunds come in and how much should they weigh? Ideal weight 9-12 kg (20-26 lbs)mini ideal weight 4.5kgs (10 lbs). Required maximum weight 5kgs (11 lbs) (please check your country standards) What is the difference between shaded red, red EE, clear red and cream? Ee-sense black pigment on the coat is shaded, and generally this disappears when the dog grows older and will only be seen on the tips of the ears and some feathers on the body. Shading can occur on reds and creams. Clear ee- means that there is no black on the dog coat, generally these dogs are born lighter and darkenwith age, they tend to have no strong solid black dye. (A lot of ee puppies show cream and change to red by their first birthday) if you're looking for a cream puppy you'd better buy from a breeder that can be proven by parents that their dogs are cream lines. The only real way to find out if the cream is cream and not faded red is by I test that the Australian breeder hasn't been easy to reach just yet. It is known that blues dilutions and Isabella - Dachshund dilution can cause many health issues and alopecia dilution colors (blog soon). To get a diluted dd the gene must be resonating and 2 parents need to carry the gene.
