Kanye West's passion for his project with Adidas, however, is something special. The notoriously special rapper has clearly poured into the clothes and shoes he designed with the athletic brand, attracting the attention of an audience that spans the top 40 teens listening to haute couture publishers. While a handful of Yeezy Season 1 sneaker styles - the official title of collab - have been released to the public, most of what the artist/designer/presidential candidate (oh, Kanye) showed during last season's Fashion Week will not be released until October 29. Below, we break down everything we know about Yeezy Season 1 shopping, including prices and retailers. What is Yeezy Season 1? Yeezy Season 1 is a collaborative effort between Kanye West and Adidas. This is the rapper's first collection for the German sports brand, and it includes sneakers and clothing for men and women. The line kicked off on February 12 as part of the New York Fashion Week Fall/Winter 2015 collection season with a fashion show that included a first-row A-list, a new Kanye track, and heavy influence from Raf Simons, Rick Owens, and Helmut Lang. During September Fashion Week, Kanye showed Yeezy Season 2, which will not be produced by Adidas except for sneaker styles. Looks from the Yeezy Fashion Show Season 1. Photo: Getty Images/Theo Wargo Kanye's previous work as a fashion designer includes sneaker gigs with BAPE, Nike, and Louis Vuitton; a series of men's capsules with the French brand A.P.C.; and a unique, not-so-appreciated collection of women's clothing that was presented under its own name at Paris fashion week for the spring 2012 season. The Sneakers are the only pieces from Yeezy's Season 1 to hit buyers before the collection's release date on October 29. The Yeezy Boost 750, a grey suede top, was released on Valentine's Day - two days after the fashion show. It retailed for $350 and sold immediately. A low-top style, the Yeezy Boost 350, was next, falling on June 27 in a black and white speckle knit (photo below). Priced at $200, it also sold immediately. On August 22, an all-black version of the 350 was to — surprise — equal customer fervor. According to an Instagram post from Adidas Originals, the October 29 release will include the Yeezy 950 (aka the duck boot, $585). The same IG post says that the 350 will be released on November 14, believed (but not confirmed) to be in white and tan, as seen on Kanye himself at James Haden's birthday party on August 26 and the VMAs August 30, respectively. Clothes, including knitwear, coats and sweatpants, will finally be hit in stores on October 29. After the February fashion show, we didn't see much of the clothing part of the collection until recently. The September issue of GQ offered four shots of Kanye's stylized musician The Weeknd in Yeezy Season 1. The images show outerwear and sweatshirts, mainly, with price details stuck in the credits (more on this below). The Weeknd in GQ September 2015 An accompanying video featuring GQ creative director Jim Moore and style editor Will Welch is arguably more informative than the brilliant mag pages, with the editors in front of a rolling rack featuring every piece in the collection. As they come out of the highlight pieces, Moore explains what Kanye's shooting for GQ in the past was like: We had put a classic sweatshirt on him, and the first thing he would do was rip off the neck, and stretch the bottom and pull it down to his knees, he says in the video. Nothing can be long enough, nothing can be stretched enough. It's soft but controlled, and that's what he did here. It really gives you one of the secrets of its great taste. The video offers a preview of details such as the YEEZY label, the ultra-customizable cuff on a pair of sweatpants and the deliberate plundering of a military-inspired sweater. Stills from GQ Behind the Scenes Video The first follow-up look at women's clothing in the collection appears, ironically, in the first issue of CR Men's Book. Tink, 20 (perhaps you know his song Ratchet Commandments) models tracksuit pants and the same saaten flying jacket seen on The Weeknd, plus a crop top; his naked bodysuit is credited as a show piece. Vic Mensa and Holt - Chicago natives like Tink and Mr. West - are photographed for the play as well, which is titled Gen: Yeezy and molded by Kanye. The only non-Chi affiliate is Fetty Wap, who enjoyed record success this summer with four top 10 simultaneous singles (there's no way you haven't heard Trap Queen this summer). Tink, Vic Mensa. Photos: CR Men's Book Price The most substantial look at clothing prices to date came from this GQ editorial, with the following calls: Heat Shirt, $405 Crewneck, $495 Hoodie $545 tracksuit, $585 Duck Boots, $585 Pull, $1,560 Jacket, $1,170 Camo Jacket, $2,210 Flight Jacket, $3,250 In March, less than a month after the Yeezy Season 1 show, High Snobiety claims to have obtained a price information, although it is not verified by at this point. Here's what they brought in euros at the time, and the current exchange rate in dollars: Hoodies and sweatshirts, €390 ($435) Duck boots, $450 ($502) canvas backpack, €450 ($502) white leather backpack, $650 ($726) leather bag, $800 ($893) Knitwear, $800 — €1,500 ($893 — €1,675) Outerwear, €1,600 — €1,700 ($1,786— Regarding high prices, the site notes: Highlighting these high prices, however, is absolutely of superior quality that will give luxury homes a run for their money. Each piece is made in Italy in some of the best factories in the world, using only the best materials. Leather is what you would expect from a French house, while the technical fabrics presented in the collection could easily have been developed and used by the leading forces of urban fashion.
