Finding the right pair of sunglasses for the shape of your face can cast all sorts of challenges, especially if you have been blessed with a tight face. Some sunglasses will make you look like a bug, others can make your proportions just look weird. It is important to choose a pair of sunglasses that can really help to make you look elegant and well proportioned. We've put some tips and suggestions below to help tight-faced people make the right decision when it comes to choosing sunglasses. Sunglasses for thin faces do not keep frames about 130mm across the front. Anything that measures about 130mm from one side to the other will flatter a tight face and will not make your head look too small. Do not choose the frames that make your head look disproportionate. Any frames that stretch past the edge of your face may make your head look much smaller. Do try the shape of the frame interesting. Square shapes and cat's eye squares are an ideal choice to equalize the size of your face. Do not choose a very small frame. With frames that are so small they can throw the shape of your face out of balance. Celebrities with tight faces inspired by celebrities with tight faces to see how they get perfect looking sunglasses Sarah Jessica Parker Sarah Jessica Parker has always had one to make her own directions and here she's no different rocking a pair of unusually shaped sunglasses. Maggie Q leading lady Maggie Q keeps it simple in a pair of new Ray Pan Wayfarer sunglasses. The shape is flattering on a tight head, especially since the frames do not stretch past the side of the face. Ray Ban has an awesome collection of sunglasses in Asia fit as well. Liv Tyler famous beauty Liv Tyler keeps it chic in a pair of Tom Ford sunglasses. The interesting shape keeps her face in proportion as well as giving great protection.
