St thomas of canterbury school bolton

How long for the next inspection? Good schools are inspected around once every four years. We can also inspect at any time if we have concerns. We usually give notice in the afternoon of the working day before an inspection. We may also inspect schools without notice. The number of student places the establishment can accommodate. This shows whether a student's family has claimed that it is possible to get free school meals as reported in the annual spring school census. Parents can claim free school meals if they receive a qualifying benefit. This does not show students who have actually received free school meals, but those who are eligible to receive them. The proportion of pupils eligible for the pupil premium is below average. The pupil premium is extra funding for those students who are known to be eligible for free school meals and the children being cared for by the local authority. The vast majority of pupils are of white British heritage. There is a small proportion of pupils from minority ethnic backgrounds. Proportion of pupils supported at school below average. The proportion supported at school action plus or with a statement of special educational needs is below average. The school met the government's current floor standards, which are the minimum expectations of pupils' achievement and progress at the end of year 6. Since the last inspection, St Thomas from Canterbury School has been part of a major expansion project at the request of local authorities and salford diocese. There is now a two-form entry school with facilities to meet the needs of 420 pupils. The expansion project (2010) brought with it an increase of this year admission due to places becoming available in Key Stage 2. A fifth of pupils in years 5 and 6 joined the school at times other than normal admission time in September. Summary of important findings for parents and pupils This is a good school. Over time, students make good progress from their broadly average starting point and usually reach above average standards of writing and mathematics at the end of year 6. Standards in reading are even higher. The teaching is good because it is built on strong professional knowledge. Students engage in interesting learning activities, which inspires them to value education. Due to the range of engaging activities on offer, children leave the Early Years Foundation Stage after making good progress towards developing early reading, writing and mathematics skills. Behavior is usually good. Students are keen to do well, have good relationships with their teachers and feel safe at school. Attendance is above average. There are remarkably few students who are persistently absent. The exceptionally rich and varied curriculum makes full use of high-quality sports and arts and music offerings to promote students' learning enjoyment. Strong leadership in teaching means that students' achievements are good. Collaboration between all employees, including the many additional adults, is very effective. The principal and senior management, have confidence in employees, parents and pupils alike. The school's own evaluation of the results is accurate and is based on a thorough evaluation of students' performance, which in turn identifies how the school can improve further. Governors provide a high level of support and challenge to the school. The governing body has an extremely clear understanding of the strengths of the school, including teaching and student performance, and the few areas where improvement is needed. It is not yet an outstanding school because : there is not enough outstanding teaching to help students make good progress. Marking does not consistently provide students with adequate guidance on how to improve their work. The work set is sometimes too simple and does not stretch the most skilled students. Not all middle managers have the necessary skills to carefully check the quality of teaching and ensure that Consistent.
