Top tier baseball tournaments

COACHES - We invite you to list your team. It takes a list of teams to publish a test. Click HERE to get started. About Achievements Notable General Information Alumni In 2004 Top Tier began with a team. It was an 18U team that traveled the country quickly creating a national brand with the style of baseball they played. This team won more than 40 games and featured future big player John Ely and 5 draft picks. Top Tier has evolved since its in- 2004 creation to one of the elite amateur baseball organizations in the United States. The strength of our program lies in our commitment to player development and building trust through hard work and dedication. We design our program to maximize the exposure of our players by playing a competitive regional calendar combined with national elite strategic events. Our high school schedule provides players with the platform to showcase their skills in front of the best schools and scouts around the country. Over the past few years, top players have committed to schools in the Power Five Conferences and more including BIG 10, SEC, ACC, PAC 12, BIG 12, Big East, Missouri Valley, and Ivy League among others. We pride ourselves on Top Tier's A Tradition of Excellence Baseball that has developed as a result of the hard work of many outstanding players, the dedication of coaches, the tireless attendance of our sponsors and the commitment and support of parents. The common purpose of all involved is to put players in a position to compete, gaining confidence with success and learning from failure. We believe our staff puts players in the best position to succeed on and off the field. 12U awesome American experience. It couldn't have gone any better for my son. He loved his coaches, the team won seven tournaments and really enjoyed the other players. The best chemistry on the team I've seen on a youth baseball team. Great to be away from the daddy ball. This is the best program I've found when it comes to preparing kids for high school and college. We have detected that JavaScript is disabled in this browser. Help Center Appy League to Become First Collegiate Summer League in Prospect Development Pipeline (PDP) for Rising College Freshmen and Sophomores Plan Retains High-Level Baseball in the Region for the Long-Term Under Appalachian League Banner, Adds New Major League Baseball Opportunities and USA Baseball jointly announced today a new format for the Appalachian League, which will feature the best of the nation's college students and sophomores in the wooden bat game every summer. The new format affirms MLB's commitment to the region, maintains the league's existing branding, and ensures that the Appalachian League will continue high-caliber baseball and future Big Leagues for years to come. The Appalachian League will become part of the Prospect Development Pipeline (PDP), the collaborative effort between MLB and USA Baseball that establishes a player development pathway for amateur baseball players in the United States, and will be an integral part of the identification and development process for the U.S. National Baseball Collegiate Team and other future national teams. Appalachian League participants will receive wide visibility from MLB Club scouts through face-to-face observation and state-of-the-art exploration technology. Players will receive instruction from former MLB players and educational programming designed to prepare them for careers as professional athletes. Plans include a 54-game regular season and an annual All-Star Game. MLB and USA Baseball will provide support for the league's staff, player participation, and administrative duties. The parties are in communication with the NCAA to ensure athletes' eligibility requirements are met. To announce the start of this exciting new format, each of the 10 teams in the Appalachian League have decided to undertake a process of changing names and logos to incorporate symbols and images important to their respective local communities, which will be adopted before the 2021 season. MLB and USA Baseball have already begun the process of identifying and inviting the top 320 players to participate in the 2021 Appalachian League. Morgan Sword, Executive Vice President of MLB, Baseball Economics & Operations, he said: We are thrilled to partner with U.S. Baseball and Appalachian League communities to create a unique summer league that will attract the nation's best collegiate players and allow local fans to see the best prospects and future big league stars in their hometowns. This announcement continues MLB's commitment to the preservation and growth of baseball in communities throughout the United States. The road to the big leagues now passes through Appalachia. Mike Gaski, President of U.S. Baseball, said: U.S. Baseball is excited by this unique opportunity to enhance offerings within the Vista Development Pipeline through the creation of a premier summer collegiate baseball league. Our commitment to the continued development of amateur athletes is paramount to our mission as the national governing body for sport in the United States and it is an honor to align us with a historical brand of baseball like the Appalachian League as well as our partners in Major League Baseball. We look forward to welcoming elite level college athletes to the Appalachian League and identifying players who hope to one day play for the team . Dan Moushon, the president of the Appalachian League, said: Appalachian League communities have supported baseball since our founding in 1911. 1911. they are grateful to MLB and USA Baseball for bringing this exciting opportunity to our fans and look forward to welcoming players, coaches, MLB scouts, and fans to our cities next summer. The league will be guided by a Steering Committee made up of collegiate and professional baseball leaders: - CHRIS ALLEN – PRESIDENT AND COO – BOYD SPORTS - ASHLEY BRATCHER – SENIOR DIRECTOR – BASEBALL OPERATIONS, USA BASEBALL - ERIC CAMPBELL – GENERAL MANAGER – NATIONAL TEAMS, USA BASEBALL - TIM CORBIN – HEAD BASEBALL COACH, VANDERBILT UNIVERSITY – JOHN D'ANGELO – VICE PRESIDENT – AMATEUR & MEDICAL, MLB - DAN HARTLEB – HEAD BASEBALL COACH, UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS - GIL KIM , TORONTO BLUE JAYS - BRYAN MINNITI – DEPUTY GENERAL MANAGER, PHILADELPHIA PHILLIES - DAN MOUSHON – PRESIDENT, APPALACHIAN LEAGUE - JALEN PHILLIPS – COORDINATOR – OPERATIONS PROJECT, MLB - STEVE SANDERS – DEPUTY GENERAL MANAGER, PITTSBURGH PIRATES - JOHN SAVAGE – HEAD BASEBALL COACH, UCLA - BILL SCHMIDT – VICE PRESIDENT – SCOUTING, COLORADO ROCKIES - EDWIN THOMPSON – HEAD BASEBALL COACH, GEORGETOWN UNIVERSITY See more about the impact of the new League Appalach WHAT THEY'RE SAYING ABOUT THE NEW APPALACHIAN LEAGUE - U.S. SEN. MARK WARNER OF VIRGINIA said: For years, Minor League baseball teams have provided affordable family entertainment for Virginians and hosted players who became Big League stars. This new Appalachian league format will continue this tradition, ensuring that high-level baseball will continue to play our state in the long run. I look forward to seeing the next generation of big league stars, and cultivating the next generation of baseball fans, here in Virginia. - U.S. Senator JOE MANCHIN OF WEST VIRGINIA said: After months of talks with Major League Baseball, USA Baseball, and the Appalachian League, I am happy for this agreement to bring the Appalachian League to the Prospect development pipeline. This collaboration will directly benefit our two Appalachian League teams at Bluefield and Princeton, which provide many West Virginians with entertainment and family time and will foster a love of american pastime. Through this new agreement, our communities will host the best baseball players in the country, giving West Virginians a chance to see baseball's future stars before reaching the big leagues. I am committed to ensuring the future of all West Virginia minor league teams, and I will work with everyone involved to make sure these teams get the support they need to succeed during this transition and look forward to seeing the best talent play in the Mountain State for many to come. - U.S. Senator TIM KAINE OF VIRGINIA said I am delighted that MLB and Appalachian Appalachia have reached this agreement. I've called for baseball to be maintained in communities like Bluefield, Danville, Pulaski and Bristol - this format will do only that with high-quality competition on the field for these communities to enjoy over the next few years. - U.S. Senator SHELLEY MOORE CAPITO OF WEST VIRGINIA said: Although we lost baseball this summer on the Diamonds across West Virginia, Major League Baseball and USA Baseball are guaranteeing future summer nights at Princeton and Bluefield will be spent watching our National Pastime. It will be a thrill to see the nation's leading college players pursue their dreams of the majors while keeping baseball's rich traditions alive for these two communities. - WEST VIRGINIA GOVERNOR JIM JUSTICE said: I am delighted beyond belief that two of west Virginia's fantastic baseball teams - the Bluefield Blue Jays and the Princeton Rays - will be members of the charter of the innovative Appalachian League. I've had a lot of conversations with MLB Commissioner Rob Manfred as we work together to preserve the tradition of baseball in these communities as well as in Charleston and Morgantown, and I know he really appreciates the importance of these teams to the thousands of West Virginians who enjoy great baseball. They are crucial parts of our local economies and communities, bringing in all kinds of jobs. And in terms of tourism, they are absolute home runs. It will be an absolute pleasure to see some of the best college baseball players in the country hone their skills right in our backyard. These dance clubs in Bluefield and Princeton are two of the best jewels in West Virginia and I can't wait for this exciting new chapter to begin. - U.S. CONGRESSMAN PHIL ROE, M.D., OF TENNESSEE said: This agreement between the Appalachian League and Major League Baseball sounds like good news to our community. We have a long, rich baseball history in northeast Tennessee, and I'm glad the tradition will continue. - U.S. CONGRESSMAN CAROL MILLER OF WEST VIRGINIA said: I applaud Major League Baseball and USA Baseball for teaming up to create the new Appalachian League. This exciting decision will bring top-level baseball talent to our communities and create new economic investment opportunities in West Virginia and rural areas across our region. Our baseball teams are the spirit of our small towns, and I'm excited to attend a game in the newly formed Appalachian League. - DENVER RIGGLEMAN OF VIRGINIA U.S. CONGRESSMAN said: The Danville Braves have been an integral part of the Danville community and I am pleased to see them enter this new chapter. I'm glad baseball will stay in Danville with the d'aquesta nova iliga. - CURT ALEXANDER, ALCALDE DE LONGTIME APPALACHIAN LEAGUE VENUE ELIZABETHTON, ELIZABETHTON, Said: We are extremely excited about the opportunity to partner directly with Major League Baseball and U.S. Baseball. The city of Elizabethton is a baseball community, which has supported this wonderful game for over 45 years. Our baseball tradition extends deep into Elizabethton. We have a long history of championships and a great list of former E-Twins players who have reached the big leagues. Major League Baseball is providing us with another opportunity to enjoy a pipeline of great baseball players who have the same opportunity to make it big in the Majors. It's an exciting time and we welcome this partnership with Major League Baseball and USA Baseball. - JEFF DISIBBIO, PRESIDENT/CEO OF THE TWO VIRGINIA CHAMBER OF COMMERCE, said: In Appalachia, America's favorite pastime is based on children's dreams playing catch in the backyard, using a nearest tree limb for a bat. Thanks to the new appalachian League format, local children will continue to see future stars in person, build relationships with them, and fall in love with a game trying to live hope that they can become one of their heroes one day. Thanks to the organizers and local teams who have worked to save our league: without them these dreams could have been lost. - RANDALL C. EADS, CITY MANAGER OF LONGTIME APPALACHIAN LEAGUE VENUE BRISTOL, VIRGINIA, said: Minor League Baseball has a storied history in Bristol, and we are proud and excited that we will preserve and improve America's pastime here in our community. In 1969, the Bristol Tigers made their debuts as Bristol's minor league team. Over the years, minor league teams have been affiliated with the Detroit Tigers, Chicago White Sox and Pittsburgh Pirates. Lou Whitaker and Alan Trammell are just two Major League standout stars who started their careers here in Bristol. I look forward to seeing tomorrow's Major League Stars playing bristol soon! - DAVID GRAHAM, THE MAYOR OF LONGTIME APPALACHIAN LEAGUE VENUE PRINCETON, WEST VIRGINIA, said: The city of Princeton and our many local baseball fans eager to await the return of the Appalachian League baseball to our community. Minor League Baseball has been enjoyed locally for the last 30-plus years and we have a wonderful facility in which to host it. The new structure of the League, in addition to the opportunity to appoint our own team will absolutely create improved interest and community support. We appreciate the efforts of Major League Baseball, the Appalachian League and our home team representatives in this effort. - SCOTT HUMMEL, PH.D., PRESIDENT OF TUSCULUM UNIVERSITY AT THE APPALACHIAN LEAGUE SITE GREENEVILLE, TENNESSEE, While we still have a lot to work on, Tusculum University is excited about the possibility of bringing an MLB and U.S. Baseball presence to Greenville. This could A win-win-win for baseball, Greenville, and Tusculum University. The summer collegiate league in our beautiful stadium will make for some magical baseball nights in Greenville. - RON MARTIN, THE MAYOR OF LONGTIME APPALACHIAN LEAGUE VENUE BLUEFIELD, WEST VIRGINIA, said: The city of Bluefield is extremely excited about the prospect of a collegiate baseball league of wooden bats coming to Bluefield and other Appalachian League cities. This will continue the long tradition of excellent baseball being played at Bowen Field. This COVID-19 summer has shown us what a summer without baseball is like at Bluefield. We are all eager to see players take the field in Bowen in 2021. - JAMIE NULL, EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR, MERCER COUNTY CONVENTION AND VISITORS BUREAU, said: The Mercer County Convention and Visitors Office is proud and excited to promote and support the new Appalachian League format. We believe this league will create a sports tourism destination in Mercer County. The CVB will be able to market Mercer County as a place to see new talent and rallies around a new hometown league. We believe this new league will bring tourism dollars to the area, as fans, visitors, scouts and families will travel to Mercer County, all on behalf of baseball. We look forward to working with both Princeton and Bluefield baseball clubs in this effort to continue America's favorite pastime here in Mercer County, West Virginia. - DANE RIDEOUT, CITY MANAGER OF LONGTIME APPALACHIAN LEAGUE VENUE BLUEFIELD, WEST VIRGINIA, said: When the baseball club informed us about the prospect of a wooden bat league, I was blown away. This will be a very high level ball, with the best college players trying to make it to the majors. We lost baseball this summer, and we're so glad baseball is coming back to our city. We encourage our citizens to show up at Bowen Field next year and support the new league. - DEWEY RUSSELL, CITY COUNCIL MEMBER/PRESIDENT OF PRINCETON BASEBALL ASSOCIATION, said: Princeton Baseball has been a summer destination for most of our population. This partnership with MLB, USA Baseball and the Appalachian League is something our community will fully embrace from the youngest to the oldest fan. We believe this league will bring a new set of fans to Hunnicutt Field in anticipation of seeing the next MLB stars and following the player throughout his college career. Thank you to everyone involved for making this dream come true. - BILL SGRINIA, DIRECTOR OF DANVILLE CITY (VA) PARKS AND RECREATION, said: Danville has had a long tradition as a baseball community and is extremely excited about the quality of baseball in the city. We really enjoyed having the Danville Braves as part of our community and we're sad to see them leave. However, we are MLB and USA Baseball providing this opportunity for continued baseball in Danville. We look forward to a new team as part of the community. - PAT SHULL, THE MAYOR OF APPALACHIAN LEAGUE SITE KINGSPORT, TENNESSEE, said: I am pleased that Kingsport will continue to host high quality, exciting baseball. We will show our Kingsport spirit and prepare to welcome talented players from all over our nation. I'm ready for the first pitch now. - BILL SORAH, CITY MANAGER OF LONGTIME APPALACHIAN LEAGUE VENUE BRISTOL, TENNESSEE, said: The city of Bristol has enjoyed professional baseball for over 75 years. As a member of the Appalachian League, Bristol has long enjoyed healthy family entertainment provided by young athletes looking to fulfill their dream of playing professional baseball at its highest level. These athletes have promoted goodwill and served as a model for our youth. The value of their presence in our community cannot be exaggerated. It is with great enthusiasm to know MLB's proposal to create a new format for the Appalachian League that will bring collegiate baseball players to our region to further develop their skills. The opportunity to enjoy high-quality baseball played again by aspiring young athletes is one reason for our region to celebrate. - CHARLIE STAHL, appalachian LEAGUE VENUE JOHNSON CITY's long-time city assistant director JOHNSON CITY, TENNESSEE, said: Learning that MLB, in Appalachian League membership, is committed to establishing a collegiate summer league keeps baseball alive and well in Johnson City and other Appalachian League communities for hope many years , continuing a tradition that our citizens have enjoyed for more than a century. - JONATHAN D. SWEET, PULASKI COUNTY ADMINISTRATOR, said: Minor League Baseball has a storied history in the city of Pulaski and so we are proud and excited that our community will be a big part of preserving and improving America's pastime. The new Appalachian League format ensures that high-level baseball will continue to play here at Calfee Park for a long time to come. I look forward to seeing the next generation of big league stars come through our city, and as a community of baseball fans, we are committed to supporting these players and our teams. - HARDIN WATKINS, CITY MANAGER OF LONGTIME APPALACHIAN LEAGUE VENUE BURLINGTON, NORTH CAROLINA, said: Minor League Baseball has a surprisingly positive history in Burlington dating back to 1986. The city is proud and excited that we will preserve and improve America's pastime here in our community. The new Appalachian League format ensures that high-level baseball will continue to play at the Stadium Athletic to the delight of the people of our community in the long term. We look forward to seeing the next generation of big league stars come through our and cultivating the next generation of baseball fans here in our backyard. The Burlington Royals have provided exciting and affordable entertainment for Burlington families for more than thirty years and nurtured players who have gone on to impressive major league careers. This new format for the Appalachian League guarantees that fans here in Burlington will continue to see future baseball stars, and that these players will get the support, kindness and exposure they deserve on their way to the Majors. This is exciting for these players, for the Burlington Royals and for fans like me who can't wait to get back to the ballpark. - MICHAEL WATSON, CITY MANAGER OF LONGTIME APPALACHIAN LEAGUE VENUE BLUEFIELD, VIRGINIA, said: We are excited to see baseball continue in our area. MLB's support has been a blessing and will continue the legacy of baseball that has been part of the community for decades. - MIKE WEBB, CITY DIRECTOR OF LONGTIME APPALACHIAN LEAGUE VENUE PRINCETON, WEST VIRGINIA, said: Elite level baseball with a personal twist. Local team names and favorite players to see their careers progress to MLB level. This is great for the city of Princeton and the small town of America throughout the Appalachian League community and for Minor League baseball Baseball!
