Ocarina Legend of Zelda is a necessary item: Link's Awakening, but at first it's not too hard to jump over Link's favorite musical instrument. Similar to Magnifying Glass, you need Ocarina for a couple of critical story moments, but it's mainly a very useful item for discovery. After you secure Ocarina, if you are not happy to listen to Link, you need to learn some melodies. How to get Ocarina 1. Complete Key Cavern before you take Ocarina, at least you must pass Key Cavern, the third dungeon in Link's Awakening. Because you need both Power Bracelet (bottle found in Grotto) and Pegasus Boots (located in Key Cavern and used in color dungeons) to reach the Ocarina. 2. To get Link's Awakening Ocarina Dream Shrine Head, Link has to take some nap. Go to Sanctuary Village. Just north of the Town Tool Shop and up the stairs, you will see a stone building. The entrance to the building is surrounded by rocks. Now that you have the Power Bracelet, you can lift the rocks and Link can lie on the bed. Once inside, you'll have to race around the room using the Pegasus Boots. Why is it breaking under the ground, so you're in a hurry. The treasure chest on the first platform contains 100 rupees. Ocarina on the second platform, on a pedestal in plain view. Now you have Ocarina! Where will you learn the songs of Ocarina The Song of WindFish is the first song you can learn in The Awakening of The WindFish's Song Link. Marin will teach you after she's got Ocarina. Depending on where the story is, it'll be either in Animal Village or in the Weather Van at Sanctuary Village. WindFish Turkus is required to carry morse wake-up blocking the entrance to the Yarna Desert. It is also necessary to wake the fish to the wind of the adventure later in the song. Manbo's Mambo can't be learned until the second Ocarina song Manbo's Mambo, grabbing flippers in the fourth dungeon Angler Tunnel. After you get out of the dungeon, jump into the water and swim to the left to enter the cave. Inside you will find a fish called manbo. Manbo's Mambo is incredibly useful, as these worldwide unlocked warp holes can be played for fast travel. While you're in the dungeon, jingle will carry you back to the dungeon entrance. Frog's Song of Soul requires the third and final Ocarina song, Frog's Song of Soul, Hook Shot. You'll get Hook Shot in catfish's maw, the fifth dungeon. After you get Hook Shot, go to Ukuku Prairie. Go to the western edge along The Sanctuary Village. If you go south, you'll see a bunch of holes and a tree stump on both sides. Trendy Game is just west of this point. Using Hook Shot Space. Welcome to the Signage Labyrinth. Read the first sign and follow the next arrow. You have to keep reading the signs to uncover a ladder. Go down the stairs. Frog king Mamu will give you the chance to listen to an unpublished cut for 300 rupees. Give him the rupees and he'll teach you the Frog's Spirit Song. You'll need Frog's Song of Soul to revive the rooster beneath the Weather Vane in Sanctuary Village and access turtle rock, the eighth dungeon. Editors' Suggestions 3 50 Is This Thing Called Love?
