At the end of the book, students will be able to: • identify all the letters of the Arabic alphabet in isolated and engaged forms • know the differences between long and short negatives and how to read them , including songs diphthongs '-ay' and '-ow'• read the endings from tanween • understand the role of sukoon and shadda • read words containing hamza, no matter where it is in a word • recognize alif al-maqsurah • identify the sun and moon letters and understand their influence on the pronunciation of words identified by 'al-'• read the full arabic text Although this work is primarily devoted to use in the classroom, it is also well suited for self-study. To this end, an audio CD recording of all the materials in the book will be made available to help foster good pronunciation. This spreadsheet assumes no prior knowledge of Any Arabic. A clear, simple explanation introduces each new topic, supported by a wealth of exercises and activities, thus helping to strengthen the learning process and ensure rapid progression. The use of color coding to highlights each point being discussed, as well as including quality color illustrations, catering to enhance learning experience. The materials include providing extensive reading and writing practice as well as opportunities for spell reading exercises as a means to track the progress of the reader. At the end of the book, students must be able to read and write Arabic scripts in order to progress to part two of the series in which they will begin learning Arabic grammar and vocabulary; read and build verses with understanding; and began to speak this important international language.
