Keep smiling and creating with K4craft! 1 Make the band perimeter. With the arrow pointing up, loop a band from the first center peg to the first left latch. Next, repeat a band the first left latch to the second left latch, then the second to the third. Continue down the left line until you reach the second to last peg. Then repeat a range from the second peg to the last peg diagonally to the last middle peg. Go back to the head and repeat this for the other side, until you have the bands around the perimeter of the loom. [2] 2 Create the first explosion. Push all the belt strips down. Then place a range of A colors (any color you want) on the second pin of the middle row and the second of the row on the right. Then place five more strips away from the middle latch to each peg around, clockwise. This will leave you with a starburst or angst shape. Push down all the bands as you go. 3 Carry out further explosions. Place a range from the fourth latch of the middle row diagonally to the fourth peg of the row on the right. Re-perform the strip clockwise until you have another explosion with the bottom overlapping to the top of the first blast. Continue to do this until the entire loom is filled (inside the perimeter). Keep pushing down the bands every time. You can change the color of the explosion as you go. 4 Place the middle circle strips. Double a band in perimeter color and place it on the last middle peg. Then double up another at placing it in the center of the burst. Continue to place the double strips in the center of each blast until you reach the end. 5 Start weaving. Rotate the looms around so that the arrows are facing you. Then hook the bottom ring of the nearest starburst from the first middle peg and pull it up (be careful not to knock the other strip on the peg) loop it into the center peg. 6 Weave all the explosions. Next, start from the center of the blast and move counter-clockwise, using your hook to grab the first half of each band and loop it into the peg it starts on (go center, latch, center, latch, center, latch, and so on). Always be careful not to knock out other bands on the center peg. You should be left with something that looks like a flower or a sun. Perform this process for all explosions. 7 Weaving perimeter. Starting with the band that goes around the bottom right and the bottom center peg, grab the end that's wrapped around the bottom center peg and pull it down (without knocking the other band out) And on the bottom left peg, so that both ends of the band are on that peg. Then do the same for the band that wraps around the bottom right and the second to latch left. Proceed until the entire left side is done, ending when you hook the last left band into the last middle peg. Then go back to start and do the right side of the loom. 8 Add the finish lap. Reach your hook down through all the bands on the final middle peg. Grab a new band that you keep in Your hand, pull it up through the band, and then slide your hook through the loop of the new band, so it completely wraps around Hook. Then hold the hook in your hand with the loop still around it, pulling the entire bracelet out of the loom. 9 Add extensions. Add new bands to the looms, about five of them all down to one side. Loop the band from the first peg into the second peg, then close the second on the third, the third on the fourth, and so on. Then, make the first loop at the end of your bracelet (on the side with no hooks) and treat it like another rubber band, adding it to the string you started on the loom. Next, chain the strips from the end with bracelets all the way down to the first band. 10 Add clip C. Add a C clip or s to the last strip on the loom, take the whole thing out of the loom, and then clamp clip C or s into the loops on your hook. Take your hook out and you're done! [3] 11 Enjoy your new bracelet. Bracelet.
