There was or there were no

According to this site, you need to put an article in front of a singular noun, so my question is, is there no student, is the wrong sentence? No students, it's the right one, right? No student means no student or not all students, because students are a singular noun, so we have to say no to students, no students. There are negative messages there and there is a way to make a confirmation sentence with there and there are these examples of negative sentences used there and there. There is no money in the bank, no information in the file, no Christmas tree in the living room, not a black chair in the shop. There are not many movies to watch online, no fans in the store. There are no white chairs in the restaurant, no improvements whatsoever in 2019, there is no effort to fix the problem, and there is here to make a question there and there are examples of these questions using there and there. Is there a man standing here? Are there footballers in the hotel? Is there a museum in the old town? Is there a lot of food at the party? Any cops around here? Are there many people who work in the bank? Are there two police officers at the station? Are there other factory workers on the construction site? Is there a lot to do? Was there a Great Depression 100 years ago? These are some questions and answers that are there and there are a lot of people in the party? No, there's no food at the party, yes, is there any water left? No, there's not a lot of agents? There are only three questions, how many people? Here's an example of the question used there and how many dogs in the park? How many students are in your class? How many drinks are there in the restaurant? How many people are in concert? How many movies? How many soldiers are in the field? How many patients are in the emergency room? The question is, how much? Here's an example of the question that's being used there and how much money is in your bank account? How many crimes are there in New York? How much pollution is there in China? How much sugar is there in the fridge? How much traffic is there on the way to work? Tag Question: There is, and there is a question, the tag is a declared syntax structure or an unnecessary command becomes an interrogation piece, there was a good movie on Netflix last night not there? Don't you have time to go to the beach? there are Any food? There's a lot of people out today. There's no choice for me, right? There were a lot of people in the concert. Remember that if the sentence is confirmed, the question tag will be deleted, and if the sentence is deleted, the question tag will be confirmed. There are and there are some exercises to practice using there and there are learn more about grammar, there are more grammar lessons in EnglishPost.org me gustaría vivir en un lugar donde no problem hubiera como violencia, atracos u otro tipo de problem. My efforts: 1) I want to live in a place where there are no problems such as violence, robbery or other kinds of problems. This is a few comments, personally, I think this sentence has improved this way: I want to live in a place where there are no problems, such as violence, robbery or something like that. (This is a little official. There are other ways to say this as well.) The sentence you wrote it means there is a problem now. However, they have never been there before. In addition, the meaning is the same in both sentences. Spelling notes: I don't like, for example, instead of liking both correctly, such as my personal preferences about other types of issues... I wonder if you're questioning this kind of question. I agree with kayokid though I think your question about 'no' / 'no' and I would say both are correct. Similarly, 'No...' and 'None...' are both valid in the present. I agree with kayokid though I think your question about 'no' / 'no' and I would say both are correct. Similarly, 'No...' and 'None...' are both right in the present. I'm sorry, ok, you need to log in or register to reply here, Joe's question: What's right? There was lightning and thunder last night' or 'there was lightning and thunder'. BizWritingTip response: This question relates to agreements, matters and verbs. When a sentence begins with there or here, the real story is treated as a word or word that follows the verb. Use a singular verb if the actual subject is singular and plural verb if the actual subject is plural. For example, there are three proposals to write (proposal — true story - as plural, so the verb is). This is a signed agreement (agreement — actual matter is: So the verb is) had lightning last night (lightning is so singular the verb). When you see the word and in the subject, it's called a mixed subject. Always use plural verbs with mixed subjects. For example, there was lightning and thunder last night (lightning and thunder form a mix so that the verb is plural). Frankly, even if this is grammatically correct, it sounds awkward. I'll write a new sentence. For example, we had thunder and lightning last night. The same rules (when and in the verb matter as plural) hold true, even if the sentence does not begin with there or here.
