You must sign in to view this content. The 2020 International Festival of Tisbian, which was scheduled to be held at Indiana University this summer, will begin online in light of the coronavirus epidemic. With the cancellation of campus activities, the Educational Theater Association launches the first-ever virtual ITF. The June event will feature lawsuits, tests, the International Excellence Awards in Thespian (aka Thespy), presentations, workshops, key classes and more. Given the uncertainty in the Covid-19 status, this is the right way to protect the health and well-being of our theatre family, and it is EDTA's top priority, said Julie Cohen Theobald, Executive Director of EDTA. Although the traditional festival is not possible in 2020, this once-in-a-year celebration is not cancelled. This offer must continue! The VIRTUAL ITF is open to all Thespians (members of the Thespian International Society, Honor Society for Middle and High School Theatre Students) and theatre students from all over the world. Their teacher, their parents and their families; colleges, industry leaders, artists. More details will be announced in the coming weeks. Students and teachers already enrolled in ITF 2020 will be contacted within two weeks for the next steps, as well as colleges, exhibitors, sponsors and teaching artists.
