Even if you have a child in one hand, it's easy to swing a folded G-LITE over your shoulder. At just £10, and with its own carrying strap, it's a pint-sized companion you won't want without. Like other UPPA strollers, its folding with one action allows you to fold with one push and without the action of the foot, and remains upright even when folded. You really can't leave so UPPAbaby G-LITE can't go with you. Part of what keeps G-LITE so featherweight is its airy mesh seat back. This allows for a light windy ride without additional lining that will burden you. A simple, comfortable seat pad is easy to remove and can be machined. In addition to great functionality and convenience, G-LITE is available in two great colors: Jake and Denny. If it's a clear sunny day and your little one needs some shade, no problem: the UPPAbaby G-LITE comes with a durable, expandable UPF 50+ parasol for protection and comfort. You have things to see and where to work. Bringing the baby with you should be as trouble-free as possible. A lightweight, noise-free, durable G-LITE stroller will be an indispensable companion that you will always reach for on your way out the door. © 1996-2014, Amazon.com, Inc. or its subsidiary LNGAbaby is a company started and maintained in the American. They have more than a decade of experience in the juvenile industry and their own families where they draw inspiration for designs that would work well. The UPPAbaby family is constantly on alert for innovative ways to create products that are easier, easier to use, safer without sacrificing convenience or style. UPPAbaby makes several styles of trolleys and a car seat. The G-Lite performance comparison has an easy-to-use smooth shoulder strap that's not as comfortable as the strap on Quinny Yezz, but easier to use than a stroller that only has a handle. Credit: Abriah Wofford G-Lite was above average in the weight and folded size category. This trolley has a total weight of 11.8 lbs and a volume of 6,105 cubic inches when folded. Only a few strollers are lighter G-Lite, but a few options fold smaller which makes it a hard one for parents who favor light and small. It offers a shoulder strap for easy transport. The ease of use of G-Lite is not the easiest to use with fewer features than some competitors. Fold and Unfold Fold G-Lite requires two hands and is started by pressing the button on each side and dragging the loop simultaneously (top left). If you turn on the loop first, be able to press a button or continue the flap, which is surprisingly common when folding. Once folded this trolley self-stands and has an automatic lock (top right). The brakes of the G-Lite brake are set and released on average with the certain rigidity and pressure required to ensure that they are engaged. Pedals are a chance of foot friendly and double action. Since the G-Link seat does not recede, the tank is always easy to access. Credit: The Abriah Wofford Storage G-Lite container contains up to 10 lbs of stock and matches our medium-sized diaper bag. The G-Lite seat does not recede, so the bucket is always available from the back and side. This stroller also has a removable parent cup holder. The G-Lite canopy is one of the most beautiful in the group with SPF 50 and pop out visor, but there are no peek-a-boo windows to spy on the baby. Credit: Abriah Wofford Sunshade G-Lite has a nice canopy size with a pop-out visor and SPF 50. While the canopy covers itself knee-deep, there is no window to see the baby, and that means you can't spy on the baby while walking with the canopies completely open. However, the canopy looks beautiful and is easy to use. While the G-Lite belt straps are smooth and feel nice, they don't tighten enough for smaller babies and the buckle is a bit stiff. Credit: The Abriah Wofford Harness G-Lite belt is a 5-point belt with silky smooth straps and a rigid but relatively simple buckle. Straps are easy to adjust and slide into place up or down. Rethreading requires pushing the strap through the grooves in the mesh, which is rigid enough to accept the strap without overlapping. Seat Seat G-Lite is made primarily of mesh fabric that is very airy but does not lean. There is also no rest on the leg, but there is a small backrest located just below the bottom of the seat. The ease of setting up the G-Lite took 3:39 minutes and we didn't need any tools. The trolley has only a few components to assemble, and the manual is quite useful. The G-Lite's maneuverability has plastic wheels and a dual front wheel design that translates into hard pushing and turning uneven terrain and veering off course when one wheel hits a bump or obstacle. The trolley is easier to push on flat surfaces, but it's still not as sensitive as it could be and there's some rubbing in the wheels that increases rolling resistance. G-Lite has small double plastic wheels on all four legs. They have what feels like extra rolling resistance that makes them harder to turn around and react less. Credit: Abriah Wofford This trolley has all-wheel suspension and handles covered in ergonomic foam. While a sling-style seat and suspension will help give the baby an easier ride, a lack of lining, adjustable leg rest and seat back will leave the baby uncomfortable if the adventure takes too long. Quality it has a similar quality to other UPPAbaby products (usually high), but the thin, plastic mesh back is not as friendly to touch and smaller plastic wheels would probably be easier to push if they were larger or higher quality for better rolling resistance. This trolley has a beautiful frame and most of the components are beautiful enough, but overall it has a cheaper feel and limited functionality. Manufacturer Video Price as tested: £195.00 Date added: 27th October 2016 LNGAbaby are a family owned and run business based in America. With family at the core of what they do, they aim to provide the most in convenience and style for parents through their products. elegant look, unique flap, hooded visor does not lie flat, basket on the smaller side. The G-Luxe is a lightweight umbrella trolley that has been in place for several years. She recently experienced make over, adding and changing the abundance of features to make the G-Luxe perfect for parents living at a fast pace of life. What's in the box? • Trolley • Wheels • Hood • Cup holder • Rain cover • Manual specification instructions • Open size (cm): H108 x W48 x D84 • Folded size (cms) : H108 x W3 0 x D22 • Weight: 6.8kg Suitability • From 3 months to 15kg RRP UPPAbaby G-Luxe is £195 Colours G-Luxe is available in 5 different colours - Denny, Sebyy, Jake, Makena and Ani. UPPAbaby G-Luxe ReviewMost parents who buy umbrella trolleys do so because they need a light and simple stroller for occasional use or travel. G-Luxe is just that - agile and super light! At 6.1kg, you won't find much umbrella trolley lighter than this one on the market, making G-Luxe perfect for tourists or parents who need the occasional stroller for their child. As with all LNGAbaby products, the frame on the G-Luxe is sleek and beautiful but practical too. The handles are comfortable to hold and although they are not adjustable, they sit in a nice position for an average-sized pusher. The wheels on the G-Luxe are smooth and will turn on for six minutes, perfect for store or airport passages. Although suitable for urban areas, LNGAbaby designers know that not all urban sidewalks are silky smooth, so the front wheels lock to give extra steering power over urban cobblestones and uneven sidewalks. If you need to pack your trolley into a tight space or even if your wheels are blurred, all four wheels are super easy to click and take off in a jiffy. The basket is of average size for a light trolley and you can fit a small shopping bag or two if necessary. Access to the basket is excellent because the seat does not fully withdraw. G-Luxe lives up to his name with a seat. The Luxe seat is nicely padded and will definitely give the baby a comfortable and comfortable ride. The new five-point adjustable belt means the child can be securely fastened A stroller with a unique U-shaped buckle buckle. A great feature is the adjustable calf rest which means younger babies will be supported legs so they don't hang over the edge of the stroller. Really striking and setting the G-Luxe apart from the other strollers is the hood. While not huge, it has that signature LNGAbaby fold silver sunscreen visor that gives much better coverage and protects against harmful rays. The rear seats are super sturdy and feel great quality. The design of the handle of one hand on the lying part of the backrest means that it is easy to move the position of the seats when the baby is in the stroller without jiggling them about too much or waking them up. Although the backrest is excellent, the seat does not fully recede, only at an angle of approximately 40 degrees, therefore why the G-Luxe is suitable from 3 months. However, it does not lean more than enough for the baby to have a pleasant delay. As unique as the hood, is the crease of the G-Luxe. A system we've never seen before on a trolley can take a little mastery. But once you break it, you're gone! The flap is controlled by pulling the levers of the two rings on both handles, placing the foot on the base on the right side of the trolley frame and folding forward. There is a lock that automatically bites into place to keep the package neat and tidy, and can also stand freely on a smart built-in stand. The shoulder strap means you can pour it over your shoulder to really easily transport it leaving your hands free for the baby. UPPAbaby G-Luxe review: The conclusion of the UPPAbaby G-Luxe is a lightweight and agile trolley with a style element. If you like standing out of the crowd, unique features such as a hood and a hoist popping, flap and unusual belt buckle shape will be perfect for you. It would be ideal if the seat leaned in a flat position so that the G-Luxe could be used from birth for travel, however the reclining system is easy to use and the seat leans enough to allow your child to have a very comfortable nap in the padded seat. We give LNGAbaby G-Luxe 4.5 out of 5 stars
