I bought them as part of a 3-Piece Crispy Chicken & amp; Fries Box for $4, which included three chicken paths, these appear to form soil meat pathways because they have a smoother texture and are rather moist. The bread on the outside is enough for a thin kot and a little seed around it. It's just sporadically rangup, which makes them feel a bit like a school cafeteria chicken line or something you might burn at home. Taste-wise, the chicken path is somewhat neutral, which is appropriate for dipping but a little ordinary if not with only salt, chicken, and only hints of black pepper. Sos chipotle offers a nice combination of smoking, creamy, sweet, masin, and flavorful flavors that are somewhat reminiscent of the special sos at Raising Cane's. It also goes smoothly with madness, which is excitable and not very masin. Overall, the Chicken Rangup Del Taco Line falls at the low end of the chicken food line spectrum immediately. They're pretty clear and not all that rangup but maybe. However, a $4 combo is a lot cheaper, filling, and easy. Also, they might hit the spot if you feel a little nostalgic for school cafeterias.
