Michigan plat maps

Michigan Property Search BSA is the largest provider of recording software in Michigan local governments. Verify that your county and/or city or municipality provide a searchable database. Not all local governments are available! Another option is to view your local government's Assessores Office website or contact them by email or phone for other options. Electronic search can be pending e.B. only from guest workstations in the City/Township building. Michigan Assessor and Property Tax Records Directory This is a commercial website filled with ads that provides links to Michigan local government real estate search websites. Use with caution. Its main value is that it can link to websites that are not hosted by BS&A above. The Terms of Use set out certain restrictions on the use and reuse of the data. Ingham County Equalization/Tax Mapping Viewer Page 2 Use Internet Explorer to access historical aerial photographs from Wayne State University. Through a generous donation from DTE, Wayne State University is able to provide researchers with access to digitized copies of aerial photographs of Detroit and the surrounding area for the period 1949 to 1997. The collection consists of a series of low resolution pdf files (72 dpi) and high-resolution (600 dpi) pdf files. Use the links on this site to open a county basemap for a specific year, and then use the links on the basemap to open a photo. Page 3 Sanborn Maps are a great resource for displaying detailed information about city properties. Sanborn Fire Insurance Maps show all buildings, their addresses and in commercial areas the type of business facility in each building. The Map Library has only a 3-band set for Lansing, released in 1953. We purchased computer access to digital images of Michigan Sanborn maps, which includes over 300 towns and villages from 1870-1960. An important difference between the computer database and the original books is that the computer database is only black and white, while the original maps use color to display building materials. Enter the website and select Michigan as the state (it will be the only choice) Drag down the list of 330+ cities. East Lansing appears only as part of the Lansing band of 1913. A page of thumbnails appears. If the space is very small, there may only be a few pages, or even just one page! The Great Cities, on the other hand, will consist of several volumes. Look for the pull-down list to select other volumes in the set. The map scale is so large that only a few fit on each side. All but the smallest cities have an index map of the village or city, which indicates on which side each neighborhood is depicted. Most cities also have a road index that indicates which side each street is depicted on. Once you have found a leaflet, you can select the radio buttons at the top of the screen whether your mouse continues to zoom on the image or the image is getting newer. Also note the ability to resize your display window (see the icon of five blue fields). Page 4 County Atlases will be most useful for viewing rural properties of about 10 hectares and larger. But they often also provide detailed road maps of towns and villages without property information. Atlases published before 1920 were usually large fancy hand-colored affairs. From the 1920s onwards, they shrank dramatically to simple black-and-white brochures. Today, County Plat books are usually published by either Rockford Map Company or Farm & Home, but with county governments developing their own computer systems, Plat atlases can be published themselves instead. Since about 1955 atlases are usually issued every 3-5 years, but there is no strict schedule. The MSU Map Library tries to collect every Michigan County Atlas ever published. The collection is not complete. The Library of Michigan in downtown Lansing also has an excellent collection. The atlases vary in functions depending on the publisher. All circular atlases mark the boundaries of rural properties, note the owner of the property, and the area of the plate. Most atlases will also notice the location of the schools with a small drawing and residences with a small black square. Some atlases contain more details such as the location of barns and other outbuildings, photos of subscribers and directories of residents and businesses. • Created with sketch.
