Basil LaCroix was one of those old-time great Magicians who learned by the pragmatics of worldly travels in lieu of theoretics found in most books. Basil spent his youth in a circus among the main artists as pure romany, all members of the Manouche Tribe revering Sara The Black Virgin & Jacques deMolay. The leading witch doctor taught him many of Magick's tricks. He also learned many strange spells from an Australian Aboriginal witch. In the late 1960s, he masterminded 'coven style' paranormal groups consisting of 6 or 7 women, reaching very advanced stages of development, such as producing realistic Apports using thought-pronged bodywork, just mindblowing things. His teachings provoked a lot of jealousy in paranormal society, who wanted this kind of thing to be kept secret.
