The Father, the Son and the Holy Spirit. Red, green and blue. Stone, paper and scissors. Butterfly Knives, Karambits, and M9 Bayonets. One of these four groups is more important to the CS media: GO player than most people – I don't think we need to tell you which. The three beloved knives have been in play for as long as we can remember, and they remain classics, with most people wanting one of the three in their loadout. Their price tags certainly reflect their popularity, with Karambits, M9 Bayonets, and Butterfly Knives being some of the most expensive in the game. Get the leather tooth tiger, for example, if you wanted that on a Gut knife, it would only cost $80 in the new state factory, or even on a Huntsman knife it would only cost $140. New Tiger Tooth factory on an M9 bayonet? Oh, that'll be $300, please, sir. A Karambit? Another $50, $350. And a butterfly knife from the factory? Well, that's a little north of 4 big ones ($400). I think you get the point, these popular knives aren't cheap. Fortunately, you've come across an excellent article – Total CS: GO looked at hundreds of knives and chose the best cheap karambits, M9 bayonets, and butterfly knives for you to feast your eyes on. Check them below. 1. M9 Baioneta Scorched - Battle Scarred Starting with the cheapest M9 Bayoneta in the world - Baioneta M9 Ars. Quite frankly, we are surprised that this is cheaper than Safari Mesh, Forest DDPAT, and Boreal Forest – in our opinion, The Booneta Pleasesched M9 is much better than the three. Dark gray coating is simple, but on a knife like the M9 Bayonet seems nothing short of threatening. The scratches that come along with the Battle Scarred state are only added to the feared vibe she gives off. 2. Karambit Night – Minimal Wear Heh, cheap karambit is a bit of an oxymoron, isn't it? At least that's what we thought before we came across this beauty. We're not quite sure why The Karambit Night is so historically cheap, but we know it can't be because of its appearance. If you want this in Factory New, it's going to cost you quite a bit, but in any other condition, prices can drop to numbers below $200, and even get close to $100! 3. Butterfly Knife Urban Masked – Minimal Wear Everyone looks at Marble Fades, Crimson Webs, and other luxury models, but forget about simple but agreeable skins, it would be Urban Masked. Although it's not the most fanciful, it's definitely not the worst, and it's one of the best-looking cheap Butterfly Knives you can get on a tight budget. 4. Karambit Scorched – Field Tested This is the second burnt skin making an appearance in this list and doesn't take much thought to work why (because it looks pretty darn good and are pretty darn cheap). We chose to put land tested Karambit burned in this article, but if you are a fan of Look, the scratches in the Battle Scarred state compliment this knife pretty well. No matter what state you're going with, at the end of the day, it's a Karambit. When you're in the game spinning it around your finger like a fidget spinner, you're probably just not going to notice which skin is on it. 5. M9 Ultraviolet Baionet - Minimum Wear Ultraviolet consists of two main colors - matte gray and purple - but they go together like peanut butter and jelly. Try to think of a better combination than the two, we bet you can't. Unlike burnt skin, we think ultraviolet light looks best in higher conditions: Minimal Wear or New Factory. Minimal Wear is going to cost you about 2x more than Battle Scarred (at about $200), but it sure is worth it. That said, if you're on a very tight budget, it's not worth getting Field Tested or Well Worn – you should just embrace the rugged look and go for Battle Scarred. 6. Butterfly Knife Crimson Web - Well worn A lot of knives that are cheap have the same set of dull colors: gray, black, or some kind of dull green or cream. This knife doesn't fit that narrative, and fortunately, the lesser Crimson Webs condition aren't too expensive. The Well Worn Butterfly Knife Crimson Web carries a price tag of about $220 on third-party markets, so it's perfect for those on a medium-sized budget. So if it fits your budget, and you're a fan of spider man, red color, or bad ass skin inspect animations, Butterfly Knife Crimson Web is for you. 7. M9 Baioneta Slaughter – Minimum Wear If you go with cleaner skin than Slaughter, you've got to get it into the new Factory or Minimum Wear. Since this is a cheap article skins, we opted to include the minimum wear condition because it will save you almost $100 when picking it over the New Factory. The pattern on this blade is really something else: almost like a tiger, but matte toned red. We believe the fingerprint could have been originally colored like a tiger, and years of use have tainted it in blood red. No matter how these beautiful tomatoes go on the blade, it looks damn good, and it's not priced like other colorful skins. Check if you get a chance. 8. The Karambit case strengthened - Battle Scarred Unlike most other skins, as the case hardened skins wear, a few scratches appear on the edges of the blade, but their pattern tends to darken and spots appear. This means that lower-conditioned case-hardened skins tend not to look as worn as most would think they actually are. Take a look at the one in the picture above - you wouldn't think it's scabbled (but it is). If you know you want a Karambit, you're on a budget, and you know you don't want something simple as a Mesh, the hardened case is the best option. In general, the hardened case is cheaper than all the other skins colored on a Karambit, and looks too good. If you are not a fan of Battle Scarred condition makes the knife look, you can bump it up to Minimal Wear for less than $75 in most cases. 9. Butterfly Knife Safari Mesh - Battle Scarred You didn't think we wouldn't include a Safari Mesh, did you? A cheap skins item without a Safari Mesh is like a Batman without a Robin. We chose to include the Safari Mesh Butterfly Knife for two reasons. First of all, it doesn't look too bad – yes, it's not the most photogenic, but I'm sure I could think of many more knife models that look a lot worse than this. Second of all, it's cheap. Actually, it's the cheapest. We know that some people with a limited budget still want to be able to admire that wonderful inspect and shoot animation that Butterfly Knife wears. If that's all you're looking for in a knife, or they don't care too much about the colors on it, and trying to spend the smallest amount of money possible, Safari Mesh Butterfly Knife is the best option for you. 10. M9 Baioneta Everyone will have their opinions about coloring and patterns on the skins. Some people will love the colored drawings, some people will hate them. Some people are a fan of the scratches that the lower conditions bring, and others detest them. But one thing that most people agree about is that vanilla skins (skins without any design or condition) don't look half bad. If you are a person of simplicity and are not looking to present a colorful knife about, Vanilla M9 Baioneta is for you. You can't go wrong with a knife like that. New Butterfly Balisong Knives will be updated monthly. Check out all the most popular CS: GO skins we carry. Contact us if you have any suggestions.
