Manual of office procedure income tax

Taxes are inevitable, but if you're educated, you can soften their impact. Learn about organizing taxes and money, income taxes, and other issues on the Tax Channel. There are several types of income taxes that help the government raise money to support its day-to-day operations. This income tax can affect income earned by individuals or corporations, and sometimes affects both. Taxes are collected annually in the U.S. by the IRS. Income is a payment system as you go, meaning that as you earn money you have withholding money from your salaries to pay for taxes at the end of the year. The best-known income tax is the tax paid on personal income. Personal income can include wages, interest income and dividends. In the U.S., the personal income tax is progressive tax, meaning that the more money you make the higher percentage of your income will pay in taxes. For example, in 2009 the first income of $8,350 taxable is taxed at a rate of 10 percent, while income above $372,950 is taxed at a tax rate of 35 percent. Capital gains or losses are income or losses that you bond from investments in assets or commodities. Capital gains at the rate are tax depending on whether they are long-term or short-term capital gains. Long-term gains are the ones you get from investments you hold for at least a year. Long-term earnings are typically taxed at a maximum of 15 percent. Companies that earn in the U.S. are responsible for paying income taxes. According to the Tax Foundation, combined U.S. federal and state corporate taxes are 39.1% in 2009, one of the highest rates in the world. Because people who receive dividends from these companies should also pay taxes on the dividends, some feel that dividends are unfairly subject to double taxation. Know together as FICA, or federal insurance contributions law, taxes, your pay is subject to Social Security and Medicare taxes. For people employed by an employer, these taxes are split between employer and employee. For 2009, the Medicare tax is 2.9 percent so the employer and employee all pay 1.45 percent. The Social Security tax is 12.4 percent so the employer and employee each pay 6.2 percent. The Social Security tax is charged only about the first $106,800 of your income. If you are self-employed, you are responsible for paying all social security and Medicare taxes on your income instead of handing out those taxes with your employer so that you are responsible for paying all 15.3 percent. There are two tax breaks related to self-employment taxes. First, 15.3 percent are charged only about 92.35 percent of your income. Second, half of what you pay in self-employment taxes is a deduction from your taxable income when you pay your personal income tax. Paying federal income tax now seems so routine that it's hard A time when the IRS was controversial. The federal income tax as we know it is actually just over a hundred years old. According to the Wes Priorities Budget Policy Center, individual income tax dollars made up 46% of federal tax revenue in 2014. That's a lot of money. How do income taxes work? Each spring, employers submit W-2 forms on behalf of their employees and Americans to fill out federal income tax returns on forms with opaque names like 1040 and 1099. Tax returns are the forms you submit to the IRS that determine your tax liability. If you work, your employer denies some income tax payments from your payroll. When you start a job you use the W-4 income tax form to indicate how your employer should withhold taxes from your payroll. The federal income tax system in this country is making progress. Progressive in taxation means that people with more money pay a higher rate in taxes. The IRS has income-related tax brackets. This increases your percentage of your income in higher tax. People with very low or no income pay no federal income tax at all. You don't take your tax framework and apply that percentage to all your income, though. That's because federal income taxes are marginal. When people refer to their tax framework, they actually refer to the top marginal tax framework in which they fall. If you qualify in the first bracket your income is taxed at this rate up to a certain income threshold. If you have income above and beyond what would put you in the first bracket, this additional income is taxable at the rate of the second marginal tax bracket, and so on. Filing your federal income tax correctly can be daunting, but income tax calculators and interactive software (like TurboTax or H&A; R Block) are demystifying the process. Planning on sending your kids to college? You will need to get your income tax returns handy to fill out the Free Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) application. A brief history of U.S. federal income taxes mentioned, federal income taxes have not always been a part of American life. Abraham Lincoln was a prelude to the IRS to help fund the war effort during the Civil War. But that tax was repealed in 1872. In 1894, the Supreme Court ruled that it was unconstitutional in 1895 because the tax was direct and was not established for population-based states. Then, in 1909, President Taft (sure as hell hadn't you thought of it in a while) proposed a constitutional amendment that would give the government the power to impose direct income taxes without spreading the tax burden across the country by population. It took until 1913, but the 16th Amendment was ratt confirmed and the first Form 1040 was born. The Income Act of 1918 generated progressive income Rate structure with rates as high as 77%. Seriously. Since the federal IRS came into being it has been a source of political controversy - and groans from taxpayers. Taxable income has taxable income and there is non-taxable income. What is non-taxable income, you ask? Income payments, life insurance income received after the policy's death, refunds and welfare benefits are examples of non-taxable income. Your Social Security income may be taxable or not, depending on whether you have other income on the side and where you live. It should be clear that your taxable income can be quite different from your actual income, depending on your circumstances. Taxable income forms the basis of your taxes owed. If you're self-employed, your income tax situation is a little more complicated. Taxable income for the self-employed taxes into account the fact that you didn't have an employer who avoids your income tax for you. In addition, you have to pay Social Security and Medicare taxes yourself, without an employer chipping in and deducting some of your wages to cover the tax bill. If you work for someone else you split the burden of Social Security and Medicare taxes with your employer. If you're self-employed, you carry that burden yourself. The good news is you can claim a deduction for some of this tax burden. If you expect to pay taxes of $1,000 or more when you fill out your refund you have to pay an estimated tax during the year using Form 1040-ES. It may sound like pain but it will save you from getting one huge bill come April.
