Scouts never add or subtract actual merit badge requirements, and this planner is just a suggestion of different ideas to make this merit badge work happily and easily. Creating a worksheet is not a requirement to earn this badge, but it often helps you learn important concepts and track progress. A. Make your planning file: Snow Sports MBBook.jpg 1.Before you begin - Get basic leadership training: 2. Merit Badge Guide: Snow Sports Merit Badge Requirements: MeritBadge.org Guide Snow Sports Merit Badge Booklet: Here's everything you need to know about Snow Sports: Requirements, Additional Resources, Activity Worksheets, etc. Learn more about this subject by obtaining this learning guide from Amazon or your unit library, Merit Badge Counselor, or Scout Master. Meet Merit Badge Counselor: Get more ideas for cool snow sports activities in your community. Some activities require his prior approval. The Scout Master should be able to recommend you a counselor. Bring your friends. 3. Sample Plan Overview: Note: This plan is a draft - some dates, events, and activities are subject to change after review with the reader. Think deeply about each of the sections below - what do you still study, where you go, what do you do, when do you start and end? Prepare an activity flyer draft: Flyers combine all your ideas into a single page in a colorful format. B. Planning presentation At least one month in advance, the patrol plan must be presented for review, change and approval. Preparing an action plan is very important for the success of your activities. There are many adults and youth leaders are waiting to help you. Prepare a rough draft of the plan - prepare a rough draft of the flyer for the purpose of the event and the calendar event - objective, event calendar, and how to prepare. Carefully describe all prerequisites, required consumables, costs, homework, etc. Meet the Scout Master and/or Troop Guide. Meet with the Patrol Leader Council. Snow sports are fun!- Patrol presentation. Please share your plan with your patrol 1-3 weeks before the start of the activity. They need to know what to expect. They may bring a friend. Please share your plans with your fellow scouts. Send a reminder to the Scouts - at least 24 hours before each event.Scouts print and bring the Snow Sports Merit Badge Worksheet. Let the Scouts remember to print out their blue cards and bring them with them. Which Scouts Need Extra Copies?C. Research Hall Some Scouts may be familiar with self-learning, while others may want to take notes on the worksheet in small group settings. You can facilitate the discussion by asking why each intruding principle is relevant here. Schedule one or more patrol meetings for this merit badge to work. Prepare the agenda and assign it as needed. What materials do I need for this meeting? Who will bring them? Merit Update one or more sections of the badge worksheet. (Please ask the Merit Badge Counselor for relevant requirements here.) Invite merit badge counselors to the study hall. Planning and preparation of patrol field trip activities (see below). D. Assign one or more requirements that homework scouts can do at home. E. Field Trip meaningful field trip will add a lot to the adventure here. Merit Badge Camp out: The overnight experience of a field trip allows you to approach the action and see things in a different way. Facility tours: Day trips to relevant natural museums, galleries, or factories. Get Dirty Day: Set up workstations in your garage, backyard, park or elsewhere for a really hands-on experience. Service Project: There are many organizations related to this merit badge and you can take advantage of your assistance. Please contact your destination. Make sure they can help with field trip requirements. Reserve the date of the event. If necessary, you will receive Scout Master Assistance. Patrol historians should be ready to take pictures about this activity to report to the next troop blog, newsletter or honorary court. F. Merit Badge Counselor and Final Meeting Merit You need to schedule one patrol night for a follow-up meeting with the Badge Counselor. He/she will use this opportunity to meet with individual scouts as a group to review your activities and study worksheets, knowledge and achievements before signing off your merit badge blue card. You can also discuss future opportunities. Honorary Court Exhibits: Photos, hand-works and other melee from this adventure make for a great presentation at the Scout Corps Court next in honor. G.
