or to record your success. Complete! & It; > Click the grid below to get started! Update PASSWORD NOTE: You'll need to update your password before you can log on. Where is my puzzle? All of your puzzles are accessible from the 'My Puzzle' page, which you can access using the navigation bar at the top when you log in. Make sure you're signed in using the same email address you used when you created your puzzle. How do I print? There is a 'Make Printable' button on the top left of your puzzle that will allow you to sign up for a plan or buy a single puzzle. Once paid, the button will turn into a 'Preview + Publish' button that will put your puzzle in a printable or resolved format online. Once you publish your puzzle, you can click the print icon or use the print functionality of your browser. Looks strange when printed. First make sure you've published your puzzle. See the section 'How do I print?' above for more information.99% of other printing issues have something to do with printer settings. Instead of trying to distinguish with printer settings, which can be time-consuming and frustrating, there are some workarounds you can try. You can try printing from another browser, because different browsers have different default print settings. Alternatively, you can try saving as a PDF (next to the print icon) and the print. Why isn't this free? We invest in building some premium features that a free website can't offer: the ability to automatically or manually add words to your puzzle, editing your saving puzzle, the ability to access your puzzles from any computer, non-shattered and ad-free interface, the ability for friends and colleagues to solve your puzzles online, and responsive Crossword Hobbyist is the lowest pricing service we can find that provides these features , and designed for people who are unhappy with what free websites can provide. I think this is free. We're sorry you think Crossword Hobbyist is free, which must be disappointing. We constantly strive to provide a clear and convenient user experience, and we're not trying to hide prices: on a page where you make your puzzle, the price is listed in the overview at the top left (before you log in), below the 'Make Printable' button (after you log in), in the FAQ below the grid, as well as on the tour. Unfortunately, we have limited control over how we appear on Google and on other websites, so if they show Hobbyist when someone searches for a free site, we can't do anything about it. It says there are no accounts with my emails. First check whether you're using another email address to create your account. Your login email is the email address where you received a welcome email from us. Alternatively, there is a possibility of a tycoon in your email when you create your account. If so, report the issue below gives the name and last four digits on the card you used when you signed up. We will use this information to track your account. I was asked to pay a second time. If you are a member of Crossword Hobbyist and are still being asked for payment, then you may accidentally create a second account. Your paid account will have an email address where you received an email confirming your subscription. If you've never received such an email, or still can't find your paid account, report the issue below and give it the last name and four digits on the card you used when you signed up. We will use this information to track your account. My password reset doesn't work. For human security can't see or reset your password, so read the information below carefully. If you haven't got a password reset email, check your spam folder, be sure to check the email accounts sent by email and be aware that some school email systems block email from non-school email addresses. If you have a password reset email but the password isn't accepted, be sure to use the most recent password reset email: sometimes people will hit the button twice, and only the second password will work. Make sure if you copy paste the password not to get space outside, or if you type it needs to be remembered that it's case sensitive and L lower cases can look like number 1, etc. How do I cancel? You can cancel your subscription from the 'My Account' page, which you can access using the navigation bar at the top when you log in. Support representatives can't cancel a subscription on your behalf. Not all of my words are in my puzzle. When you press the 'Arrange' button, our algorithm will try to organize all your words on the grid, and will transfer words to try to load the most words. This will get all the words on the grid about 90% of the time, depending on the list of words. For 10%, you'll get a warning explaining that a word that doesn't fit has been added to the scratchpad. It prints on two pages. Big puzzles won't always be printed on one page - leads and grids are the smallest we can make them while ensuring they can be read for everyone. That said, different browsers print in a slightly different way, so you can try using 'print previews' using another browser (or try a PDF button) to see if you like how it looks better.
