Floyd mayweather pacquiao live streaming

Isaac Brakken/Associated PressFloyd Mayweather Jr. and Manny Pacquiao are ready to face what has been dubbed the Century Fight. Whether the bout will live up to a high bill is a mystery, but the hype is certainly high skies in recent weeks. The best moment is that when the opening bell finally rings. That's when all the discussions, from whether the fight took place late to various predictions, faded away. The two best pound-for-pound boxers of recent times will clash in the end. Although there can always be a match if the result is close, it has a one-time sense of events. So let's take a look at all the important viewing information for long-awaited matches. That's followed by an action preview. Spot Coverage Details: MGM Grand Garden Arena in Las Vegas, NevadaWhen: Saturday, May 2 at 9 p.m. ETWatch: Showtime PPV and HBO PPVCountdown Special Live Stream: Showtime Anytime (8 p.m. ET)Fight PreviewQuite alone, it's a surprise fight between these two superstars coming together. After several years of mainstream discussion about the possibilities but no real progress towards the agreement between sides, it seems like a chance. Then suddenly, with both fighters looking for opponents and some good options, things came together to create a superfight. It's created the kind of attention boxing has been desperately looking in recent years. It's a bout that will go a long way in determining the long-term legacy of the two boxers. They each gathered a great career but never confronted the top opponents of that era. Still, Pacquiao doesn't sound too worried about what can happen. He spoke to Gareth Davies of The Telegraph about his thoughts. I did my best in training to make sure I was at a 100% situation, according to Pacquiao. To make sure I do my job, as a human being, I'm willing to fight mentally, physically and, most importantly, spiritually. The biggest key in the fight for Pac-Man was aggressive in the beginning. Mayweather may be out very defensively. The Philippine sensation must win a few direct rounds from the bat to get an Un verified American out of that shell. If it becomes a broader fight in which he is able to showcase his force and power, he will have a good chance. Should Wang be able to set a slower pace, letting him use his defensive skills and counter-attacks, the advantages would be clear in his favor. Greg Logan of Newsday surpassed the view from ESPN commentator Teddy Atlas, who believes Pacquiao has a puncher chance, literally. Strength Mayweather is his biggest weakness, Atlas said. He's so defensive that he gives you a chance to go to work. Pacquiao's speed of hand gives him a chance to outthrust Mayweather and snatch some rounds... Floyd is great, but Pacquiao Pacquiao Opportunity. One question that comes out of the fight, blocking a truly lopsided result, will be whether the high-profile duo will face again. As mentioned, the vibe is that it is a one-off exhibition, but the long-term view is understood to have not been the focus that led to the fight. Andy Glockner of the Cauldron made his prediction for how everything would play:Linguistic Quirks @AndyGlocknermy predictions: mayweather remains safe from various struggles, takes comfortable results, and they can do it again for big moneyIt a realistic sure view. A lot will probably depend on how Mayweather feels the first fight goes. If it's a comfortable win and he believes his unturned record isn't in any danger, it may be difficult to push another massive payday. There will be plenty of time for the discussion afterwards, of course. For now the focus is on the marquee struggles the boxing world has been waiting for. Hopefully it delivers. The so-called century struggle with Floyd Mayweather beat Manny Pacquiao with a unanimous decision in Las Vegas on Saturday - but live streaming service Periscope may really have landed a knock-out shot. The broadcaster suffered major headaches as part of those watching the fight - which cost up to $100 to order pay per view - live-streamed events on Twitter-owned Periscope and, to a lesser extent, the Meerkat app. Stephon Johnson tweeted Jarrett Payton's live streaming tweet of the high-profile event had been widely expected after both Meerkat and Periscope gained popularity earlier this year. Even HBO's own boxing Twitter account uses Periscope for live stage recordings of streams and provides exclusive online content to its followers. What the broadcaster doesn't want, however, is for the fight itself to be available - for free - online. HBO's tweets of course, unauthorized streaming is not new, and fans can often find streams of big sporting events or online movies. But the ease with which events can be streamed through live-streaming apps is a concern for cable operators. Last week, HBO and Showtime filed lawsuits to block several websites that illegally wanted to stream the fight, but taking action against Periscope and Meerkat seems more complex. The answers from Twitter's CEO, Dick Costolo, and investors on the micro-blogging website, Chris Sacca, get attention online, as they both seem to support live streaming of rights-protected events. Dick Costolo tweets Chris Sacca tweet Thompson tweeted Periscope Founder, Kayvon Beykpour, however, denouncing the illegal flow. Kayvon Beykpour tweeted High Cost watching the fight may be one of the factors that prompted people to turn to live-streaming apps, but some cable companies also seemed unable to cope with demand, with many customers reporting technical difficulties ordering the fight. Struggle. Davis tweeted What happened this weekend may have sparked a new fight, this time between Twitter - which owns Periscope - and the cable company, which could prove to be a bigger fight than between Mayweather and Pacquiao.Comcast, the owner of CNBC, invested in Meerkat. ♦ytä kaikkiSivun läpinäkyvyysFacebook näyttää tietoja, joiden avulla ymmärrät sivun tarkoitusta paremmin.
