Divine youth ageless face moisturizer review

© 1996-2014, Amazon.com, Inc. or its subsidiary Divine Youth is an anti-ageing moisturizer that promises various benefits, but can we believe these claims? We have reviewed a seemingly endless number of trial offers in the past and have been disappointed by each of them. Is there anything that distinguishes this offer from the rest? The following review will discover the truth behind the hype. Read on before rushing to sign up for this offer. Claims from Divine Youth The first claim you will find is that using this product will help you achieve visibly younger skin, it also makes the following claims on its website: Brighten skin appearance Restore your radiant, firmer skin Smooth appearance of stubborn fine lines Of course these claims sound impressive, but we have read similar claims in the past, only to be disappointed by the lack of evidence. To check if Divine Youth can really offer these benefits, we will need to look at the product in more detail, especially on the ingredients used. Ingredients found in Divine Youth We have reviewed products in the past that don't even list their ingredients, which make them impossible to prove their claims. Divine Youth, however, has a list of its ingredients available, with proven ingredients like Hydrolysed Marine Collagen, among others used. Of course, we would prefer a label that shows the actual dosages, but this is much better than nothing. It also shows us that there should be some benefit to using this product. There are still other aspects to consider before we accept this trial offer, such as how much does it cost, and are there any hidden terms that we should be aware of? Price of Divine Youth Terms and Conditions page found at the bottom of the website will reveal the true price of this trial offer. These T&A reveals that Divine Youth will cost an initial $4.97, but this only gives you 14 days to decide if you want to continue using this product. After this 14 day trial has ended you will be charged again, this time $89.97. This won't be the end of the trial though, as failure to contact them to cancel the trial means that you will automatically be signed to an auto-ship program that will continue to send you monthly until your subscription is canceled. Is Divine Youth a Scam? After looking at the ingredients used I can certainly see some benefits of using this product. Unfortunately, there are questions about its price. Simply put, it's too expensive and chances are you won't be happy to be automatically placed on an auto-ship program. Before you sign up for any trial offer, you should always do your research to check what you are signing up for. Otherwise you might be in for an expensive shock. As it stands now, we cannot recommend that you sign up for this offer. Alternative to Divine Youth If you have been suspended after reading our review above then fear not as there are solutions available to you. For example, XYZ Smart Collagen will be highly recommended. It is made with proven anti-ageing ingredients, so you should see great results using it. Benefits offered include: Fewer lines and wrinkles Increased skin moisture Boost in collagen production This product is not available for trial so no need to worry about auto-transportation or any hidden fees. Click here to read our full review of XYZ Smart Collagen &t; KEY INGREDIENTS: Sunflower-seed, borage-seed, apricot-core, evening primrose, and seabuckhorn oils (moisturize); rose hip oil (increases skin's protective barrier) HOW IT LOOKS/FEELS/SCENTS: We start with our shallowest observation: The shapely glass bottle, golden hue, and push-pump gold cap make it look more like a perfume than a skin product. Fittingly, this oil also smells amazing, in a way that almost defies description. Imagine a delicate flower that you want to eat and you are in the ballpark. Why we like it: If you're a facial holdout, this could be your ticket. It sinks in so fast that you need to use more than a drop or two (we found that an entire pump wasn't overkill at night), and it leaves the skin seriously luminous. Even better: Oils are great because, according to dermatologist David Colbert, if you apply an oil before your anti-aging cream, the oil molecules behave like small Trojan horses, allowing active ingredients—like retinol, glycolic acid, and vitamin C—deeper into your skin and closer to the collagen-producing fibroblasts—all without irritating the surface. I signed up for a cheap sample and now receive monthly bills completely $178. They refuse to take product even though it didn't work for me. It's outrageous. Companies like this can continue to lure people into recurring bills. I am very upset about not getting my full refund.
