Description This guide is a guide for USMC Scout Snipers training and operations written in the 80s, however, it is still a good source of training as well as a valuable guide to studying sniper history. The Marine Corps sniper is a Marine who has been thoroughly vetted, selected, and has received comprehensive training in advanced infantry and firing techniques. Sniper training, combined with the inherent precision of the rifle, firmly establishes it as a valuable addition to the auxiliary weapons available to the infantry commander. The Scout Sniper is a Marine highly skilled in field skills and shooting, which provides long-range, accurate fire on selected targets from hidden positions. The main mission of the sniper in combat is to support the fighting by delivering accurate fire to individual targets from hidden positions. The sniper also has a secondary mission to gather intelligence for intelligence purposes. I got a question for any retired Marine Sniper Scout. I've been looking for a marine scout field directory for a long time and wondered if anyone had it and would be willing to either sell it or make a copy of it. I know it's hard to find, but I've searched everywhere. The book has a sniper/spotter on the cover in a full Ghillie costume. Please help the guy, I have friends looking into him, but I would like him Goddamnit ... I just got divorced for Christmas, and when she locked me out of the computer, I lost a lot of shit. Thank God I printed out these thousands of pages of M2 guides first. Lost 13-7. So I don't have sea shit, but I have army leadership. I have a 3-21.8 (eclipse 7-8) platoon infantry rifle (my unit helped rewrite that FWIW, the first change forever) 3-20-98 Scout Platoon, and 23-10, Sniper. These 3 Sorta guides relate to each other if you ask me. I also have some other manuals, M4, etc. FWIW, FM - it's a field guide, and TM - technical guidance. If they don't come true to you, you can go to Scribd, where I found them, and search them there. It's free to join for a trial period, then you have to pay a fee every month for it. If you're savvy, you can go through there and search for whatever you want, download it and cancel it before it costs anything. That's how I got it. Hey, if you go to the scribd and score marine guide, let me know, I'd like a copy too. Never read that one. Amazon sells them, FM 1-3b Thank you guys, I have a pic of one that I saw on Instagram but don't want to get a chance to expose if it gets me in trouble. These books have not always been produced, even in SSBC. I have several sets of books to store, I'll see if I can find one. HH4, if you have one it will mean that the world to me These books have not always been released, even in SSBC. I have several sets of books to store, I'll see if I can find one. Yes, it's the same in the army. Imagine Bde. infantry having to share like 30 7-8.s. I never understood that, must be the main issue. Most of us ended up buying our own, but even then they were hard to find locally. Yes, but I could use it more than other reasons for changing covers I know if I had a guidebook it would help my shooting lot I know, if I had a guidebook it would help my shooting a lot You learn more reading things posted here, the information in these books is always out of date. Lowlight offers online training, you can That's it. Online training like this that I know if I had a guide it would help my shooting a lot you won't learn shooting from these... mainly patrols, skin construction, field of suitable antennas, call to fire, warning and patrolling orders, estimate range, range, and maintenance of the rifle (M40A1). Reaction: Redmanss There is a way to see all the pages I have usmc FMFM 1-3B It's not just about shooting tips and the reason I wanted a directory I always wanted the usmc scout sniper directory for as long as I remember not because some data can't help me, but the marine corps in my heart I went through SSBC 1-93 and we were given 1-3B. It was a standard issue for all the Marine Snipers going through at the time. I have a couple of copies. I can honestly say that I have never seen a said handbook issued. I would love to have 1-3b from 93, the one that I have over Lee anyone has a spare FMFM 1-3B that is not a PDF paperback is what I'm looking for I looked at, and those may have been one time thing with a sniper/spotter kn cover. It's not 1-3B. This is a handbook prepared by the III IEF in 1999 and is not an official guide at all. Having this book won't do anything to help your shooting, it's all mission specific information and I wouldn't give out a single page without knowing the 100% person I give is a USMC HOG.
