As your sheriff, I am determined to make great progress in the progress of our department in education, professionalism and technology. That's why I'm happy to announce an additional outlet for reporting minor crimes. The new online Contactless Reporting System will allow citizens to file complaints via the web. This will allow complainants to prepare reports without sending an assistant to their location, allowing the patrol department to focus on more serious calls. This should reduce response time and make it easier for the public to report a crime. While I remain fiscally conservative with your tax dollars, I am always determined to stay up to date with new technologies and procedures. Sheriff Bobby J. Guidroz 1592 E. Prudhomme Street Opelousas, LA 70570 OPELOUSAS, La. - The St Landry Parish Sheriff's Office announced on Tuesday that two sheriff's deputies had graduated from 56 sessions of the St Martin Sheriff's Academy of Basic Training. He told the 911 operator he saw the man trying to break into the tool shed. Deputies then saw the door of the shed pulled from the hinge and circuit breakers pushed into closed position. © Citizen Times file photo the Asheville Police Department has viewing lights at the end of car light bars. It is not designed to pull traffic aside, but to increase visibility. Thibodeaux said that when officers arrived, the woman saw the man leave, but officers found Joseph Chachere hiding in the passenger seat of a car at work. When officers searched for Chachere, they also found dangerous substances controlled. The 43-year-old Opelousas man was charged with simple theft and two counts of possession of a Program II controlled dangerous substance. © St Landry Parish Sheriff's Office Paul Fontenot on November 22, an off-duty police officer returned to his home near Louisiana Highway 13. Thibodeaux said he noticed the glass in the back broken and a man, later identified as Paul Fontenot, 47, was inside his home. The officer arrested the man and called 911. The officer realized that the TV was in the process of being removed from his home. Fontenot was accused of damaging simple batteries and property. contact Ashley White on adwhite@theadvertiser.com or @AshleyDi Twitter.
