Dr. Richard Rick Trager is a former Merkov executive who turned a variant doctor into performing torture surgery on other patients he captured to learn about their physiology and sell body parts. These surgeries are very brutal and sadistic and are carried out in filthy conditions without anesthesia or pain relief, showing tiger madness and cruelty. Trager is Alex Iwanovachi's voice. Background Richard Tragger was once an executive in mount Massive Asylum's Maakov Research and Development Wing, during which time he had a great interest in the physiology of those affected by his research. He became an experimental surgeon and performed live vivisection and exploratory surgery.Various turn inmates. He wears bloody surgeon costumes including clear glasses, mechanical monocles, torn surgeon masks and bloody surgical aprons. He is as insane as any other resident of exile, but he seems to be very functional, just because of his obsession with experimenting with betraying his mental state. He is intelligent and clear-speaking and frequently speaks of Miles as a buddy. The feature Dr. Tragger is sadistic, but in contrast to people like martin Al Simbo, who is completely paranoid, he still shows signs of understanding and clarity. He is very cunning and employs tricky scams to capture his victims. He believes himself to be a surgeon and collects body parts from what he dissects. StoryOuttrast Miles hears Trager beckon him through the dumb waiter and climbs in to escape the group pursuing variants. When he leaves the dam waiter, he is beaten to the ground by a tiger and then picked up and placed in a wheelchair. Then he is tied to a chair with arm and leg restraints and rolls down into the hallway. They stop by near the exit of exile for a short time, Trager provokes Miles, and tells him to go out freely and take a walk. Tragger then took him to an elevator deep into the building, and Miles sees the various victims of the tiger falling apart. Tigers take Miles to a filthy bathroom, renovates it into a makeshift operating room, removes Miles' camera, and puts it in the sink in front of him. Tragger strikes his hand, and then begins to talk to Miles about religion and Father Martin. Then he grabs a pair of large shears and, with the intention of selling them, cut out two of Miles' fingers and leave the room. Miles then leaves the restraint, leaves the room, discovers another victim of a tiger tied to a hospital bed, and reveals that he is an ex-Merkov executive like a tiger. The executive then struggles for Trager to kill the executive, begins to shout, discovers that Miles has escaped, and begins to search the entire floor in search of him. Miles avoids the tiger, grabs the elevator key, then runs into the elevator and tries to escape to the lower floor. When the tiger is moving, he breaks through the elevator door, fights Miles, and pushes it back through the door. Because the elevator was moving, this crushes the tiger and cracies the elevator. Miles must climb through the hatch of the roof. Outtrast: Whistleblower Trager's body was pulled out by a pair of Merkov tactical soldiers, which he could see on the floor next to the crushed elevator.
