Fans of Gadsden Science may soon be able to display a familiar snake and don't trample on me a message every time you withdraw from the trail. At least three states -- Virginia, Nevada and Texas -- are studying or have already approved proposals to add specialized license plates that don't trample on their state's lists. The Gadsden flag, originally used by the U.S. Marines during the American Revolution, was intended to represent the 13 original colonies and the battle for independence from british monarchy. It has recently been adopted by some Tea Party groups as a message against the big government. Many supporters of the symbol say they will seek gadsden paintings available in other states across the country. But critics say the message of science does not trample on me of a political nature, and has no place on any government-issued license plate. In Texas, the first state to propose and approve the paintings, officials said they don't have the policy in mind, but simply make more people interested in displaying specialty paintings, which bring more money to the state and then regular paintings. The Flag of Gadsden Don't Trample On Me is an important one for the history of America and Texas, and our market research, both official and informal, shows that there is a lot of interest in Texas in the state's history, said Kim Miller Drummond, a spokeswoman for Myplates.com, the company contracted by the Texas Department of Motor Vehicles to design, market and sell new specialty license plates in the state. The painting was proposed this summer as part of a science series that also features a Texas flag and a Gonzalez flag come and catch it, and the American flag will soon appear, Drummond said. The design was displayed for public comment on the state Department of Motor Vehicles website and was then voted on by the DMV Board of Directors in Texas on November 9. Generally if the panel is not considered offensive to public sensitivities, or too political, it passes. Texas DMV public information officer Kim So-Lea Perks told FoxNews.com.Despite its Tea Party ties, don't trample on me making a cut. Don't trample on me' is not exclusive to the tea party. It's been around for a long time, so I think txDMV, we'd be inclined to look at it as a historical painting and not that we went up to some sort of political debate. A commission to sell each painting will go to Myplates.com, and the remaining proceeds will go to the Texas Public Revenue Fund. But not all Texas residents are on board. Please avoid political statements on outgoing state boards (Don't trample on me). That's why we have bumper stickers, one function on DMV Read the page. Another said that the flag that did not trample on me was of historical importance, which had been usurped by a movement of some extremist elements. I hope that Texas does not lend it this particular painting however, the reaction in Texas did not prevent other states from pursuing the suit. On October 14, Virginia Representative John M. O'Bannon III put forward a proposal to bring the panels not trampling on me to Virginia. Unlike revenue-sharing boards, which raise money for a particular organization, O'Bannon says any money raised by these panels will go directly to the Virginia Revenue Management Department. Some people try to politicize it, but the nice thing about this symbol is that it has a very positive and patriotic legacy and a lot of people past tea party people think positively of this and I think you want to get it, O'Bannon told FoxNews.com.With more than 300 committed buyers required to get On the plate produced, O'Bannon expects Virgin will be able to get the plates not trampled on me by July.Nevada Assemblyman Ed Goedhart isn't so sure that his proposal to bring the Gadsden flag board to his state, but he plans to do everything in his power to make it happen. In Nevada, if you can sell more than a certain number of paintings, you are allowed to have specialty license plates. So my bill would put Gadsden's flag as one of those specialized panels that should wait for its role to move the list, during which he told Fox News.com.com. He states that he does not know whether the legislature will be required, but hopes the bill will pass by late February. Part of the proceeds of the paintings then go to a nonprofit group that distributes pocket-sized copies of the U.S. Constitution to high school students. I think there are a lot of people who basically embrace the concepts of the constitution, limited government, financial responsibility and free markets on which our country was based and I think there are a lot of people who want to show their solidarity with those founding values by getting a plate of gold. The Comment Board on the subject shows that many supporters in other states have agreed to do so. I would like to add the symbol to vietnam veteran paintings in Ohio, wrote blogger Edward Benson. Further comments requested that the paintings be submitted in Colorado, New Mexico, Nebraska, New York, California, Arizona, Florida, Pennsylvania, Kansas, Tennessee and Oregon. One commentator, Bob Russell, said he had already written to his state representatives to ask them in Oklahoma. Oklahoma patriots should have the option of showing patriotism through their license plates. For now, Gadsden fans in at least one state can start clearing some bumper room for a new don't trample on me Plates.Myplates.com hoping to release the paintings in Texas February 7, says Drummond. It is believed that an estimated 14,000 license plates do not trample on me to be currently registered at this time. The license plate is the brainchild of John Kubinka, treasurer of Friends of Sycamore Schulz, the country's historic district. It started trading in early 2017. He said another organization I was with had already started trying to get to the painting, and they could never get the minimum number approved by the state, and when they failed, I thought it would be good for the park. Kubinka said even after three years, seeing the daughters of his thoughts there is very cool. It's always interesting to see one of these plates on another car around me or parked around me in the store's parking lot, he said. Kubinka said the license plate appeals to people for a variety of reasons. There are a lot of historians and it is the flag of the American Revolution. He said it was also a flag used by the Marines since 1775. It was briefly associated with the Tea Party, although we don't take political statements or anything like that, and some people in general just are kind of putting out with the government trying to control their lives and it's an individual statement. Leslie Broccoli, secretary of Sycamore Schulz, says she and her husband have the license plate. She said: I have one, and my husband has. It's in thousands of those that have been sold and goes all over Tennessee. People can buy those and part of the money goes back to a fund they set aside for projects for Friends of Sykamur Shoal. Friends of Sycamore Shoals help meet the needs of the park when the state budget goes so far. Kubinka said the group paid for some of the park's maintenance and landscape, as well as the renovation of the visitor center, the maqaina and even the Carter Palace. They're good friends who help. Broccoli said. They're really helping. They are always worried about what the park needs and holding meetings to help the park. Those wishing to purchase the license plate may do so in the court building or any place that sells the license plates. What is a full car or truck without its rebel badge of honor? No wonder which team you're rolling with! This Gadsden rebel license plate will surely get you the best gas mileage. OK just kidding.
