It's separate from the author's other fanfic, some unknown 0.Examples Day in the spotlight: The overall story is basically a great collection of them. Touma no matter, there are some characters (Othinus in particular) who have strongly in more than one story. Aisa gets one in Chapter 2, which takes place during Daihaseisai. The fact that it gets one at all shocks a certain protagonist: Alternate Me: Touma, Accelerator, Shiage and Index meet in Chapter 21. Substitutes all have things originals would love but don't have – Touma has (or rather acknowledges the existence) of the hama, the accelerator is registered as a family with Last Order/Misaka Worst, Shiage has a stronger connection with Shizuri/Salai and Index is in a relationship with Touma. Anti-Magic: Touma is an Imagine Breaker in your right hand that revokes magic and esper powers to contact. Balanced hook: A common feature in one-shots where Touma is involved (regardless of whether he knows about it). Batter up!: Mikoto references Saten with used baseball bats to attack people in some scientific Railgun series: Mikoto: Bats are more Saten-san fields. Brands are better: Subverted. In Chapter 1: She may have been a high-class rich girl, but even Shokuhou knew there was no point buying the most expensive pencils and pens when there were cheaper options that lasted longer and were half price. Chew toy: Touma is definitely the case for an author who is a self-confessed Touma sadist. Othinus (in her post-NT 10 doll body) is a literal example of this in Chapter 29. Clueless Chick Magnet: See forgotten love. Corpsing: Lancis does it in Chapter 8, when Lessar tries to seduce the airline pilot in order to steal his ID card. Crossover: Two endless hells that Othinus creates give Touma in Fate/Stay Night and Final Fantasy 7 Worlds. All Join the Party: In rumors, a war breaks out in Academy City between espers, with various members of the Magic party joining in. Eye Scream: Chapter 41: Silent Screams: If at any moment, you covered your eyes looking at it, turned away, felt 'I really want to skip this piece' or just shouted 'What the hell!?' HIS EYE?! Real scene: 'She' sank 'her' teeth into the boy's left eye. Face-Heel Turn: After the defeat of Lola Stuart and Aleister Crowley, revealing the existence of magic, and the ongoing reconstruction of Academy City, Touma Kamijou declares war on the whole world, announcing that he will destroy both magic and science parties to prevent future suffering and despair caused by both sides from happening yet. False Memories: One of the mental skills out of power is to change like her gym teacher forget to call on her and set misaka to be invited to last when she would normally be called earlier. Fallen hero: Touma Kamijou in Chapter 59. Flashback Echo: When Misaki watches Mikoto practice hitting baseballs in a batting cage with a baseball bat controlled through manipulation magnetism, she flashes back to when Touma was trying to get her to be more athletic using batting practice. It was also triggered by being in the same batting cage where the flashback events occurred, with the broken pitching machine still misplaced. Happy Flashback: Flashback Echo at Misaki and Touma's batting practice is a happy memory of Misaki. I am humanitarian: Chapter 41: Silent Screams: Cannibalism was part of Othinus's Endless Hells: [...] saw the world descend into nothing but a cannibalistic hell where his own family was not saved. Jerkass Realization: As a person who puts the well-being of others above his own, the realization he has unwiedly strung alongside his many admirers (in Chapter 47) hits Touma hard: Touma: Those girls, for whatever reason, actually fell on me. I was so bored in class that my mind naturally turned to the girls I knew. Without realizing it, though, I came to note that I really knew a lot! I collected all the memories I had of them and went through them during class, but as I came to see what he told me and how they interacted with me, the numbers just grew. At first, I thought it was just me who thought it through, but a fake date? Blush when we came into physical contact, which seemed a little too prolonged? Climb into bed with me? The words they used, the phrases and the sincere feelings that were behind them? The happiness they got when I was doing little things? And I just ignored everything because, how did I have other things going on? It came to me and hit me like a bus as I slowly deliberated it. After Komoe-sensei asked me to speak in class and I got up, everything came to me one went. The girls who did what they felt. A... And what did I do? I ignored it all. I ignored it all, like some thick who played with girlish feelings. Oh God. Oh God. Kid Hero All Grown Up: Chapters 22 and 43 are based on Touma's adventures 10 years after his pre-Academy City memory loss (which makes him 26 years old). Magnetism manipulation: Misaka uses her electromaster power to magnetically lift and control metal baseball bats to hit baseball. Forgetting about love: Touma, natch. He played straight and turned away in Chapter 21. The three main Index protagonists (and Index) come face to face with an alternative universe version of themselves on which Hilarity follows. The original Touma retains its standard features, while substitute Touma mentions 6 women by name Misaki, Mikoto, Aisa, and Itsuwa and claims to make up less than 0.001% of his hámu.note In other words - his hnum represents more than half a million. Chapter 43 shows a heartbreaking version of this trophy. As Kid Hero All Grown Up, Touma is married to many of his girlfriends and acquaintances - however, the fact that their declarations of love were (at least initially) made during life-threatening situations means he interprets them as asking to be saved through marriage-induced soul-sharing, while completely lacking a romantic context. As a result, he comes to the wrong belief that no one will ever really love him. Averted in Chapter 47. The very notion that he has a ham whose feelings have gone unseeded for some time sends him into despair. Older than they look: Touma Kamijou. Playboy Bunny: In Chapter 8 Lessar and Lancis are dressed in bunny suits for infiltration missions. Reincarnation: In Chapter 44, Touma is killed to protect Seiri from the elements, only to wake up in an unknown forest and come face to face with a deity who claims to be God. He said the deity informs him that he has been moved to the parallel reality of Imagine Breaker – that is because time spent suffering billions of deaths at Othinus' hands eventually led to imagine breaker melting with his soul; therefore his soul was rejected by the underworld, and he breathed with the body he had when he faced Othinus. Subsequent deaths will lead to the same result. Serious Business: What could cause Misaka Mikoto, Misaki Shokuhou, Leivinia Birdway, Index, Sisters, Kaori Kanzaki, Itsuwa and what is implicit to be pretty much every powerful girl in Academy City and magic side to engage in a war that turns the streets of Academy City into post-apocalyptic ruin? He tries to be the first to find Touma to ask him if the rumor that he is looking for a girlfriend is correct. Exchanged roles: In Chapters 38 and 39, Shiage spends the day in a certain high school and Touma spends the day with the rest of the item. Of course, Hilarity follows when it comes to Touma. Tomboy Angst: Chapter 42: In fact, however, the #1 5 esper was hardly male despite what their appearance might suggest. The constant confusion that people had about her gender annoyed her however, made her feel like she would drop dead from embarrassment if someone saw her, regardless of whether they were a stranger or not in a dress or something girly. She wore these types of clothes from time to time however, only on days when she didn't expect to go out into town. Portable Memory: Chapters 9 & 18 take place during Daihaseisai and are about Saten and Misaka Imouto respective use of Indian poker cards that contain the 'best-selling dream among women of all ages in Academy City'. He said the dream happens to be a date with Touma that ends as he prepares to kiss.note It's one of a three-part dream, with two others sold separately. The second part involves kissing/doing out and part three is implicit to engage in sexual intercourse. Then they approach Toum and tell him to take responsibility (as do more than a hundred other women and some men); true to character, Touma is baffled by said statements and gets beaten after Saten's statement. Which me?: The following conversation takes place between Touma and his alternative self shortly after they meet in Chapter 21: Touma: [...] And who are you, me? You can't be me! I'm me! A! Touma: On the contrary, how can you be me ... When am I? You and I are me. But you're me! You can't be you when you're me! A! Touma: How can I be when I am you? Touma: It doesn't make any sense! A! Touma: In the sense that it doesn't make sense, it makes sense. Touma: ... Such misfortune.
