Neat's super portable NeatReceipts NM-1000 scanner is designed for mobile workers who want to cut down on paper chimneys. The device is small enough to fit most laptop bags, and features the Neat's unique Neat 5 software package, which helps make document sorting quick and painless. But is the $179 NeatReceipts NM-1000 best in its class? DesignWeighing 11.6 ounces and measuring 10.8 x 1.6 x 1.3 inches, NeatReceipts NM-1000 was the smallest and lightest scanner in our roundup, coming in just 0.2 ounces lighter than Epson 11.8-ce ou WorkForce DS-30. For comparison, Plustek's MobileOffice S410 weighs 13.9 ounces and measures 10.8 x 1.9 x 1.3 inches. With such a small footprint, we were easily able to pack the NM-1000 with a messenger or laptop bag. The scanner's relatively petite size also helped make moving the unit around our workplace feel like less of a workout than other portable scanners. The folks at Neat would be commended for making a portable scanner that doesn't look like a misspelled block of plastic. Covered with a shiny white chassis, the rectangular NM-1000's most eye-catching feature is its matte black document feeder. The only distinctive factor is the signalling Neat logo located in the upper left corner of the unit. NeatReceipts has only two buttons located on the device's upper right corner. The larger Scan button is used to scan documents as standard JPG files, but a smaller PDF button is used when you scan documents in PDF files. Next to the Scan button, there is a green indicator that flashes each time the NM-1000 is turned on and flashes when you scan documents. A micro USB port built into the right side of the scanner connects the device to the computer. Installation and ease of useD-1000 setup for us five minutes. Simply slide the installation disc (or download the appropriate drivers from the Neat website) and follow the on-screen instructions. During the process, we had to register with our device with Neat using a valid email and username. When it was finished, we received a confirmation email, plugged the scanner into our notebook and was ready to go. To date, NeatReceipts the most unique feature is its digital file management system, the Neat 5. Scan something using NM-1000, and the Neat 5 function can determine whether the item is a document, receipt, or business card. Not only that, but the software will also enter the information it collects from scanned items – phone numbers, addresses, names – to searchable and editable Fields. In addition to a scanned scanned we were also able to export our scanned items to various third-party programs. For example, we were able to quickly export information from a sales receipt to a Microsoft Excel spreadsheet, where the price, date of purchase, tax, and tax category for our purchase were listed and placed in the appropriate categories. Other export options include Outlook, Word, Quicken, QuickBooks, and TurboTax, as well as standard PDF and JPG options. Neat 5 also allows users to scan the cloud through Neat's NeatCloud For road warriors, Neat 5 also features a spending report template. Using the template was as easy as scanning our receipts, selecting the Report tab of the Neat 5 dashboard, and following the on-screen instructions. Need help in organizing taxes? The same software allows you to create tax reports as well as expense summary reports. The performance Nm-1000 is able to scan items from 1 x 1 to 8.5 x 14 inches, with a maximum resolution of 600 dpi, although it is also able to scan documents up to 30 inches long. According to Neat, the NM-1000 scans receipts at a rate of three to four business cards per minute. During our testing, the scanner took an average of 24.4 seconds to scan a black and white 8.5 x 11-inch document. By comparison, the Fujitsu ScanSnap S1100 took only 9.4 seconds, while the MobileOffice S410 had 12.8 seconds. NeatReceipts were much faster to scan business cards, taking only 6.9 seconds. It was still longer than Fujitsu, which took 3.5 seconds and MobileOffice, which took 2.9 seconds. The photos, as expected, were the longest to scan, averaging about 35.9 seconds. And while it's much faster than the Plustek MobileOffice S410's 53.2-second scan, it's still not as fast as Fujitsu's 28.9 seconds. The image quality was good when scanning black and white documents. The lines were clear and we didn't notice the artifacts. We did, however, notice some minor image distortion when we scanned some business cards in black and white. But when we switched to color, the distortions disappeared. Scanned color images were clear and crisp, but looked a little washed out. The colors scanned the image of a California vineyard that seems to lose much of their pop. Much of the vine's foliage was replaced by brown and deep blues from the sky took on a lighter hue. Because of its compact size, the NM-1000 can only scan one document at a time, which can be a major inconvenience if you have a heavy workload. UnReceipts is also missing duplexer, which means you have to scan two-sided documents twice. Fortunately, Neat 5 has the ability to combine multiple scanned items into one multipage document. WarrantyNeatReceipts includes a one-year limited hardware warranty. Neat also offers an extended grounded called NeatCare, which adds one year of accidental damage protection, unlimited phone and online support during the lifetime of your NeatCare plan, as well as a backup scanner and speed up delivery if the original scanner bites into the dust. VerdictThe small-size $179 NeatReceipts NM-1000, along with the included Neat 5 software, makes it a powerful choice for a truly mobile worker or average user who needs a space saving scanning solution. Black and white documents are usually clear, and the photos are crisp and without a streak. While we prefer both the quality and speed of the $199 Fujitsu ScanSnap S1100, road warriors will appreciate the NM-1000's stable software offering. 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 11 12 13 14 15 16 17 18 19 20 21 22 23 24 25 26 27 28 29 30 31 32 33 34 35 36 37 38 39 40 41 42 43 44 45 46 47 48 49 50 51 52 53 54 55 56 57 58 59 60 61 62 63 64 65 66 67 68 69 70 71 72 73 74 75 76 77 78 79 80 81 82 83 84 85 86 87 88 89 90 91 92 93 94 95 96 97 98 99 100 101 102 103 104 105 106 107 108 109 110 111 112 113 114 115 116 117 117 118 119 120 121 122 123 124 125 126 127 128 129 130 131 132 133 1 34 135 136 137 138 139 140 141 142 143 144 145 146 147 Table of Contents 148 148
