ASCII Media Works has published 22 novels since February 2006 under the footsteps of Dengeki Bunko. ASCII Media Works reports that as of October 2008, more than 2.2 million copies of the first nine novels have been sold in Japan. [1] The series is referred to as a unique fantasy by the Mainichi Shimbun because of its plot that focuses on economics, commerce, and peddling rather than fantasy staples such as swords and magic. [2] Yen Press licensed the light novel and released it in English in North America. [3] ASCII Media Works has published three volumes of the light spin-off novel series Wolf and Parchment since September 2016. A manga adaptation illustrated by Keito Koume began serialized in the November 2007 issue of seinen manga magazine ASCII Media Works Dengeki Maoh. The manga is licensed by Yen Press, which has begun releasing volumes in English. A 12-episode anime adaptation aired between January and March 2008, plus an original animated video (OVA) episode released in May 2008. [5] The second OVA was released in April 2009 as a prequel to the second anime season of Spice and Wolf II, which aired 12 episodes between July and September 2009. Both anime seasons were released in English by Kadokawa Pictures USA and Funimation. Two visual novels based on the series for DS was released by ASCII Media Works in June 2008 and September 2009. The story of Spice and Wolf Plot tells the story of Kraft Lawrence, a 25-year-old itinerant merchant who peddles various goods from city to city to make a living in a fictional world of style, set in a historical setting with European influences. [6] Her main goal in life is to raise enough money to start her own shop, and she has been traveling for seven years while gaining experience in trading. One night while stopping in the town of Pasloe, he found in his cart a wolf god named Holo who was more than 600 years old. He takes the form of a 15-year-old girl, except for the tail and ears of a wolf. She introduced herself as the city's harvest goddess, which has made her blessed with a good wheat harvest over the years. Holo has experienced increased isolation and disillusionment at the move of the city's residents away from its protection of their own methods of increasing the harvest. He was deeply hurt by forgetting the promise made between him and a farmer when he arrived in the village and their criticism of him as a fickle god for needing to replenish the land with a smaller harvest. Because of this change, he wanted to return to his homeland in the north called Yoitsu; he believed the people had abandoned him and that he had kept his promise to maintain a good harvest. Holo also wants to travel to see how the world has changed while he stays in one place for years. He managed to bid his way out of the village by making a deal with Lawrence to take him with him. When they travel, his wisdom helps increase his profits, but at the same time, his true nature attracts unwanted attention from the Church. Kraft Lawrence character (クラフ・ロレンス Kurafuto Rorensu) Voiced by: Jun Fukuyama (Japanese); J. Michael Tatum (English) Kraft Lawrence, who mainly goes by 'Lawrence', is a 25-year-old itinerant trader who goes from town to town buying and selling things for a living. When he was twelve, he became an apprentice to a merchant relative, and set out on his own at the age of eighteen. Her goal in life is to raise enough money to start her own shop, and she has been traveling for seven years while gaining experience in trading. He met Holo one night and finally agreed to travel with him. He helps her by giving her wisdom that helps increase her profits and get her out of traffic. As the series progresses, both Lawrence and Holo show a growing affection for each other. Although Lawrence rarely shows different facial expressions, she Care about Holo. He showed his affection through his actions, such as when Holo was arrested by the Church and Lawrence was completely panicked. Holo[7][8][9][a] (ホロ, Horo) Voiced by: Ami Koshimizu (Japanese); Brina Palencia (UK) Holo is a wolf harvest it comes from a place in the north known as Yoitsu, which draws parallels with the legendary land of Hyperborea. He made an appointment with residents of a town called Pasloe that he would make sure the city would have a good wheat harvest year after year. However, as time went on, the townsweilers slowly began searching for the Holo, deeming it unnecessary, and resented the occasional bad harvest that Holo told Lawrence was necessary to rest the land. Thus, Holo fled the city in Lawrence's wagon and began traveling with him to see how much the world had changed since he was in Pasloe. Holo has chosen the shape of a 15-year-old girl,[11] although she still retains a large white-tipped wolf tail, ears, and two sharp fangs. Sometimes he can produce bullets that destroy the ears. Its original form was a very large wolf that many people feared. In the anime he as a wolf is seen about 30 feet from the ground to his shoulder in episode 1, and about 10 feet tall in a ditch in episode 6. In the novel he is big enough to carry Lawrence like a horse, and he can easily jump over Ruvinheigen's walls, but small enough to get into Hans Remelio's office with Remelio and Lawrence. In human form, she has a strange way of speaking, modeled afterwards from a high-class prostitute oiran. [12] He is able to talk to humans as wolves. Holo loves delicious food and alcohol, but he always likes something new in every novel. In volume 1 it is an apple. At volume 2 it is an eel (i.e. a lamprey). He is proud of his tail and takes special care of it, constantly combing and keeping it. In the novel, volume 1, page 65, is depicted hanging past the back of his knee. In the anime it is longer and reaches almost to its ankles. Holo refers to himself as Holo The Wise Wolf (ヨイツの賢狼, Yoitsu no Kenrō, Wise Wolf of Yoitsu). She is usually very arrogant and independent, although due to her hundreds of years of isolation in Pasloe, she gradually feels very lonely, and sometimes shows a more fragile side of herself. She relies on Lawrence for company because she fears loneliness, which is something Lawrence is well aware of and tries to comfort her in her own way. Holo is also well aware of the different timeframes he and Lawrence have, because human lifespan is like the blink of an eye for his kind. Holo is quite afraid of that fact, but hides it with jokes. Although she joked about her affection for Lawrence at first, she slowly but surely fell in love with him. At the end of the series, Holo settles down with Lawrence and they a daughter, Myuri, who inherits her mother's traits and is the main character of the sequel light novel Wolf and Parchment. [13] Yarei (古レイ) yarei is a light novel character and manga special. He is a Pasloe farmer and has a long history Dealing with Lawrence. On the day Lawrence passed Pasloe Yarei caught a wolf in the city's annual harvest festival. Instead Holo fled to a larger pile of wheat in Lawrence's cart. When they meet again in Pazzo, Yarei certainly knows holo's whereabouts. He then reciprocated his faith in modern methods and tried to hand it over to the Church because it was burning. Chloe (クロエ, Kuroe) Voiced by: Kaori Nazuka (Japanese); Jamie Marchi (UK) Chloe is an anime-original character. He is a resident of pasloe village and has known Lawrence for a long time. In fact, Lawrence taught him how to be a merchant. He has little interest in Lawrence, but tries to push that feeling away. Although still don't know how she feels about him, she respects him as his teacher and best friend. Their friendship then breaks down when Chloe allies with the Church to capture Holo and Lawrence. She replaces Yarei in the anime both to fill the plothole where Holo has no knowledge of Yarei but tells Lawrence about him, and to deepen the drama when Chloe turns on Lawrence, her former teacher and old friend. In the anime when Chloe leads a sewer attack on Lawrence and Holo, Holo has a chance to kill Chloe, but refrains from doing so. Nora Arendt (ノーラ・アレンツ, Nōra Arento) Voiced by: Mai Nakahara (Japanese); Leah Clark (England) Nora makes her first appearance in volume two of the novel. He was a skilled shepherd of a church-town named Ruvinheigen. His companion in this profession is a trained sheep dog named Enek (Enekk in the anime). Lawrence entrusted him with the difficult task of smuggling gold after they met. After the mission is complete, Nora gets enough funds to run herself from the Church. Fermi Amarti (フェルミ・アマーティ, Ferumi Amāti) Voiced by: Saeko Chiba (Japanese); Ryan Reynolds (English) Amarti, who liked Lawrence especially going by his surname for business, made his first appearance in volume three of the novel. He was a young man who worked as a fish broker. He had a crush on Holo, and proposed to him. Because of Holo's good acting, he believed he was a gentle, kind and softly spoken, polite young woman. After listening to Holo's false story about being Lawrence's travel companion because he owed him a great debt (none), Amarti attempted to buy his freedom and win Holo by publicly declaring a contractual agreement with Lawrence at the merchant guild. However, he lost almost everything emotionally and financially after the crash of the price of pirit and Holo's dedication to standing by Lawrence. According to Marc, because of the method in which he built his wealth, Amarti looked down on connections and acquaintances forged by other traders, and believed embarrassing to use those connections to secure a deal. Dian Diana Rubens (ディアン・ルーゴンス, Dian Dian) Voiced by: Akeno Watanabe (Japanese); Colleen Clinkenbeard (English) Dian, who first appeared in volume three of the novel, is a chronicler, living in a Kumersun-walled ghetto with other suspects such as alchemists. He loved collecting Fairy tales and Pagan beliefs and had written them into a set of books. Lawrence came to him asking for information about Holo's birthplace, Yoitsu. Because Dian sounded like a masculine name, Lawrence didn't initially recognize it as the chronicle she was looking for. Thus, she asked Lawrence to call her Dianna. According to Holo, Dian is not a human, but a bird even bigger than Lawrence. He fell in love with a roving priest and spent several years helping him build a church, but left because he noticed that he never seemed to get old and became suspicious. Due to his solemn and noble bearings and somewhat mature appearance, it can logically be assumed that he may be much older than holo. The influence seems to be quite widespread. As Marc states, he protects alchemy living in ghettos; anyone who wants to get to them has to go through him, the implied task becomes very difficult. As for the feathers scattered around his shop, it is not known if he changes frequently, or has only a pair of wings hidden by his robe, as does the Holo with its ears and tail. Marc Cole (マルク・コール, Maruku Kōru) Voiced by: Rikiya Koyama (Japanese); Ian Sinclair (England) Marc Cole is a city trader, a wheat seller in Kumersun. He and his student, EU Landt, help Lawrence in his contest with Amarti, and provide dialogue to Lawrence and Holo. Marc is about eight to ten years older than Lawrence and is very proud of his little shop and his family. He tried to hold his good name in their interest, although he clearly went to great lengths to help Lawrence in any way he could. He was also the first trader in a long time that Lawrence realized and accepted as a true friend and not just a business associate. Eve Boland (エーブ, Ebu) Voiced by: Romi Park (Japan); Stephanie Young (English) Robbed and shrouded in mystery, Eve is a merchant from the port city of Lenos. Due to past events, this trader is wary of almost everyone and goes about his trade dressed as a man. Although difficult to approach, Eve speaks under the right circumstances and has a keen eye for people and businesses. She was actually a fallen nobleman who was once sold as a bride to another trader after the fall of her family. He slowly laundered money from her and when she died, she started her own business. He organized a covert smuggling operation with the church. leave him after he feels that they don't need his cooperation anymore then make a contract with Lawrence. His real name is Fleir von Eiterzentral Mariel Boland. Novels Media Light See also: List of light novels Spice and Wolf Spice and Wolf begins as series of novels written by Isuna Hasekura, illustrated by Jū Ayakura. Initially, Hasekura entered the first novel in the series into the Twelfth Dengeki Novel Prize ASCII Media Works in 2005 and the novel won the Silver Prize. [14] ASCII Media Works published 17 novels between February 10, 2006 and July 10, 2011 under their Dengeki Bunko prints. [15] The tagline for the novels is Spicy Wolf Merchant Meat.[15] engrish example. The novelist has commented that what the meat in the tagline really means is kept secret, alluding to the possibility of a deliberate spelling mistake from meeting. [16] In celebration of the series' 10th anniversary, Hasekura began writing a sequel to Dengeki Bunko's 49th volume released on April 9, 2016. [17] In 2016, the publication of new books in the series continued with the release of the eighteenth volume, along with the start of the spin-off series Wolf and Parchment: New Theory Spice & Wolf.[b] which focused on the characters Cole and Myuri, Lawrence and holo's daughter. In September 2008, the novel was licensed by Yen Press for distribution in English. [3] The first volume was released in December 2009, and a new volume was released every four months. [1] While Yen Press redesigned the cover of the first novel, a dust jacket that retained the original cover art was released to select online retailers.[18] and Yen Press also incorporated the same jacket in the December 2009 issue of their manga anthology magazine Yen Plus. [19] Despite the different cover art, the illustrations in the novel remain unchanged. [19] Yen Press later announced that the volume of the series and future reprints of the first volume would retain the original artwork while dust jackets would carry new covers, noting that the redesigned cover was requested by the retailer to attract a wider audience. [20] Yen Press has also licensed the Wolf and Parchment series. [21] Manga See also: Spice and Wolf chapter list A manga adaptation illustrated by Keito Koume began serialized in the November 2007 issue of seinen manga magazine ASCII Media Works Dengeki Maoh. The first tankōbon volume was released by ASCII Media Works under their Dengeki Comics print on March 27, 2008; 16 volumes have been published as of February 2018. Yen Press licensed the manga series at Nova York Comic Con 2009, and began releasing the series in English in North America. [22] A manga adaptation of Wolf and Parchment by Hidori began serializing in the July 2019 issue of Dengeki Maoh. [23] Internet radio featured an Internet radio show hosted by Animate called Ōkamikku Radio (オオカミックラジオ) airing ten episodes between December 7, 2007 and April 25, 2008. [24] One episode airs weekly on Fridays, and the show is intended to be primarily anime series. The show was hosted by Jun Fukuyama who played Kraft Lawrence in the anime, and Koshimizu plays Holo. [25] The show contains eight corners, or parts of each broadcast that includes news about series, commentary, and posts from listeners, and radio dramas. The second radio show titled Ōkamikku Radio II aired ten episodes between June 10 and October 28, 2009 with the same producer and host. Anime See also: List of Spice and Wolf episodes An anime television series adaptation produced by animation studio Imagin aired in Japan between January 9 and March 26, 2008 on japanese television network Chiba TV; [26] Twelve of the thirteen episodes were broadcast, with episode seven being an exclusive DVD. [27] The episodes were released on a six-volume compilation DVD in Japan; volume one contains three episodes while the next volume contains two episodes each. [5] The volume was released between April 2, 2008 and August 29, 2008 by Pony Canyon in Japan; volume three contains original video animation episodes (OVA) in addition to episode six of the television broadcast. [5] The series' Blu-ray Disc box set was released on January 30, 2009. [28] The series is directed by Takeo Takahashi, written by Naruhisa Arakawa, and character design is provided by Kazuya Kuroda. Takahashi is cited as a big fan of the novels. [29] The opening theme is Tabi no Tochū (途中) by Natsumi Kiyoura, and the ending theme is Ringo Hiyori: The Wolf Whistling Song (リンゴ日和 ~The Wolf Whistling Song) by Rocky Chack; both maxi singles were released on February 6, 2008. [30] The anime's original soundtrack was released on March 12, 2008. The anime was licensed for english release by Kadokawa Pictures USA and Funimation Entertainment.[31][32] and the full thirteen-episode DVD box set was released on December 22, 2009. The series debuted on North American television on November 16, 2010 on the Funimation Channel. [33] The anime's second season titled Spice and Wolf II aired twelve episodes in Japan between July 9 and September 24, 2009. [34] Most of the staff from the first season returned, with the exception of Toshimitsu Kobayashi replacing Kazuya Kuroda as character designer and lead animation director, and Spice and Wolf II animated by Brain's Base and Marvy Jack instead of Imagin. The voice actors from the first season retained their roles. [35] Another OVA, animated by Brain's Base and Marvy Jack, released bundled with a picture book titled Spice and Wolf: Wolf and Gold Wheat (「狼と辛料」狼と金の麦古, Okami to Kōshinryō Okami to Kin no Mugihō) was written and illustrated by the creators of the same light novel and released by ASCII Media Works on April 30, 2009 under the prints of their Visual Buns. [36] Funimation licensed Spice and Wolf II[37] and released the series in English on August 30, 2011. The second season debuted north American television on August 31, 2011 in Funimation Channel. [38] On September 11, 2012, Funimation released Blu-ray/DVD combo packages from both seasons. April 30, 2009 OVA is included on the second season disc as episode 00. [39] A visual novel of dating and business simulation based on the series was released on June 26, 2008 as Spice and Wolf: Holo's and My One Year (狼と辛料 ボクとホロの一年, Okami to Kōshinryō Boku to Horo no Ichinen). [40] The game was created by ASCII Media Works which can be played on Nintendo DS. [41] The game was released on the same day in limited and regular editions; Limited editions are sold at higher prices, but come with life-size Holo posters, among others. [43] A second dating and business simulation visual novel was released on September 17, 2009 titled Spice and Wolf: The Wind That Stretches across the Sea (狼と辛料海料, Okami to Kōshinryō Umi o Wataru Kaze). [44] The game was re-created by ASCII Media Works and can be played on Nintendo DS. Players once again took on the role of Kraft Lawrence. A virtual reality visual novel titled Spice and Wolf VR (狼と辛料VR, Okami to Kōshinryō VR) created by Spicy Tails, a dōjin group founded by Isuna Hasekura, was released on June 3, 2019[45] for Microsoft Windows supporting the Oculus Rift and HTC Vive VR headsets as well as the Oculus Go headsets Then released for Nintendo Switch and PlayStation 4 on September 5, 2019, supporting Nintendo Labo VR Kit and PlayStation VR respectively. [46] A port to the Oculus Quest headset has also been announced, as well as a sequel that comes on an unknown date. [46] ASCII Media Works reported that as of November 2009, more than 3.5 million copies of the first twelve novels had been sold. [1] The light novel series has been ranked three times in Takarajimasha Kono Light Novel ga Sugoi's light novel guidebook! published annually: first in 2007, and fifth in 2008 and 2009; in the 2007 edition, Holo won Best Female Character. [47] The first manga volume of an English release in North America debuted at No. 4 on the New York Times Best Seller Manga list.[48] while the third volume reached No. 3. [49] In April 2008, cafe helper Cafe with Cat in Akihabara, Tokyo, Japan hosted a special themed event called Cafe with Wolf for a three-day period between April 4 and April 6. [50] The show included three new items on the menu and was tied up with sales of the first anime DVD volume to go on sale 2 April 2008. People who buy from The Comic Toranoana akhabara honten store (which is on the first floor under Cafe with Cat) and bring their shared receipt to Cafe with Wolf put in the lottery to win rare Spice and Wolf items. [51] Footnote notes and references ^ Regarding the spelling of the Holo name, Yen Press has stated that they were instructed that the proper spelling of the character name was indeed Holo by a Japanese licensor.
