Where you eat, surrounded by vintage typewriters and other vintage styles for authentic Cuban food, it's the best thing. Most people come to Tampa and Miami who want to try great Cuban food but it's a real surprise to find it here in the countryside, old Florida vibes abounds at this wine bar and restaurant, open for dinner only and is located within a 1940s cottage. It's surprising to find such an elegant restaurant in the cozy Crystal River. If you're looking for local and international seafood that's well prepared as well (think French sauces and even escargot) there's plenty to choose from. This is the ultimate Florida waterfront venture with absolutely zero frills but harbour views and keen salt air, mostly fruitless seafood is what people come here, especially steamed crabs and shrimp. You can order several dishes and everyone has a share to get a taste of it all. When Florida shale crabs are in season, they sell out quickly—grab them if they're on the menu. Mullet dip fumigation is a local must start.
