Adventure time pack minecraft

Now on the console, coming soon to Pocket and Win 10! how much is the time? Well, 3am when I write this, actually. I'm just too excited to sleep, because today it's... ADVENTURE TIME! Yes! Finn, Jake, Ice King, Marceline, Princess Bubblegum and tons more of your favorite characters from the excellent animated series have come to Minecraft! But this isn't just another skin pack - goodness no - as the whole country Ooo takes over Minecraft world! Take Fionna and Cake on a tour of candy kingdom, fight Ice King in the Ice Kingdom and even take a trip with Flame Princess to the Fire Kingdom! And much much more! Not a fan of the show? Then you have no soul. Excuse! But that's a fact. The package is to be rolled out across console edition right now, with Switch and Wii U versions due to follow a little later today or tomorrow. Play on Pocket or Windows 10? Don't worry, this mash-up package will be with you soon! ++Update: Thanks to the mystery of time. Soon has transformed to Now! It's out today - July 6th - on Pocket and Windows 10! Totally orthogonal!++ It was hard to find anyone more excited about this mash-up pack than I am, but Marsh nailed it: he interviewed Pendleton Ward, creator of Adventure Time! What. Marsh: Play game a lot? I do. Right now I'm getting into virtual reality games. VR makes me feel like I'm somewhere else completely... the first games I tried were The Blu, which sent me under the sea to kiss a big whale on the eyeball, and Tilt Brush who sent me to space and let me paint with rainbows ... but I am very excited to be inside abstract visual spaces that make me feel like I am no longer in this dimension. VR can take me to the episode of The Twilight Zone where the little girl gets lost in the fourth dimension where time and space merge into one. I want to be the little girl! M: Do you have a penchant for a particular period in play, or a particular series? P: My favorite game is MYST. When I was a kid, I left the game running on my computer and just listened to the wind blowing sound effects, imagining that I was on the island. The characters in MYST had the ability to create worlds by describing them in books using special ink and paper and then transporting into these worlds by placing their hands inside the book... that really stuck with me. M: Adventure Time has many direct references to games, but do you feel that some of the games in particular have had a strong influence? P: Adventure Time is strongly inspired by dungeons and dragons. I loved poring over D↦ D Monster Manuals when I was a child... ah and still do as a grown man! I play D↦D regularly, and I like how much attention is given to create a fully realized world. All the monsters have cultures and characteristics and habits. They felt they existed outside the history I was in a background of an episode of Adventure Time. Jesse Jesse pulled a small door on the side of a staircase ... who lives in that stairs?! It's the fact of thing that I love, things that make the world feel bigger than I can know. M: How much do you love Minecraft on a scale from loads to almost an illegal amount? P: I've spent a lot of time in Minecraft, I love it a lot. I spent a lot of time playing on a DayZ theme Minecraft modded server. Who had /whisper commands so you can write within 2 squares of a friend and do not have the rest of the players hear you ... it was pretty. You had to hide from other players and build in secret, otherwise they would steal your stuff. So I built a boat and sailed far out until I saw a hole in the seabed. I broke my boat to cover my tracks and swam down to the hole that became a waterfall, which flowed into a sea cave. I love that the effort in Minecraft is not so much your life, but your creative projects, buildings and farms. I think it's amazing. M: Adventure Time feels very Minecrafty. Or maybe the other way around! Not only that it has a sprawling colorful landscape, but the whole attitude of AT feels very positive, big-hearted and full of derring-do. We want that for our players as well. Do you see other similarities? P: I like to lose myself in games and stories, and I did it a bunch in Minecraft and in making Adventure Time. I also love how calm Minecraft can be, the bells when the sun rises are so nice. I hope Adventure Time is just as nice to watch. Written by Tom Stone Published Unless you've lived under a rock for the past 3 years, you've probably heard of the popular Cartoon Network TV show cleverly titled Adventure Time. Adventure Time Craft texture pack of leonel on planetminecraft.com puts the Minecraft experience as if it were seen through the eyes of the protagonists of the show (Finn & Jake). The cartoonish style of this texture pack provides some great games, as well as comically watching your favorite characters being transformed into mobs as Magic Man is transformed into a witch or the trolls of the Troll Kingdom into villagers. Anyway, you look at it this texture pack is quite amazing! The armor, weapons and tools in this texture pack have also undergone a massive overhaul. No longer does your simple diamond helmet protect you from monsters of the night and quite a long time fall down a mountain *cough*cough*, but now they give your enemies some fear too. If you're lucky or skilled enough to get enough materials to create a complete set of armor, you can look like a samurai with an evil white or red smile on your face, or a simple leather version of Finn's hat. Tools are not something you think will change in a texture pack based on a comic book show as childish as it is, but believe me it has. A diamond chainsaw takes the place of a diamond axe and can be mildly comical when go on a deforestation spree. Who needs an axe when you have a chainsaw to cut down trees? How about you go and try to light up your nether portal in the style of a blowtorch instead of plain flint and steel? yes, you heard me right! Other cool things to note about the tools are the digital clock and case scissors. The blocks in this texture pack, considering the architectural style of the Land of Ooo, look incredibly smooth but extremely detailed. The trees look like the natural spokes you'll find on the outskirts of Ooo. The wooden planks, however, look good for an ageing interior design. Stone has been retextured to watch imitating castles, towers and dungeons you would see on the show. Ores also looks more detailed to suit the artistic style. Hidden in the depths of the many caves and ravines Minecraft world you can find hidden treasures, such as a golden tablet, iron bars, and diamond beads. I dig the concept, I like some of the different monsters from the game, but I just don't have the time or patience to recover and build up a world of my own. That said, when I heard they had launched a Minecraft Adventure Time Mash-Up, I wanted to check it out. So yesterday, with the help of my daughter, we toured the country Ooo on Xbox One, and here are some of the recognizable places from the show I was able to find during my first race. Find & Jake's TreehouseWhen you start in Minecraft Adventure Time Mashup, this is where you start. The home of Jake and Find Man's dog. This is quite iconic, so needless to say that it was not so hard to find. Ice KingdomIf you look closely you can see the peaks of the icy mountains that make up the Ice Kingdom in the background of Finn and Jake's treehouse. Again, easily recognizable and noticeable from the start of the game. Ice Kingdom and Ice King's Tower are another iconic place you can visit in Minecraft Adventure Time Mashup. Part of the Ice Kingdom that was just outside this image is Gunter's igloo, which you can also visit. Candy KingdomA of the largest kingdoms of Ooo and definitely the largest in the game is Candy Kingdom. Another lightweight as you venture through Ooo's Candy Kingdom, home to Princess Bubblegum and Candy People. Candy Kingdom along with its many shops and homes can all be explored. Lady Rainicorn's HouseJust outside candy kingdom you will find the home of Jake's main squeeze Lady Rainicorn. For the game, they have recreated the barn's heart windows and have made sure to include the farm's silo in the distance. Four KingdomDes the realm of fire is found in the earth in the Adventure Time TV series, you don't have to do any digging to find it in the Minecraft Adventure Time game. Located on an island surrounded by lava, the Fire Kingdom looks cool, but it didn't seem to have much more to offer at first glance. Breakfast KingdomNext door to the Fire Kingdom can be found breakfast kingdom. Controlled by Breakfast Princess, Toast Princes, and Strudel Princess and home to Breakfast People, breakfast kingdom and its coffee bow can easily be seen at a distance in the game making it quite easy to find on the journey. Mountain Man & Mountain Man Mountain VillageEnne prominent and quite visible place that you will come across during your adventures in Ooo is Mountain Man and the nearby Mountain Village. Mountain Man can easily be seen towering over the horizon as you travel through Ooo, and you can quickly explore the nearby Mountain Village.MO CoAnother one of the more prominent and noticeable structures that you venture through Ooo's MO Co. To be honest, I couldn't place the structure when we first came across it, but after doing some digging online I was quickly reminded of the prewar factory that produced everyone's favorite MO, BMO. For the sake of time I did not enter the dilapidated factory, so its contents are still a mystery to me. Castle Lemongrab) on the edge of Ooo is Castle Lemongrab. Apart from the islands, which we get to short time this is the last of the larger structures that are easily noticed from a distance while navigating through Minecraft Adventure Time Mashup.HousesAs you make your way through Ooo you will come across a number of smaller, more hidden structures as well. There were a couple I came across that I don't usually know are part of Minecraft, but I couldn't identify them from the show. The ones I could identify I've included here. Most of the structures are home to various residents from the Land of Ooo.Normal Man's HouseOriginally home of Normal Man, AKA Magic Man, this run down old house and surrounding trash was more recently home to Betty Groff, the man-turned-wizard who was once the fiancée of Ice King in its human form. As in the show home as well as the nearby bus both have trees growing through them in the game. Tree Trunks' HouseLike Normal Man's House, Tree Trunks' House is tucked away among the lush forests of Ooo. to everyone's favorite little sassy elephant, Tree Trunks house is small, but inside you'll find a coffin with some apples and a pie, which is just another of the little details that made exploring the land of Ooo as a fan of Adventure Time as much more fun. Veggie Village: I never understood why this was called a village since there was only one house, but Veggie Village is another of the smaller home structures you find in the game. Home to Stanley the Watermelon and the rest of veggie people this was one of the more obscure nods to the show I found on the map. What I thought was funny was that the structure had two watermelons planted in front of it, so needless to say if you harvested and ate these melons, you would probably be a lot on Stanley and one of his relatives. Marceline's House Although I saved Marceline's house at the end of this list of homes, it was one of the first structures I went looking for while playing the game. Marceline, The Vampire Queen is my favorite Adventure Time character, and I wanted to scope out what kind of details were given to her home. Since I discovered the Fire Kingdom above ground in the game I had expected to find Marceline's house out in the open too, perhaps just surrounded by trees like some of the other residences, but as in the show, Marceline's house is a little harder to get by. Hidden in a cave you need to do some serious searches to find the location. Interestingly, Marceline's cave also houses a portal to nether, but for this game, it seems to have been recreated as Nightosphere, home to Marceline's father, complete with Ghosts recreated to look like the funky half-faced monster stuff from the show. IcelandSome more prominent structures appearing in minecraft adventure time mashup were not even introduced to fans until last January as part of the Adventure Time miniseries 'Islands', where Finn finally meets other people, and we learn the back story of not only Finn but also Susan Strong. In the new Adventure Time map, all three islands Finn and his friends meet in the series, along with smaller locations that appear in the episodes but did not necessarily exist geographically where they appear in the game. Note, if you haven't seen Iceland's miniseries yet there are some spoilers ahead. The ShackEven though it only has a short role in the series, the shed where Finn briefly finds shelter after first being stranded on the islands can be found in the map. As in the episode, the shed borders an area of desert heat and snow. BVR IslandThe home to better virtual reality this is the second island we see in the Islands miniseries, and that's where Finn and Jake find BMO after they were separated in a shipwreck Jake wreck. This is also the first island Finn meets on, but now that they live through Virtual Reality alone, they are just shells of the people they used to be. What disappointed me most about this island is that I couldn't find a cool series of pipes to shoot through to get to it. Hub IslandOn Hub Island you will find a number of features that Adventure Time fans will remember from the miniseries Islands. The island includes Helper Hospital where Finn's mother worked as a helper, Merten's home where Finn lived with her parents as a baby, as well as the cave where Susan Strong, Finn, Jake and BMO would find a ship to transport them to Founders Island in search of Finn's mother. The hospital where Finn's mother worked as a helper and where she met Finn's father. Elsewhere that only appeared briefly in the miniseries, this structure is the home where Finn lived as a bay until he and his father were forced to flee. About, there were no sheep in the adventure time episode itself. The little cave that housed the craft that would take Finn and his friends to Founders Island to find more people and eventually his mother. The founders IslandHome to the only remaining people on Earth, as well as what is left of Finn's biological mother, Minerva, Founders Island is the last island Finn and his friends visit in the Islands miniseries and are the final island location in minecraft Mashup.In addition to these special Adventure Time locations, there are some standard Minecraft locations included in the map as well. During our search for Ooo we also discovered a creeper temple as well as a Minecraft Village. As mentioned earlier, there were also some smaller or fragmented structures or places that might be Adventure Time related that just weren't recognizable to me in Minecraft form, so it's possible there are several places that we haven't discovered yet. Have you played Minecraft Adventure Time Mashup? Did you find any places we didn't mention? Let us know about them in the comments! UPDATE: Cartoon Network posted on its Instagram account a teaser of a place, apparently Slime Kingdom is somewhere in the game too. If the video alludes to the location, it may be located in or near the MO Co. factory we highlighted above. Over.
