Maintaining hair color requires serious dedication. With a less relaxed life, we live, adding a trip to the gym on our schedule can feel like unfeasibly boring. Depending on the vitality of the paint and the speed of hair growth, you should have time for root touches every five to six weeks, while keeping hair hydrated with super moisturizing products. In short, the alimony is real. When you don't have the time or a lot of money to spend on a flower hour, you can get your hands dirty and do it yourself. A DIY paint job may sound scary, but it's shockingly simple. It takes a little research, a trip to the local pharmacy, and a few important steps. Wondering how to color your own hair? We eavesdrop on three top hair colorists to give us a lowdown on how to achieve a salon worthy hair color at home. Matrix celebrity colorist George Papanicolash recommends to have your flowering ends in check before adding color. Dry porous ends absorb more color, making it look sky, he explains. Make sure you cut off your ends in advance to avoid this. Meet the expert George Papanicolas is a celebrity colorist and brand ambassador for Matrix and Biolog. He works in both Los Angeles and New York at the Andy Lecompt salon and rita hazan salon. Imaxtree celebrity colorist expert Michael Casey from Salon Elliott believes that reading the label of a floral package is the most important step. People go to the drugstore papers very naïvely and just look at the image of the package in search of the color they want, but they don't read the directions, Casey says. And of course, this is a recipe for disaster. The good news is that most hair packs sold in pharmacies are of very high quality. A little research and reading can prevent many terrible hair color mistakes. If you're not sure, you always rise for a color that's brighter than you'd think, advises Papanicolas. Use only permanent hair color if you are lighter or for gray coating. If you touch gray hair, use only permanent hair color. With the same color at the ends will dry your hair. [U]are semi- or demo-permanent hair color to refresh your medium lengths and ends. Just make sure the gloss is two to four shades lighter. The edges are more porous and will absorb more color. You want your roots to be a few shades deeper than your edges. Refresh the edges only if they look faded. For women with jet black hair and brunettes who try to cover gray, you can achieve this with a constant color to swell the cuticle to deposit color. If you do not have gray hair and you just need to touch your roots, go to a demi-permanent shade, since your hair is much gentler. My suggestion is always to illuminate a nuance, Casey. This will always save you in that the color does not fully show up. Going too dark you will make the color of your hair a little thick and artificial looking. If you just touch your roots, most product lines have great root tangents that can only take 10 minutes. Faith Sue Usually two boxes are enough for reincarnations, says Papanicola. You don't want to run out of colors in half, and adding more colors doesn't make it darker, it just gives you a better finish when it's completely saturated. Hair products in your home are usually available with a bottle applicator, says Andrea Jaclyn of Bomane Salon. I suggest you buy a brush for a tint. The application is much easier. Once you have the staining brush and mix your color as directed, start applying. Ideally, you should get it in 15 minutes. Start staining your hair on the front, just in case you get away from the second half of your application. This helps to ensure that the color looks perfect on the front. Take the end of the tone brush and take a small horizontal section and turn it over. You should be able to see the color through the section. Dye the color of the new part of your hair until the end of the reborn. Then, section again. Paint the color up and down on each new section. At the back, it is easier to capture in horizontal sections. Imaxtree These colors are very difficult to achieve on their own because they require pre-brightening procedures, which means that hair should be deprived of its natural color before these colors are placed on top, Casey explains. It better be left to a professional. Highlights are much more complex and really only need to be done by a professional, as bleaching of the bleaching pusher is usually required to get the perfect tones, Papanicolas says. Time is very important. Leaving a dye on too long will rework your hair and make it too light until I take it off too early will make it look bra and orange. In terms of platinum blonde, the chance of damage and breakage is very high, even when done by a professional. This absolutely needs to be done by a professional. Naturally, dark hair can take several sessions to get the right blond shade. When you touch, all you have to do is touch a growth. If you overlap, then your hair will tear off. Therefore, it is offered only by a professional. Bright colors look best on pre-lit hair, which is also a difficult process to make by an experienced colorist. If you are going for red and magenta, then you need to pre-lighten your strands to an orange tone. If you want pastel, green or blue shades, you need to pre-brighten up to a very pale blonde first and then postpone the color. These colors fade very quickly, so you will to spend a lot of time refreshing bright colors. If it's too dark, wait, - That's it. The color usually fades and changes the first two weeks, so it is best to see how it develops. If you still hate him, go to the gym. The process of correction requires to unning the hair and remove color. Casey suggests using a color-lifting product called Oops if you're not happy. It will pick up some of the colors you just put on your hair. It's strong, so you need to co-create them with a lot of balm to remove the color you've already made, he explains. Hair grows a quarter of every 1 inch between every three to five weeks, so no matter how gorgeous the color of your hair, you'll have that amount of growth between three and five weeks, Casey explains. Buy a clear glow in the pharmacy to seal the color and good shampoo and conditioner. I love shampoo and conditioner or i love Oribe because they are rich and moisturizing products. Kerastase intense hair mask can often mask the damage caused by excessive staining. Papanikolas offers the use of shampoo for safe color such as Biolage R.A.W. Restoration of shampoo without sulfates. This helps to keep the saturated color longer, he says. Before your next trip to the gym, find the best new shade for you with this guide to the hottest hair color trends of the season. The best part? Many of these popular shades are surprisingly effortless, like neutral hair and shaking their roots (yes, really!). Here, four wonderful ideas for hair color to ask your stylist for this autumn. this link is to an external site that may or may not meet accessibility guidelines. When it comes to hair colors, you may wonder if you made a big blonde or redhead. If you're a brunette, you might wonder what your options are for dimming your brown blah. And as for greys, you may be curious about the best ways to cover them. Choosing the right blonde, brown, black or red should always be based on its natural hair color and skin color. I always recommend trying on wigs to determine whether a color will look good on you, and then research and fine-tune the color from there with the help of a professional. Here's your main guide to finding the best color of Since Kate Middleton came into the spotlight, the brunette's hair colour has become more popular than ever, competing against the ever-popular blonde. Gone are the days when brunettes dyed their hair blonde just because they felt it was the most popular color. In fact, many of the most women today hold their brown locks. Blah Brown, however, is never magnificent. The key is to kick your brown hair. You can do this in several ways, including: Color it a beautiful color of burnt. Auburn is the hottest trend for brown hair right now (think Kate Middleton). Copper accents are wonderful by the balage method. Face-framing color can really flatter the skin tone. Try the sombré trend or become something of a blonde – a trend known as bronde. If you have super pale skin and brown hair, consider lighter or at least having some accents painted or thwarted. Super dark shades can wash you down and even make you look older. In her book Eva Scrappy of Beauty, the expert gives great advice on how to find out if you'll look better with dark hair. Since wet hair is naturally up to three times darker than dry hair, you can do a wet hair test. After washing your hair in the shower, do your makeup and then comb your hair to fall on both sides of the face. Capture. After the hair is dry, take another photo. You should immediately see if your face looks brighter with darker hair, Scrivo says. Very few adult women have naturally beautiful blonde hair. With age, even natural blondes will darken, ending with a version of a dish of blonde hair. The good news is that the dish is a dish, which is a great base for highlights or balaclavas. If you are aiming for blonde, but have darker hair, keep in mind that you may need to make several trips to the salon to completely brighten the hair. And not all brunettes are like Linda Evangelista and look great as blondes. I'm talking about hair, not plates. Platinum blonde hair is more popular than ever, as blondes prefer to go even lighter, losing the golden tones of honey to icy, lighter shades. Keeping hair this blonde is high maintenance, and will not suit all skin tones. Platinum hair, for example, looks best on women with cool skin tones. Find out what cold skin tones are plus how you can find out if it's a good look for you in Can you get away with platinum hair? Almost anyone can go red; the most important thing is to find the right shade of red. If you want to turn red, try not to do it yourself. Get a professional consultation. You won't believe how many women whose hair is orange when they get away on the road. African-American women have many options when it comes to hair coloring. You can wear off your hair, add accents of color, or try wigs and weave to change it without having to choose constantly- never wash color. Many women with gray hair choose to dye their hair. If you are all grey, you may to go blonde because blond is easier to achieve (and maintain) than going dark. More and more women with gray hair are actually learning to embrace gray. And no wonder. Gray and silver colors are wonderful, so many that a few Before, young models dyed their hair gray and it was a trend of the moment. Home color kits have come a long way in the last few years. They are ideal for busy people and those who want to reduce the cost of professional coloring. (We know about several top fashion editors who color their hair themselves). But if you plan to color your hair more than two shades lighter or darker than your natural shade, you need to turn to a professional. When it comes to hair color, you basically have three options: highlighting, one color process or a double process. Arrange what's best for your hair. Hair.
