Subway restaurant stock price today

Yesterday, I tried my hand at cooking Marsala chicken, a favorite I often order at local restaurants. However, when it came to being part of a recipe that demanded Marsala wine, I called audible, bold or stupid as it was, and instead replaced Fireball whiskey. The better half I question move (and refuse to taste my new concoction), but that's how great recipes get their start. It was an interesting result; A mixture of sweet and salty, similar to eating kettle popcorn. The jury is still out though, and I left the recipe to try a second with today. Speaking about being a jury, after a subpar year in 2019, the restaurant shares off to a decent year in early 2020. A basket of 40 restaurant names I track (minimum market cap $100 million) is up about 4.7% on average, better than the S&P 500 (+2.1%), Russell 2000 (-.33%) and Russell Microcap (-1.01%). Big Five (a coin-free term) -- consisting of McDonald's Corporation (MC), D (+6.9%), Yom Brands (YUM) (+4.2%), Hadden Restaurants (DRI) (+8.2%), Chipotle Mexican Grill (CMG) (+3.9%) and Domino's Pizza (DPZ) (-3%) - are doing just fine at this point, up an average of about 4%. CMG went on to head higher after the 2019 blister which saw stocks rise 94%. While looking great 2018 (+49%), three years before 2017 (-23.4%), 2016 (-21.4%) And 2015 (-29.9%) were not kind. In fact, during the five-year run since the beginning of 2014, CMG shares returned, putting back from the beginning of 2015 to Friday, at only 27% (not annual). CMG currently trades at around 48x next year's consensus estimate. It's definitely not cheap for restaurants in general, but CMG has traded for a much higher multiples. Definitely don't have the look of a buy-and-hold candidate, and one to trade if you're so inclined (I'm not). The best year-to-day presenter is First Name Habit Restaurant (HABT) (+34%), courtesy of YUM's $6th $14 per share offer. It proves that M&A is alive and well in the restaurant sector, but it is a somewhat bitter end to the name, which became public at $10 in 2014, trading once above $40/share. (I suppose we may see more restaurant deals this year, and cover in an upcoming column). The worst performer so far in 2020 is the Carols Restaurant Group (TAST) (-32%). TAST has been nasudber for the past three quarters, losing eight cents per share in 2020, a recovery over what is expected for the full year 2019 (-29 cents). TAST, which franchises 1030 Burger King and 60 Popeye restaurants in the United States, has fallen nearly 30% since it issued preliminary fourth-quarter sales results on January 13 that showed declining sales in November and December. The next day, the company was presented at the ACR's annual conference. It's not a name I'm all familiar with, but maybe it's time for a Dive. The cheapest names in terms of forward price earnings ratios include Juncker (EAT) (10), Dean Brands Global (DIN) (11.4) and Bloomin Brands (BLMN) (12.5). I have more future columns devoted to the section as there are as many to cover. Sep 14, 2020McDonald's Sales Are Up. Shares are on track to reach new Highs.
