- Run-of-the-Mill Pizza has now been canonically said blessing- I know soft shells eat meat too, so I assume that Donnie just likes vegetarian food and flavorless juice-Hajimachi?- Waiting (That's what he said? It's hard to hear-- Hueso Jr.!!! Hueso has a son! Aaaaawwww! Is Hueso Jr. his real name or is it just a nickname – you know how people call other people's children so-and-so Jr.? Either way, this is very adorable!- So Leo kidnapped Señor Hueso about three times through a gate - WOW LEO. IMPERSONATING DRAXUM WILL DEFINITELY LET YOU OFF- Still sitcking the landing, I see- I did not do so well Señor Hueso ... If that's not a blatant reference to Infinity War, I don't know what that is!- I love this bone man- Raph. Mikey. I guess donnie maaaaybe, I came for you! I'll be honest, I didn't expect this. The ribs just came out and attacked you. I was scared for other reasons (so I'll explain in another post). - So Piel and Huesos are brothers. I love Hueso's behind-the-scenes story. Although, I'll be honest, I immediately thought the plot was darker, like, they used to be a person and then his skin turned evil and peeled off his bones and tried to attack him and whatnot, yadda yadda yadda yadda ... Ha. This is where my mind goes now. Wow. But seriously. I'm just a kid! Like the guy... which gave me chills up my own spine. Protect this man. I love it 🥰- AlsoDonnie and his scathing sarcasm. There's no way out of its grasp. This is so me though. Anyway, I love this!! I saw a lot of references to Ducktales, Infinity War, Teen Wolf, Agents of SHIELD – I got some Pirates of the Caribbean vibes too – and perhaps a few more that I missed – perhaps some of which were inadvertent (or are they???) Also, Hueso called Leo a cucumber as what I live for now 🥒 I've got a few more thoughts, but I'll focus on them on other posts. Overall, this is a good episode, but there's a lot to unpack in it. I like that!!! His use of the unique weapon was inspired by Jackie Chan.[12] Reback scenes of Many Unhappy Returns and Goyles, Goyles, Goyles reveal how Yoshi was kidnapped by Big Mama to fight in Battle Nexus and his later mutations, from being repeatedly bitten by a rat, while Draxum used his DNA to create turtles. Produced in March 2017, Rise of the Teenage Mutant Ninja was announced as a new re-imagining of the Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles brand. Cyma Zarghami, chairman of Nickelodeon Group, claims a press release: Turtle is an asset that reinvented in its DNA, which keeps it fresh and relevant to every new generation while meeting demand from its mature fans. 'Turtles' has been a hugely important franchise for us since we reignred over it five years ago, and we're excited for the new series to take the characters in a different direction with more humor, a younger and lighter feel and a whole new size to explore. [2] The logo of the series was unveiled to the public in mid-October 2017. [21] In November of that year, Nickelodeon announced the official voice cast for the main characters next to the turtle. In addition to this news, voice actor Rob Paulsen, who previously voiced Raphael in the 1987-96 television series and Donatello in the 2012-17 television series, served as the voice director for the television series. [5] John Cena was later chosen to play the villain Baron Draxum. [22] In addition to directing the voice acting, Rob Paulsen also voiced alongside voice actor Maurice LaMarche. [23] Animation services for Rise of the Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles are provided by the Australian animation studio Flying Bark Productions. The main character art designs were announced and unveiled by Nickelodeon in February 2018. [24] This happened during an event on Facebook, which was broadcast live that day. [25] On March 23, the first trailer for the series was released by Nickelodeon. [26] Each episode consists of two 11-minute carts and each of them tells closed stories, independent of hints of a larger storyline. [28] The show aired as a sneak peek after Kids' Choice Sports 2018 in July[29] and then premiered on Nickelodeon on September 17.
