More often than not, eBay sellers and buyers aily enjoy a smooth sales process. When a customer wins an eBay listing (or jumped to a higher Buy It Now price), they tend to pay for the item quickly, and most sellers ship it just as quickly. Sometimes, however, monetization of eBay sales may be more involved. Since the company does not require automatic or immediate payment at the time of purchase, it is up to the buyer to take the step of actually issuing the payment. If a buyer doesn't send a payment within two days of securing their purchase, sending an invoice on eBay is a gentle way to remind them to make a payment. Here's how to send your invoice on eBay.
