How to locate a fake Chanel backpack As with many other Chanel products, as well as with other designer brands in general, there are many retailers out there that sell counterfeit Chanel backpacks. It's important to learn how to tell the difference between a genuine Chanel backpack and a fake one, to avoid being ripped off by thousands of dollars. Buy directly If you buy your Chanel backpack directly from a Chanel store or from Chanel.com, then you will know that you are getting the real deal, and first hand to boot! Skip the worry of checking and authentication from dubious online retailers, and go only to the source. Duster Bag backpacks and even Chanel have a duster bag. A true reseller will always hang on the duster bag, as it is a key part of an authentication of a Chanel bag. The duster bag should be black, and inserted with the word Chanel in white capital letters. Printing should be completely stable and start white, and the font should be the correct size and thickness. You should immediately be suspicious if the backpack comes without a duster bag, or if the duster bag is not well printed. Serial number All Chanel backpacks and wallets have a serial number. The serial number is always 8 digits or less, and a Google search of the serial number will match your bag model and the year it was made. The serial number appears on a sticker, although the position of the sticker varies from bag to bag. Authenticity card Unfortunately, a Chanel authenticity card is quite easy to reproduce, although it should still give a good look. The number on the authenticity card must match the serial number on the sticker. card must be thick and stable, something like a credit card. A genuine authenticity card will always be perfectly aligned, with a gray circle in the upper right corner (at least for bags made in 2005 and after). Finally, be aware that sometimes fake authenticity cards have a hologram effect especially over metal letters, while an authentic card never does. Skin Quality Take a Look the material of the Chanel backpack that you have purchased or are hoping to buy. While not all Chanel backpacks are made of leather, most are. The skin should feel soft and supple, and made of either calf, goat, or lamb. The skin in Chanel backpacks is rarely coated with anything, so it should have an organic texture that is slightly uneven. If the skin is too shiny or flat, this should raise some concern. Quality embroidery Chanel backpacks are often covered in a quilted pattern or diamond embroidery. Since Chanel backpacks are made by skilled craftsmen, the embroidery should be even strong, especially along the bottom seams. If you see inequality, this should raise some serious doubts, especially if the bag is supposed to be new. The CC logo The interlocked Cs of the Chanel logo is an important element of any Chanel bag, including backpacks. Any deviation from the original design of the logo will make a fake backpack easy to spot. The logo can appear as a closure or just as a little embellishment in the bag, as well as in the form of a printout. The way in which the two Cs interlock is important - the right C overlaps the left C at the top and the left overlaps the right at the bottom. The edges of each letter are completely flat and not rounded, and if the logo is made of metal, the two rear screws should be inserted with Chanel and Paris respectively. In addition, the quality of the material used for the logo is another ensign - the logo on a fake bag can peel or fade overtime while remaining solid and shiny in an authentic Chanel backpack. Chain straps Chain straps in Chanel backpacks are a place where even good replicators fail. Woven through the straps is a thin length of skin that should always be of the same quality as the skin of the Chanel backpack itself. This leather strap should be stitched together evenly, without any bit of it doubling over. Stitch Count Especially when it comes to cushioning designs, embroidery and seams in Chanel backpacks should always be thick, with a high number of stitches. A counterfeiter will rarely go through trying to use several stitches in the bag. Perfect lining The lining inside a Chanel backpack can be made from a variety of materials, but the key is that it is flawless - it puts flat against the body of the backpack, and never crumples or gets amorphous. It is also very well connected to the bag. Any imperfections are a sign of a fake. Internal logo The Chanel logo should also be embossed on the inside Bag. Check that it is really embossed in the material of the bag, instead of being printed on top of it. In addition, the logo on the inside should be the same color as the logo of the material on the outside. The font must be the correct size: 3.3 cm in height. Inside it will also say normally if the bag was made inside inside or Italy, though not always. Overall quality Simply put, your Chanel backpack should look and feel luxe. It should stand upright, and look stable and well constructed. Any defects in construction or anything that doesn't look well made is a sure sign that your bag is fake. Ask a professional There are many people whose profession is to validate designer handbags! You can contact the verifier in the Chanel forum on PurseBlog.com, or you can consult an authentication service such as authenticatfirst.com. How to Carry a Chanel Backpack Because Chanel Backpacks are much more than just your average backpack, there are a few different ways to wear them! The small size of the bag, combined with the long length of the straps, means that you can adjust the way you wear a Chanel backpack to work with different clothes and cases. Backpack Carry This is the perfect way to carry your Chanel backpack if you are going to be out and about all day, such as festivals, day trips, or errand days. Just wear every strap over each shoulder, as you would with any other backpack. Due to the length of the straps, most Chanel backpacks will sit down on your back so as not to disguise your shoulders or the outfit you are wearing. Shoulder Carry Pulling both straps of your Chanel backpack together, you can wear it over a single shoulder. This will look like a traditional shoulder carry on every woman's wallet that now has straps, and with most Chanel backpacks it's classy enough to allow you to carry the bag as the only cross-body option. This can be very comfortable with smaller bags that aren't too heavy, and can look more mellow and stylish than a backpack carrying, but still casual. Inner Chain Shoulder Carry This is another method for carrying a Chanel backpack that only works with a cord-style top. • Pull the straps of the Chanel backpack from the inside of the bag so that they face each other. • Drag your hand through the two loops they make, and so that the backpack sits comfortably against your side. This is a shoulder carry that will make your Chanel backpack look a lot like a wallet! Elbow Carry This final method will allow you to Chanel your backpack like a bag! • Pull the straps from the top of the backpack so that they come out in four loops. • Align the loops, and then drag your hand through them to carry the bag to your elbow, or simply grab a hold of them with your hand. This is another great option for taking your Chanel backpack with you to the office or on a date! Photos via @pamhetlinger, @leoniehanne, @alexandralapp_, @thelondmacaron, @cassdimicco @cassdimicco
