Carrie Craft Print this page | Go back to the beginning of this tutorial I like to put a worksheet in front of my foster care binder with quick facts about a foster child. It is also useful for my husband, who does not always remember the names of the various social workers involved in the case or birthday for each foster child placed in our house. The basic information worksheet would be located at the front of the binder. Before you proceed to the next step, print a sheet of basic | Next&gt;&gt; Contact Information Worksheet Photos ©. Carrie Craft Print this page | Return to the beginning of this tutorial There are many people who have to watch as a foster parent. Use the following printable worksheets to help you track all the major players on your foster child's team. Since each area covers social workers with different degrees and has different team members, you may need to customize the list to suit your foster care system and your foster child's team. Some members of foster care may include: social worker child social worker children CASA children who are contact persons, the contact sheet would be placed in front of the book behind the worksheet basic information. Before you move on to the next step, print a contact contact sheet for foster care | Next&gt;&gt; Foster Care Drugs Log Photo ©. Carrie Craft Print this page | Return to the beginning of this tutorial Many foster children take medication and it is often a requirement to monitor medications relative to foster children. Drug monitoring will usually involve over-the-counter medications. Use this print sheet to help sign up medications and dosage given, recognition of the date on the left, the circle to be administered (A, B, B, morning, noon or bedtime. When administering over the counter medications, it can also be helpful to note the time given next to the date as well. Then the adult caregiver who gave the drug must start under the appropriate column for that date, time, and medication. The drug log would be placed under the Medical tab. Before you move on to the next step, print | Next&gt;&gt; Weekly Photo ©. Carrie Craft Print this page | Go back to the beginning of this tutorial I prefer to use large schedulers instead of small pocket calendars. It gives me a lot of space not only to note meetings, but it's also helpful when I need to record something that a foster child or biological parent has told me or document a behavioral problem at school. Use this printable calendar to track behavior, events, phone calls, and mileage for meetings and visits. After printing the calendar fold in half (x is the mark to fold the line). Then punch holes along one side (x on the outer edge) and place in a small diary for the day or binder. The weekly tracking calendar would be placed in a diary or small binder. When finished with a full month print calendar, place in foster care binders under Location of Care. Print your weekly book before moving on to the next | Next&gt;&gt; Monthly Report on Foster Care Photo ©. Carrie Craft Print this page | Returning to the beginning of this tutorial My foster agency likes to receive a monthly report that falls apart when a child has visited a doctor, gone to the dentist or visited a biological parent. I also found that keeping a copy of this message to myself really helped me keep on top of things in the case of my foster child. If a social worker asks for information, I can quickly find a date or incident without any problems. Place monthly foster care reports in the foster care binder under Placement or Care. Before you move on to the next step, print a monthly report on foster care | Next&gt;&gt; Safety Plan Worksheet Photo ©. Carrie Craft Print this page | Going back to the beginning of this safety plan tutorial can be the worksheet you want as part of your binder for keeping records in foster care when dealing with difficult or challenging behaviors such as anger problems, sexual behavior, starting a fire, running. Don't forget to review the security plan often. Consider: How does your plan succeed/fail? When? What worked? What can you do better tomorrow? What did you miss? If a security plan is in place, a copy would be placed under the Care tab. Use this workbook, which can be printed in a security plan. Print the Security Plan workbook before moving to the next | Next&gt;&gt; Respite Foster Care Information Worksheet Photo ©. Carrie Craft Print this page | Return to the beginning of this tutorial Sometimes foster families need a break and it's until the foster care agency find another foster family or respite provider to the children. However, it is up to the foster family to make sure that things are organized for the respite provider. Take advantage of this printable worksheet to help a rested foster family provide the best care for your foster children. Sight words, or Dolch words, are vocabulary words that need to be remembered by sight in order to achieve language and reading fluency. Some visual words are abstract or cannot be phonetically sounded; but by learning to recognize them immediately, children can decipher new words in context. In 1948, Edward William Dolch, Ph.D., published a list of 220 common service or tool words (including adjectives, prepositions, verbs, etc.) book Problems with Reading. The list was by class (pre-K to third) and was compiled after analysis of various children's books published since 1936. Dolch later compiled a separate list of 95 essential words, but its original list is still commonly referred to and used today.
