With a promising childhood, the former child actor had his life upside downWallacy Ferrari Posted on 26/03/2020, at 09:03The skylar Julius Deleon was shown a promising actor during childhood, starring in some commercials. Despite a risky childhood, accompanied by a drug dealer father and being abused, Deleon had his great opportunity to take advantage of the portfolio in 1993, when, at the age of 14, he would play one of the young men who would support the Mighty Morphin Power Rangers patrol series, which was constantly on the rise in ads in the United StatesThe visibility obtained, despite having been a character of few lines that is not attributed to him participating in the episode Second Chance, the money and experience obtained allowed the boy an excellent phone card for future work, but his discipline and education contrasted with the opportunities given to the young man. Not specializing or seeking to perfect his techniques, Skylar completely changed his life. When the lines became more complex in the plays the actor was called, the boy began to suffer to decorate and sounded too mechanical to interpret some outsourced emotions. Soon, he lost several jobs and had to give up his career, even momentarily, only to be able to support himself. Days later, another closed door for the former officer: the Navy signed the dismissal of the boy, just 20 years old, specifying that this was an un honorable participation. Without any provision of resolution in relation to the problems of life, he decided to commit minor offences to close the accounts, being convicted in 2002 of armed robbery. In prison, he met gang members Insane Crips, who had the boy to join forces, as he had knowledge of high society. John Fitzgerald Kennedy, an active member of the gang, was introduced to Skylar by Myron Sandora Gardner.While fueling criminal relations with gang members, Alonso Machain, his prison officer at the prison, became a great confidante and friend of the former. When his sentence was met, the boy persuaded the two members and the agent to try a risky attempt to raise funds, claiming he knew a quick way to raise enough money for everyone. The high-end murder in the second half of 2004, Thomas Hawks, a retired police buyer, and Jackie Hawks, his wife, were missing. They both lived on a yacht and sailed through California Gulf and Ocean Ocean On November 15 of the same year, they would meet with a person interested in buying the water vehicle. At the time, Skylar and his wife, Jennifer, attended to see the conditions of the yacht. A few hours later, the yacht returned to the point that it used to be parked, but the ship's owners did not return together. 11 days later, with investigations into the disappearance, an attempted coma on the Hawks account was denied and reported to authorities. As the last person to meet the former officer, Skylar was called to testify, but in the following statements, he took risks and tried to leave the country several times. The couple Jackie and Thomas Hawks in the photograph taken on board / Credits: RevelationThe following year, he confessed to the crime and his cruelty: he surrendered with an acrobatic gun, the couple were forced to sign a document that passed the yacht to his name. However, what really happened was that after signing the document, the couple was held hostage. In addition to his wife and Skylar, gang members, always covered by the prison officer, were directly involved in the assaults. In the following days, the team shot the pair, tied them up to anchors and threw them to the bottom of the sea, with the bodies never found again. With the confession, Jennifer was sentenced to life in prison. Alonso was sentenced to 20 years in prison with Myron, who was considered a minority accomplice and sentenced to four years in prison. However, Skylar and John have been sentenced to the death penalty and have since waited for their execution in the death row.++More on cold killers through the works available on AmazonMy Friend Dahmer: Study with a Serial Killer, Derf Backderf (2017) - The Biography, Jeff Guinn (2014) - ... In April 2009, Skylar Julius DeLeon, Jennifer Henderson, Alonso i John Fitzgerald Kennedy (unrelated to his homonymous of the Kennedy's best-known men were convicted on murder-related charges. The case gained some notoriety for involving Deleon, a low-profile former child actor who had a brief extra appearance on the hit youth series Mighty Morphin Power Rangers in the early 1990s. DeLeon was considered the intellectual and material author in the first degree of the crime, tricking the Hawks into using their children as bait to take the retired couple off guard (since with this action, Skylar made the couple believe he was a successful and responsible father). By the time DeLeon and Henderson met the couple, owners of an expensive yacht (valued at $1 million) called by the couple the Deserved, decided to tour the boat together, a situation that was exploited by the actor's accomplices and his partner to reduce and kidnap the couple and then tie them to the anchor of the yacht and throw them into the sea to his death. Before committing the crime, the Hawks were forced to sign a role in which they handed it over to DeLeon and Henderson. The pair were released near Newport Beach Bay in Southern California. The bodies were never located. Skylar DeLeon and his ex-wife Jennifer Henderson were convicted of the murder. DeLeon and Kennedy were sentenced to death, while Henderson was sentenced to two life sentences in prison without parole. A fourth person, Alonso Machain, agreed to an agreement with the prosecutor after testifying for the prosecution in the trials of DeLeon, Henderson and Kennedy. He was sentenced to 20 years and 4 months in prison. Skylar Julius DeLeon (12 August 1979) is an American former child actor. [7] He is the son of John Jacobson Sr., a drug dealer and violent convict. Her mother is Lynette Birchette, a runaway teenage addict who had been abused as a child. DeLeon began acting in small commercial roles as a child. At the age of 14, he appeared in the mighty Morphin Power Rangers as an uncredited extra from Austin St. John in the red suit (due to his great physical resemblance), in the 1994 second-chance episode. Contrary to a widespread popular belief (turned into an urban legend), DeLeon was never a true Power Ranger or part of the official cast; everything is attributed to the sensationalism of certain means to give more relevance to crime. As an adult, DeLeon struggled to remember the lines, and his career woke up as a result. At the age of 20, he joined the U.S. Marine Corps, but deserted only a fortnight later when he decided to escape He was later saved for disobedience. Newport Beach, an area of the murder of Thomas Tom Hawks, 57, and Jackie, 47, had worked all their lives to get early retirement. Tom Hawks was a retired test officer and former bodybuild. Jackie Hawks was his second wife and the mother of his two children, Matt and Ryan. He and Jackie Hawks (born O'Neill and originally from Mentor-on-the-Lake, Ohio) owned a 55-foot yacht, the Well Deserved, which they treated as their permanent home and in which they sailed for two years along the Pacific Ocean and the Gulf of California. In 2004, they decided to sell their yacht and settled in Newport Harbor, to be closer to their grandson in Arizona, the first child of Mr. Hawks's marriage. Jackie had helped raise the children of her teenage years, and regarded the new baby as her true grandson. [11] His announcement of the sale of the ship was answered in November 2004 by Skylar DeLeon. The couple were initially wary of DeLeon, but became closer and more familiar when he brought his then-pregnant Jennifer and their other son to a meeting. [12] With the image of an organized and responsible family man, the Hawks did not hesitate to accept DeLeon's offer: $440,000. The day of their second encounter was the last time Thomas and Jackie Hawks were seen alive. The Hawks were last seen on the morning of November 15, 2004, leaving port. The ship returned, but they never did,[2] and their remains have not been found. [13] Investigation The police began to ask about the disappearance of the couple. On November 26, 2004, an attempt was made to access the Hawks's bank account in Mexico. The family was notified and filed a missing persons complaint with the Carlsbad police department. [2] On 29 November 2004, police met with Skylar DeLeon. He told them he had bought the Hawks' boat and showed them the proof-of-purchase documents. He told police he left the Hawks in his car with his money, but denied being in his car, and named Alonso Machain (a former Deleon prison officer reunited in jail for robbery), as a witness to the purchase. The reason he bought the ship, he said, was that he intended to launder money related to an armed robbery in 2002 for which he had been convicted. [13] In a totally unexpected twist in the case, in March 2005, Machain confessed to the crime and was arrested for being related to the couple's disappearance, along with DeLeon, his wife Jennifer DeLeon and Kennedy. Kennedy declared himself And Skylar DeLeon initially maintained his innocence, claiming that he was not present at the time of the incident and speculating that the couple was murdered by a drug problem that went wrong. [14] Authorities alleged that during a maritime trial at Newport Beach Harbor just days after meeting with the Hawks, DeLeon and his accomplices - Alonso Machain and John Kennedy - tied up and gagged the pair and threw them on board, handcuffed to the yacht's anchor. [15] DeLeon allegedly devised the plan to kill the for-profit couple and persuaded them to help Kennedy (who had served a life sentence for attempted murder) and Machain. Deleon's wife, Jennifer, was convicted of two counts of first-degree murder on November 17, 2006, after just four hours of jury deliberations. In October 2007, Jennifer DeLeon (now called Jennifer Henderson, since her divorce from Skylar DeLeon) was sentenced to two life sentences without the possibility of parole. [18] Awaiting trial in prison, DeLeon was also charged with another attempt to murder his father and cousin. He was accused of killing John Jarvi, 45, a resident of Anaheim, California, who was found cut off on a busy Mexican highway in 2003. Jarvi was charged as an accomplice in Jarvi's murder) were considered important witnesses in both murder cases,[17] enough motivation for DeLeon to decide to attack them, to know too much. On March 13, 2008, DeLeon partially cut off his penis with a knife during his arrest in prison. [19] After receiving medical attention, he was returned to prison the next day. [20] In an interview with ABC 20/20, DeLeon indicated that she was trying to cut off her penis because she wanted to be a woman. In fact, defense attorneys alleged that DeLeon's need for money was to fund a sex change operation, and that was the motivation for the Hawks' murders. [21] On 22 September 2008, jury selection began in the case against Skylar DeLeon. [22] In a consolidated case, DeLeon was jointly tried for the murder of Thomas and Jackie Hawks, as well as for the murder of John Jarvi. Despite DeLeon's previous protests innocence, once the trial began, Deleon's lawyer acknowledged that his client had committed the three accused murders. The lawyer said he had taken the case to trial only to argue before a jury that DeLeon should not be sentenced to death. [23] On October 20, DeLeon was convicted of three counts of first-degree murder and special circumstances for profit and multiple victims[7] and on November 6, 2008, the jury issued a guilty verdict. The sentence was originally scheduled for January 16, 2009, but was then postponed to March 20 at the request of DeLeon's attorney. [25] On 13 March it was announced that the sentence was scheduled until 10 April, so that the victims' family was able to attend. [26] On April 10, 2009, DeLeon was sentenced to death by Orange County Superior Court Judge Frank Fasel, a ruling that the date has not been executed. [27] DeLeon is the inmate of the G56028 and is currently awaiting execution at San Quentin State Prison.
