Homeowners Association Information Before buying into HOA you will want to check your reserve funds, budgets, bylaws, and community rules and restrictions. Make sure that reserves have a sufficient number of reserves in case of serious problems, such as roof repairs, asphalt repairs, pool problems and/or property defects. The monthly costs of the HOA usually cover - landscaping, regular maintenance, management fees, any club amenities such as: pool, spa, gym/gym, safety and/or general electricity area. As for the rules and restrictions of the neighborhood make sure there is nothing that is out of the ordinary - usually the big problem in the homeowners association is parking. Can you park in your own driveway, can you park anywhere in the community and/or can you go back to? You can also check if there are any restrictions on the exterior decor (such as holiday decorations). You can explore the community, documents, disclosures and neighbors before you buy in any unit. Once in your community, you can become an active member and join board meetings, etc. Real estate agents can help you find the right real estate management company chosen by community members and board members, as they tend to change frequently. The agent may also refer you to specific schools in the area (primary, junior high school) We are not affiliated with Cinco Ranch West or any TSN, management company or purchase or sale real estate agent. If you find any errors on our list, please contact us. Also, if you live in a homeowners association and would like to add any information including: floor plans, builder, minutes or additional community functions, please contact us.
