Original description: As you can see in the image, you can remove the curse from the Green Stone boots, but the curse that does not curse binding that works only when the curse is at the bottom of the green stone GUI is a magic that prevents the removal of cursed items from the armor slot. [Edit] This is treasure magic. It can only be obtained from chest loot, fishing, or trading for enchanted books. [Java Edition Only] Use [Edit] Players cannot remove items with the curse of binding from armor slots unless creative mode, player dies, or item is damaged. For items without durability or illra, players must die to remove the item, and cannot be removed without dying in hardcore mode. All mobs also follow a binding curse. For example, if you wear a leather helmet with a binding curse, you cannot take it off to equip your preferred satellite helmet if they find one. Players cannot use crushed stones or cracking tables to remove magic. Instead, the item will still return to the cursed player. However, if the cursed object is a pumpkin or mob head, breaking it with the head will remove the curse. If the KeepInventory game rule is set to true, the player will retain the cursed item after death. If possible, remove the item only when you break it. When a player enchants a carved pumpkin and wears it, the player will not be able to remove the carved pumpkin. Keeping game rules inventory is set to be true, or if the player is in hardcore mode, it becomes impossible for the player to remove the carved pumpkin without cheating in-game or dying in hardcore mode. This can be used to troll other players, pumpkin overlays on the screen make it harder to play the game. Pumpkins are the most effective item to use this curse because it is not durable. However, most players can use dispensers to force players to equip, even though they don't intentionally equip cursed pumpkins. This enchantment doesn't affect unarmored items and won't prevent you from removing items from your inventory until it's equipped.
