Baby crib converse size guide

Few things as exciting as preparing a new child and buying a crib are essential to your to-do list. Between naps and bedtime, the baby spends a good part of the day in a crib, so caregivers need to ensure that it is a safe and comfortable place for a little while. With so many cribs to choose from, picking the best may seem overwhelming, especially for the first time for parents. We did our research and our top five cribs here, but first read the full guide to learn about buying the best cribs for you and your little one. Types of cots First of all, we examine the main types of cribs on the market. StandardStandard cribs around the edges of four fixed-sized vertical slats. They are only suitable for infants and toddlers right up to the point when they outfly the crib (or decide they like to climb the sides), which is usually around 24 months. Convertible Convertible cribs can be converted into a toddler bed - and sometimes a weekly or full-size bed - if the little man has outgrown the crib stage. If you don't mind doing a little DIY to convert them, this could be an affordable option as convertible cribs usually cost about the same price as similar standard cribs. TravelTravel crib is soft-sided and easy to unpack and pop-up, perfect if you are going on vacation or on visits with relatives. However, you can not have the baby's main crib, so you will not focus on them in the guide. A note on the drop-side cribDrop-side crib, where one or both long sides slide down, is supposed to make it easier to get the baby out. However, it turned out that these cribs were unsafe and led to a number of infant deaths. As of December 29, 2012, it has been illegal to manufacture or sell drop side cribs, so theoretically, you won't come across one. Even so, it's worth mentioning, in case you see a used drop side crib, or someone trying to pass one on to you as a hand-me-down. Criteria for choosing a crib Adjustable mattress heightMany cots adjustable mattress height. If you set the mattress to the highest setting, it is easier to lift the baby out of the crib. However, if the baby is able to pull himself up and stand in the crib, holding onto the rails, it becomes dangerous that the mattress is too high as it falls out. To get to the safe side, you can adjust the crib mattress to the lowest height setting when your baby reaches six months old. CautionIf you are using a baby monitor, make sure it is far from the child, especially if it has any cords or removable parts. STAFFBestReviewsBaby crib should be the right size to make a standard crib mattress - measuring 27 1/4 cm wide 51 5/8 cm long - fits tightly inside. Although non-standard sized and shaped cots (e.g. round or oval cots) are found, opting for a regular, rectangular model that finding a well-fitting mattress is not a hassle. Did you know? Common mistakes when buying a crib include buying a visible one with an ad or choosing one based on how it looks in your nursery. Consider the functionality of the crib and baby's needs above all else. STAFFBestReviewsThe last thing you want is for your baby's crib to fall apart around them while they sleep. Or any component that comes loose or falls off the use, as this can be extremely dangerous. Choose a stable and well-built crib that lasts for two or more years to get your child to sleep in it. Baby crad bay safety tipsAll parents are a primary concern for the child's safety. A crib can be a dangerous place for a baby if you're not careful, so we've compiled some notes on safety. Look for JPMA certified cribs. This means that the crib meets or exceeds that of the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC) and the American Society for Testing and Materials (AMERICAN Society for Testing and Materials). Make sure you can't fit more than two fingers between the crib mattress and the side of the crib. If you can, you need a bigger mattress. Never use bumpers, pillows, duvets or blankets in the baby's cradle and do not let the baby sleep with a stuffed sream. They're all choking hazards. Swad the baby or put it in a wearable blanket. Use well-fitting sheets on your baby's mattress. If they loosen up, your baby could get entrapped and drown. If you are not 100% sure you can put together a crib properly for yourself, resort to the help of a handy friend or hire a professional to do it. In the long run, it's worth the peace. Place the baby's crib away from windows, blinds, curtains, wall hangings and other similar hazards. The slats and posts on the crib should not be more than 2 3/8 cm apart, so the baby can not stick to the head. If you can pass a normal soda between them, they're too far apart. Baby crib price Expect to pay $90 to $500 for an average crib, but I know you won't find a huge difference in features between the cheapest models and more expensive ones. The main difference between basic cribs and high-end models is the construction quality and materials. Top-of-the-line cribs tend to be extremely durable and built with quality wood - the kind of thing you can pass on for generations - and some can be aesthetically pleasing. For example, you may find high-end cots similar to traditional vintage models, but they meet the latest safety standards. Tips Having at least two people around to put together a crib is highly recommended, both to make assembly easier and guarantee the final product baby-ready. Since infants are known to shake and rattle their cribs, it is recommended to regularly the hardware of the crib crib Make sure nothing came loose or broken. If you purchase a painted bed, check the paint regularly to make sure it is not chipping or peeling. When the crib and crib mattress first arrive and combine, make sure they fit together tightly. If you can place more than two fingers between the mattress and the crib, the mattress is not large enough. FAQ. Do cots come with mattresses? A. No, you usually have to buy a crib mattress separately. The standard size crib mattress fits perfectly into a standard sized crib, however, you may want to check your fit carefully. Q. I like the look of cribs with cut-out patterns on headrests and footrests - are they safe? A. Babies can get body parts or clothing stuck with cut-out patterns of headrests and footrests. This poses a real risk of injury or even suffocation, so for safety reasons, stick to models with smooth slats. Q. What else should I check before I put my baby in the crib for the first time? A. If you are sure that the crib is strong and properly constructed, meets safety standards, there is no cutout or drop side, and there are properly distributed slats, the only thing you need to do is ensure that there are no shards or rough edges to the tree and no peeling paint.
