T'i ch'nh Bloomberg Reuters SEC submits Lấy từ Home Depot believes in a data-based model to find customer information, so they have combined all their customer data into a single customer profile. Ranjeet Bhosale, Director of Online Analytics and Business Analytics, explained the process. Rather than separating metrics from online and offline channels, we focus on capturing everything including website activity, in-store sales, call center volume, return volume, cancellation of orders, and more, allowing us to make better decisions to improve the customer experience at all points of contact. Home Depot can now see its customers' 360-degree profile. With all this data working together, Home Depot needs a way to get it in front of the customer. So they prototype and created a revolutionary new solution that uses what every customer already has a mobile phone. Customers can now enter their listings into the Home Depot app. Once they reach the store, the app directs them to the right aisle and the bin room to find the right kitchen faucet, sledgehammer, or a tube of liquid nails. From the same screen, customers can read reviews, follow how to video, and get detailed information about the product. The app helps us generate sales by interacting with our customers, says Susan. eBayHome - GardenHome ImprovementBuilding - EquipmentDors and Door Hardware About This Seller Linked Items to consider
