As a buyer, you won't necessarily have to prepare a lot of documents, especially if you pay a second-hand vehicle for cash sale. That said, here are the common and essential documents that you need at hand: 1. Check whether the vehicle ownership pre-purchase would be paid through financing, you need to issue a check to the special company. This is an assurance that you would be paying taxes on time because the returned checks come with penalties, and can be used against you in court. Some companies would require them to issue monthly post-dated checks for a year or two, or for the number of years you would have the car funded. However, here are the controls that may or might not be acceptable: bank check; Pre-approved verification of the loan; Cashier's check; Personal check. Note that these controls can also be used if you pay in full. This will depend solely on the agreement between you and the seller. In addition, the type of verification will also depend on the approval or requirement of the financing company. 2. Proof of identity and residence If you pay Suzuki Vitara in cash or in terms, proof of residence and identity would be required from you. Usually, your driver's license would be the only id you would ask for because it is complete with information. Some may also require other ID cards, as well as evidence of utility bills. Not only are these documents important to you to prove that you are the real person, but the information would also be used for the realization of the notarial act of sale. The act of sale is proof number one that you have already purchased the legal vehicle. That's it! In fact, No. Documents that you need from the person you buy that drive Yes, you have filled out the documents you need, but buying a used car is a 2-way process. What we mean is that the seller should also prepare the necessary documents. This is the only way the car would be sold legally, and for you to transfer ownership of the car under your name. Here's a rundown: 1. Title of the notary car with the date of sale, the reading odometer, the price, and the signature of both the seller and the buyer. This is a binding contract between two and usually done after the deal has been done. 2. The registration certificate containing the chassis and engine numbers of the car. This should match the actual numbers on the vehicle itself. 3. Insurance policy to ensure that it will be transferred to your name. As such, if you have to benefits in the future would not have any problems. 4. Maintenance program: The best pre-owned machine to buy is the one that has been maintained well by trusted service centers. As such, you should request this document as proof that the model you are considering has been regularly taken care of by the service centers authorized by Suzuki Philippines. Also, brand-new cars always come with a warranty that includes regular maintenance. If the car is still guaranteed, then you need the maintenance program for the obvious reason that you can have free maintenance from the dealer. 5. Receiving from the seller. Generally, a private car owner selling their car will not be able to issue a purchase receipt. However, you can request proof of payment, it would be a handwritten paper specifying the amount received and the date, plus the seller's name, signature and identification number. 6. Notarial act of sale by car: Brand, model, and year; Body type; Engine number, vehicle iD and registration number; OR/CR numbers; Date of sale; Price; Addresses, names and signatures of the buyer and seller. Never forget the documents! We at Philkotse.com understand that most of us hate papers. It takes time and effort. However, this is the only way to ensure that the used car you purchased will be yours legally. So, in cases of incidents or when the time comes, you have to resell it, it wouldn't have any problems. So you're browsing Philkotse.com looking for the second hand Suzuki Vitara for sale in Metro Manila, you might be wondering you'd learn more about the drive you're interested in. With so many options, you never want to go wrong and end up with a vehicle that is not on par with what you want and need. You can look at all the features, but if you want to dig deeper and understand the construction of the car and make sure you find the right spare parts in the future, decoding the vehicle identification number (VIN) may be the key. Look through our quick tip on Philkotse.com to learn to decode the VIN for better inspection when choosing your next car. VIN has numbers and letters totalling 17 and is present in vehicles manufactured from 1981 to the present day. Each VIN is unique to each unit, and each number and letter has a specific meaning. You can find the VIN of the car in different locations. The easiest to see is the one on the car's dashboard. It is located right at the bottom of the windshield, on the driver's side. It can also be found on the plastered sticker on the side door of the Auto. Other locations include the engine block, the lower part of the hood and the wing. For the newer Suzuki Vitara, VIN can also be found in the electronic devices of the car. In addition, you can also find VIN on the car insurance card, as well as the manufacturer's website. 2. Decoding VIN In order to decode vIN from pre-owned Suzuki Vitara, you need to know what what letters and numbers represent or mean. The world manufacturer's number (first 3 characters) The first character represents the country from which the unit was manufactured. it is designated by the Society of Auto Engineers. Here's a guide for you: Africa: A to H Asia: From J to R (except O and Q) Europe: S to Z North America: 1 to 5 New Zealand or Australia: 6 or 7 South America: 8 or 9 The second character represents the manufacturer, while the third is the specific division of the manufacturer. The vehicle descriptor (characters 4-8) The following 5 characters provide information about the type and size of the vehicle engine, as well as the type of model, restraint, transmission and bodywork. These characters have different meanings, depending on the brand of the car. As such, the number one for Suzuki Philippines will be different from the number one of another brand. Character number 9 The number of characters 9 or the verification figure is the security code of the machine, so it is provided by the manufacturer. Vehicle identification section (characters 10-17) The tenth character is the year in which the vehicle was manufactured and there is a table used for it. The 11th character refers to the specific installation in which the machine was manufactured, while the other characters are the serial number of the machine. Decoding is fun! It might be a daunting task to decode the vehicle's VIN, but it's fun at the same time! That's because you would know the car more and you are sure you can go with maintenance and repairs efficiently. With that said, some manufacturers have come decoding platforms that you can use. There are also sites that decode FREE VINs. Thank you for considering Philkotse.com as a source for finding second-hand vehicles for sale at a cheap price.
