Bangor Monday - Friday: 9am - 5pm Saturday:10am - 4pm Sunday: Closed Ellsworth Monday - Friday: 9:30AM - 5PMSaturday & Sunday: Closed BANGOR, Maine (WABI) -As the new school year begins, many students return to class without leaving their homes. Remote and hybrid learning models require technology, but many parents and carers find the supply does not meet their demand. David Pete, co-owner of Computer Essentials, said: "I had people call and ask us if we had anything coming and buy it an invisible sight. Just say, I'll buy it now, so I'll have it when it arrives here. With many Maine students facing some level of remote learning this fall, demand for laptops is overwhelming local businesses. Pete explained: "We had a couple of times when we had to take the phone numbers and say, we'll call you when we get something. I've had a few people just come to buy something, in some cases. Got it? We'll buy it. I'll take it as long as it works. In addition to purchasing new products, Computer Essentials sees customers come to repair in their existing models. Can I put Windows 10 on this old PC to let my child use it? Can I do this work again to work from home? Yes, yes, we still had a lot of repairs in this regard. The cities of Hermon, Carmel and Levant are using federal money cares laws to ensure every student in grades three to 12 has access to their own laptop. They also purchased several iPads for younger classes. Chasse said: We are excited. It will be a lot of work at the beginning only to implement them, but we will celebrate when they arrive. And it's a ray of sunshine at a difficult time for students to say I'm going to get a MacBook with this pandemic deal anyway, and I can use it to communicate with my teachers and Zoom and Google meet and so on. Chasse expects the shipment to be picked up in the next few weeks. For those whose neighborhoods don't deliver laptops and may still need them, Pete said it's a good time to check with stores. Pete explained: As toilet paper was in April, you can usually find something in the end, haha. Copyright 2020 WABI. All rights reserved. Reserved.
