First congregational united church of christ portland

Our calling is to live in god's species more fully by cultivating the community, practicing hospitality, and publicly demonstrating and advancing God's peace. We organise about three major ministries - Community, Hospitality and Peace- where we meet to grow, learn and serve. The first tubular organ of the church (2 manuals, 21 ranks) was built by Hook & Hastings in 1883. It was moved from the previous building of the first congregation when the current building was completed in 1895. This mechanical action body was replaced by an electro-pneumatic Casavant (3 manuals, 30 series) in the 1950s. Our current tubular body was designed and built by our current organist, Grant Edwards, in collaboration with Bond Organ Builders. It includes a windchests and belly system from previous Casavant, as well as casework and front tubes built by Odell in 1877. Although it seems seemingly original to the church, this work was installed in 2005, having been rescued from the Church of the Old Virgin Mary in Oakland, California. The front pipes, all of which they say were painted and stenciled by Grant Edwards. The tool includes a mixture of vintage and new pipes, including the Great Open Diapason built by Hook & Hastings in the Victorian era.
