Mickey Mouse Watches by Seiko Not many people know that Lorus is a watch brand made and owned by Seiko, a famous Japanese watch manufacturer. Premium quality is therefore added when we talk about vintage Lorus Mickey Mouse watches models. Seiko has been around since 1881, 1969, introducing the world's first production quartz clock, Astron. All that experience and history behind Seiko, Lorus and Pulsar watches has become world-class brands that have produced some great character watches from the 80s and 90s. This means that we invite you to watch our vintage collection of Seiko, Lorus and Pulsar watches. Seiko in the United States Seiko Corporation of America is responsible for distributing Seiko watches, as well as Pulsar and Lorus brand watches, in the United States. The models available in the United States are usually smaller subsets of the entire range produced in Japan. Seiko Corporation of America has its headquarters (and Coserv repair center) in Mahwah, New Jersey. In the United States, Seiko watches are mainly sold by fine jewelers and department stores as well as 19 company stores located in different cities.
