Free Stone Fox Book by John Reynolds Gardiner. Stone Fox by John Reynolds Gardiner Sinopsis: John Reynolds Gardiner's classic action-filled adventure story has captivated readers for more than thirty years about an exciting dogs race. Based on a Rocky Mountain legend, Stone Fox tells the story of little Willie, who lives with his grandfather in Wyoming. When grandfathers fall ill, he is no longer able to work in the field, which is in danger of foreclosure. Little Willie is determined to win the National Dogslade race - the prize money will save the farm and his grandfather. But he's not the only one who desperately wants to win. Willie and his brave dog Searchlight will face off against veteran racers, including a Native American man named Stone Fox, who has never lost a race. Exciting and heartwarming, this novel has sold millions of copies and was named the New York Times Outstanding Children's Book. One day the grandfather would not have exited bed. He just lay there and looked at the roof and looked sad. At first little Willie thought he was playing. Little Willie lived with his grandfather on a small potato farm in Wyoming. It was hard work living on a potato farm, but it was also a lot of fun. Especially when Dada felt the play. Like time dressed as scarecrows out in the grandfather's garden. It took little Willie an hour to catch on. Boy, do they laugh. The grandfather laughed so hard he cried. And when he cried his beard was filled with tears. Grandpa always got up real early in the morning. So quickly that it was still dark outside. He set ablaze. Then he would have breakfast and call little Willie. Hurry up or you'll be eating with chickens, he'll say. Then he threw his head back and laughed. Once a little Willie went back to gold. When he woke up, he found his plate out in the chicken coop. It was picked up clearly. Then he never slept until late again. It is... Till this morning. For some reason, Dada forgot to call him. That's when little Willie discovered that the grandfather was still in bed. There can only be one explanation. Dada Ji was playing. It was another trick. Or was it? Get up, dada, little Willie said. I don't want to play anymore. But Dada did not respond. Little Willie ran out of the house. A dog was sleeping on the front porch. On, Searchlight! Little Willie cried. The dog jumped on his feet and together they ran down the road. The searchlight was a big black dog. A white spot on her forehead was the size of silver dollars. He was an old dog — actually born on the same day as little Willie, who was over ten years ago. A mile down the road they came to a small log cabin surrounded by tall trees. Doctor Smith was sitting in a rocking chair under one of the trees, reading a book. Doctor Smith, little Willie called out. He was out of breath. Come early. What's the point, Willie think? The doctor asked, continuing to read. Doctor Smith had snow white hair and wore a long black dress. Her skin was tan and her face was covered with wrinkles. Dada won't answer me, little Willie said. Perhaps just one more trick, Doctor Smith responded. There is nothing to worry about. But he's still in bed. Doctor Smith turned a page and continued to read. How late did you both stay until last night? We went to bed early, real quick. No singing or music or anything. Dr. Smith stopped reading. Did your grandfather go to bed without playing his harmonica? She asked. Little Willie nodded.
