The player plays as Miley Stewart and Lilly Truscott as they search for the person who can reveal Miley's secret alter ego, Hannah Montana. The player must find clues and match items to solve three original mysteries, with the help of gadgets: a specialized magnifying glass and a specialized flashlight. There is also an interactive system of dialogue and gestures used to communicate with others. In addition, Lilly can also ride skateboards, skates or scooters in timed challenges. Players can also design custom outfits and access Hannah Montana's secret wardrobe through the Nintendo DS wireless network. The player has to look for clues with Oliver Oken's devices. The player should also avoid Amber, Ashley and Jackson. In the end, when the game is completed, players can go to the places and search for more wardrobe items and explore Malibu. The game sold 1.3 million copies. 2007 Hannah Montana: Spotlight World Tour games was developed by Avalanche Software and released on November 6, 2007 in the US for PlayStation 2 and Wii. It has nine tourist arenas, including Tokyo, London and Paris. Players control Hannah's movements using the Wii Remote and Nunchuk (Wii) and dance pads (PS2). The game includes 16 songs, 8 from season 1 and 8 from Season. It was released soon another game, Hannah Montana: Music Jam for the Nintendo DS. The game was released for PlayStation 2 on August 12, 2008. Hannah Montana: Music Jam was released on November 7, 2007 in North America and on May 29, 2008 in Europe for Nintendo DS. [3] The game allows players to create songs, make music videos, and show their creations to other players. Players are able to link Nintendo DS systems in short wireless range to form live instrument bands. 2009 Hannah Montana Games: The film was developed by n-Space. The game was released in North America—three days before the film's theatrical release—on April 7, 2009, in Europe on May 8, 2009, and in Australia in May 2009 for playstation 3, Nintendo DS, Xbox 360, and Wii. It was revealed by the ESRB. The game had leaked on the internet about a week before the release date. The player plays as Miley and Hannah and explores the Crowley Corners and interacts with Miley's circle of family and friends during missions. Players unlock key items for Hannah's concerts - such as music and concert venues - as a complete mission. In concert mode, players perform on 6 different stages for 9 songs by Hannah (3 from the film). Players can join the band members and play with them on drums, keyboards or guitar. You can only play songs at concert venues that have already been unlocked in Story Mode. Points are given in performances and when a task is completed and can be used to buy more clothes and accessories. The Z-Phone is the tool to discover missions and navigate the path around Crowley Corners. When someone receives a call, a small icon will flash on the screen. It is necessary to answer the call while the icon is flashing on the screen to get important messages, such as keeping track of furniture, clothing, and achievements that the player unlocks; it displays the map that is used to move to different locations in Crowley Corners, marks progress in mission objectives and is also used to take the player to the tour bus. The player will also play several mini-games to earn achievement points or trophies and unlock new game content. Mini-games can be played in story or quick game mode. Horseback Riding- Go on a ride with Blue Jeans; Jump the obstacles and collect special items on the field to score points and unlock new features of the game. Milk Jug Topple (called Bottle Toss in the game)- Toss bean bags to knock down milk jugs at the County Fair. Collect points for each jar that is knocked to the ground. Horse Racing- The player runs with a horse down a track, or competes with other players by hitting the target with a water pistol. Frog Jump- The player earns points by throwing rubber frogs at lily pads with a hammer. Montana: Rock Out The Show was bundled with the Hannah Montana PSP Entertainment Pack that includes a lilac PSP, a UMD with selected episodes of Hannah Montana, a 2 GB GB stick and vinyl stickers. Developed by Page 44 Studios, standalone games were released on August 4, 2009 in North America. In the game, Robbie Ray gets sick, so Hannah has to manage her new tour around the world. The player must create the stages, select the songs and dress Hannah up. The song list includes 11 songs, with some new ones, from the third season. The player must play rhythm-based games, while Hannah sings the songs. While the Wii version was met with positive reviews, the Xbox 360 version of the game was criticized by critics where it received a low Metacritic score of 25/100. Canceled game Hannah Montana: Pop Star Exclusive would be the fifth game based on the television show Hannah Montana, and the sixth based on the character Hannah Montana. Developed by EA Bright Light Studio, the game has been put on hold indefinitely. The players would have taken on the role of VIP photojournalist of Hannah and would embark on an opportunity for a tour with Hannah Montana. Players solve puzzles to set up the ideal photo shoot experience and help Hannah create outfits for every occasion.
