Mike trout jersey sales

Frank Franklin II/Associated Press For the third consecutive year, New York Yankees slugger Aaron Judge had the No. 1 sales jersey Major League Baseball.MLB unveiled the best-selling jerseys for the 2019 season on Friday, and Judge and Philadelphia Phillies star Bryce Harper led the way:MLB Communications @MLB_PRMLB and @MLB_PLAYERS today announced the most popular player jerseys of the season... - the top 9 players are 21-29 - @TheJudge44 goes 3-3; #HRDerby Champion @Pete_Alonso20 debuted at number 14 on the list is in his third full season in the majors – all with the Yankees – but has played in only 100 games this year. Harper left the Washington Nationals last season in favor of the Philadelphia Phillies in a record $330 million contract. The 2015 National League MVP has enjoyed another solid season with 34 home runs and 109 RBIs. However, he didn't make the All-Star team for only the second time in his eight-year career, and the Phillies (79-80) have dropped from the playoff picture en route to fourth place in the NL East.While changing teams made Harper the best candidate to get a best-selling jersey, Judge's star power and The Yankees brand were too strong to win. The top two candidates for the NL MVP award each finished in the top five, with Los Angeles Dodgers outfielder Cody Bellinger coming in third and Milwaukee Brewers outfielder Christian Yelich fifth. Bellinger has led the Dodgers to an NL-best 103 wins by hitting .301 with 46 home runs and 114 RBIs. After winning the batting title last year, Yelich is tied for the league lead with a .329, despite being out for the season with a broken knee hip. Los Angeles Angels superstar Mike Trout had the ninth-best-selling jersey this season. Trout could win his third AL MVP award when he leads the AL in several categories, including home runs (45), on-base percentage (.438), slugging percentage (.645) and OPS (1,083). However, his term ended on 7 May 2004. New York Mets rookie phenom Pete Alonso, who leads the majors with 51 home runs, finished 14th in jersey sales. No pitcher cracked the top 10. Dodgers ace Clayton Kershaw led the way for pitchers and came in 12th. Reigning NL Cy Young Award winner Jacob deGrom checked in on 19 December. USATSI Major League Baseball released its list of the best jersey sales of 2020 on Friday and the winner is -- drumroll please -- Los Angeles Dodgers star Mookie Betts. Former world champion with the Boston Red Sox is now also the champion of jersey sales. Just behind the first-year Dodger in selling this unique season are Aaron Judge of the New York Yankees and Bryce Harper of the Philadelphia Phillies.San Diego Padres budy star Fernando Tatis Jr. and other youngsters Soto of the Washington Nationals rounded out the lead. This is the first year that two Padres players have made the top 20, with Tatis Jr. joining Manny Machado (No.12). For the eighth time, All-Star Mike Trout landed at Number 14, dropping six spots from last season. In the top 20, 11 teams were represented. Gerrit Cole (number 19). Tatis and Soto are the three newcomers on the list.
